LEGISLATURE CALLED FOR OCT. 17; PARK FOR SALES TAX

Governor in Proclamation Calling Special Session Submits 22 Recommendations—Levy on Purchase Proposed to Help General Revenue.

LIQUOR CONTROL LAWS PROPOSED

Also Would Authorize Towns Under 75,000 to Purchase, Build and Operate Water, Gas and Electric Systems and to Issue Bonds for Them.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 4.—Twenty-two recommendations, including one for a sales tax to help replenish the State's depleted general revenue fund, were included in a formal proclamation issued today by Gov. Park, calling the Legislature into special session Oct. 17.

In brief, the Governor's recommendations are:

Repeal of the McCawley bone dry law.

Regulating and controlling the sale, manufacture, possession, transportation and disposition of intoxicating liquors.

Legislation generally concerning intoxicating liquors.

Raise revenue for the State or any subdivision thereof by:

Increasing the tax on beer sold within the State.

Taxing the manufacture of beer within the State.

Authorizing counties, cities, towns and villages to license, tax and (or) regulate the manufacture and (or) sale of beer and (or) to tax, license and (or) regulate the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors.

A general sales tax.

A gross sales tax.

Any other "constitutional" method of raising revenue.

Emergency Relief Revenue.

To provide revenue and ways and means for emergency relief administration.

Relieving property within the State of the 5-cent general revenue tax for State purposes.

Amending legislation so as to allow more than 25,000 acres in any one county to be acquired for any purpose.

To authorize any municipality under 75,000 population to purchase, build and operate a waterworks or water supply system and to provide for the cost by the issuance of revenue bonds.

To authorize municipalities under 75,000 population to purchase, build and operate gas works and electric power plants under the same provisions as in the recommendations for waterworks.

To authorize any city to construct and operate a sewer system and to provide for the cost by the issuance of revenue bonds to be paid solely from revenues from its operation.

Sewer District Proposed.

Authorizing the organization of sewer districts in counties with 100,000 population or more, providing governing authority for such districts, authorizing such authorities to pay for such sewers by issuance and sale of bonds of the district at an election to be paid from a general ad valorem property tax or sale of revenue bonds to be paid solely from revenue to be derived from the operation of the system.

Authorizing sale of toll bridge revenue bonds by political or civil subdivisions so as to authorize the sale of such bonds to any agency of the United States Government.

An enabling act to make it possible for municipalities to own and operate public self-liquidating projects under the Federal emergency relief acts.

Legislation authorizing State banks and trust companies to subscribe for, purchase and hold stock of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Insurance Law Revision.

Old Dominion Votes by 40,000 to Wipe Out Both 18th Amendment and Its Own Dry Law.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Virginia having voted for repeal by a substantial majority, the roll call of the states today stood 32 for and none against erasing the eighteenth amendment from the United States Constitution.

Four more states are needed to make ratification of the proposed twenty-first (repeal) amendment effective. Seven states have elections on this issue scheduled this year—Florida, Oct. 10, and Ohio, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, North and South Carolina and Utah, Nov. 7. If four of these states go for repeal, then repeal will be accomplished, at latest, by Dec. 6, the date of the last of the ratification conventions in these states.

Virginia for Repeal by 40,000, Including Bishop Cannon's Precinct.

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 4.—Virginia voted yesterday for repeal of national prohibition and also for repeal of the State dry law.

The vote on the eighteenth amendment in 1363 of 1690 precincts was 94,140 for repeal, 53,039 against.

With slightly fewer precincts tabulated, the vote on State prohibition was 87,361 for a State liquor control system against 49,207 for continuance of State prohibition.

Bishop James Cannon Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for years a militant dry, took no part in the pre-election campaign and did not vote in the election. He neither cast his vote by mail nor appeared at the polls in Blackstone, his home and voting precinct. The precinct went for repeal.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Oct. 4.—By a vote of 94 to 4, the delegates elected Aug. 29 ratified for Washington the twenty-first amendment to the Federal Constitution yesterday. One of the repeal delegates was absent.

STOCKS ADVANCE 2 TO 7 POINTS IN BUYING RUSH

Shorts Hurry to Cover As All Groups Show Activity at Close.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Stocks enjoyed their best rally in some time today as shorts rushed to cover in the last half hour after a leisurely upturn during the earlier trading.

Net gains of $2 to around $7 were numerous in all groups, but metal, alcohol and rail issues stood out. In the absence of outside news, brokers attributed the sudden rush of buying enthusiasm to technical causes, pointing out that the market had probably become oversold. Several large professional operators were reported to have switched to the buying side.

TWO MEN KILLED IN CRASH OF ARMY BOMBING PLANE

Craft From Langley Field, Va., Falls in Woods Near Annapolis, Md,

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 4.—Two men were fatally injured today when an army bombing plane from Langley Field, Va., crashed in the woods 12 miles from Annapolis.

They were identified as Lieut. R. W. C. Booker and William L. Rhoads, radio operator. Motor trouble apparently was the cause of the crash. Persons living nearby said they heard the engines of the bimotored plane missing as it dropped into the woods.

$5,411,900 FOR PUBLIC WORKS

Allotments Made 12 States and Hawaii.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The public works administration today allotted $5,411,900 for 61 non-Federal projects in 12 states and Hawaii which it estimated will provide 57,075 man months of immediate direct employment.

The allotments, the longest single list of non-Federal projects yet approved, include funds for construction of bridges, sewers, waterworks, hospitals, street lights, schools, roads, municipal buildings, heating and power plants, a bakery, a library, parks, airport repairs and an incinerator.

LITTLE HOPE OF LOANS TO DEBT-LIMIT TOWNS

Ickes Thinks It Unfair to Evade State Constitutional Restrictions.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Secretary of the Interior Ickes, administrator of the $3,300,000,000 public works fund, held out small hope today for the allotment of money to Missouri cities and towns that have reached the limit of their borrowing capacity under the State Constitution.

Ickes indicated that the only chance for these municipalities to get a portion of the Federal funds lay in the possibility that the legal division of the Public Works Administration would devise some method by which they could agree to repay Federal loans without actually contracting debt.

He thought it would be "obviously unfair" for the President to use the authority granted him in the Recovery Act to extend the benefits of the act to municipalities regardless of constitutional restrictions upon loans. If this were done in one case, Ickes said, it would have to be done in others, and the result would have to be a general apportionment of public works funds among the states on the same basis as the distribution of road building money.

RAILROADS ESTIMATE STEEL NEEDS AT 1,089,000 TONS

Co-ordinator Lists Amounts Each Could Use Including 26,000 for Frisco.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The railroads of the country have notified the administration that they can use 1,089,746 tons of steel, including 844,525 tons of rail and 245,221 tons of fastenings.

A letter from Joseph B. Eastman, co-ordinator of transportation, to the heads of four steel corporations listed amounts various roads could use including Missouri Pacific and subsidiaries, 25,000 tons of rails and 7500 of fastenings; Frisco, 26,000 and 7800; Missouri-Kansas-Texas, 4500 and 1350, and Wabash, 10,000 and 3000.

DILLON READ CO. MADE $4,000,000 IN STOCK UNIT

Member of Firm Tells Senators of Sale of 74,000 Shares at $53, for Which 20c a Share Was Paid.

'BROKERS WANTED TO MAKE SOME MONEY'

Syndicate Given Option to Sell 30,000 Shares — Greater Publicity of Investment Securities Urged

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Profits of almost $4,000,000 to members of the firm of Dillon, Read & Co., from sale of stock in an investment trust formed in 1924 were disclosed today to Senate investigators.

The Wall Street Inquiry Committee went more deeply into operations in connection with the United States and Foreign Securities Corporation, after the start made yesterday with testimony of Clarence Dillon, senior partner.

Robert E. Christie Jr., youthful member of the firm, disclosed the sale in 1929 of 74,000 shares of the investment trust stock at $53, for which firm members had paid only 20 cents a share five years earlier.

Through Syndicate Account.

He said he personally did not acquire any of the stock until 1927, when he got 5000 shares from an associate in the company. He sold part of it through a syndicate account participated in by other members of the firm.

Other participants he named as William A. Phillips, E. J. Birmingham, Dean Mathey, the Beekman Co., W. Willcox Jr., R. H. Ballard, H. G. Riter III, Robert O. Hayward, C. M. Miller and W. A. Read.

The testimony at this point dealt with only a portion of the 500,000 shares of common stock in all that members of the firm obtained at 20 cents a share, according to yesterday's evidence.

Christie said his portion of the total sales was 2900 shares, which if sold at an average of $53, netted him $153,700 as against a purchase price of $29,000.

He said in the fall of 1928 Dominick & Dominick, stock brokers, came to Dillon, Read and said "they would like to be able to sell some stock to their clients and make some money."

Partners Willing to Sell.

"Their idea," he elaborated, "was that they would buy a quantity of stock at some price below the market. We told them we had no stock to sell. Later they came back and were so insistent that I personally checked with other members of the firm of Dillon, Read, with the result that some seven or eight partners were unwilling to sell and 11 were willing."

Dominick & Dominick, Christie said, felt the trust stock was "out of line" with other market prices, or lower in comparison than it should have been.

The trust stock was selling for "less than twice its book value," while other stocks were several times that.

The brokers were given an option on Dec. 20, 1928, to sell 30,000 shares. The option gave Dominick & Dominick the right to purchase three 10,000 share blocks, at $47.50, $50 and $55 respectively.

Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, asked if the syndicate was not a "pool for the buying and selling of stock."

Christie conferred with associates and Pecora asked if that was necessary.

Glass and Pecora Clash.

Interrupting for the first time, Senator Glass (Dem.), Virginia, said "the witness has a right to get advice."

After words between Glass and Pecora, Fletcher told Christie to answer.

"And get all the advice you want from your associates. I shall insist upon that," Glass interjected.

It was the first friction since the inquiry was re-opened yesterday.

Christie did not make a direct reply to Pecora's question immediately, explaining the manner in which the transaction was made.

Questioned About "Ads."

Earlier Pecora propounded questions dealing with advertisements offering stock in the investment trust, which Dillon said were prepared by his firm.

Describing the machinery of handling such a stock issue, Dillon said "we allow a dealer to take what he likes" and that it was not held "against him" if he did not care to participate.

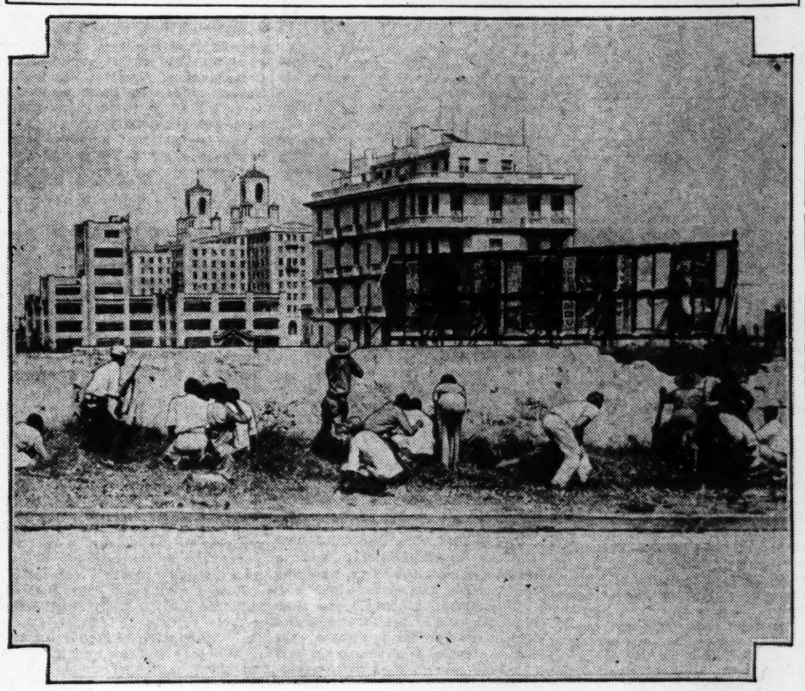

Dillon explained there were usually three selling syndicates, the originating group, the intermediate or banking group and the selling syndicate.

In response to questions, Dillon

WORKERS BEATEN, PICKET SHOT IN STEEL MILL CLASH

By the Associated Press.

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Oct. 4.—Two men were seriously wounded and several others were clubbed today in a clash between 300 pickets and 100 steel workers outside the Spang-Chalfant Co.'s plant. The crowd fell back after several shots were fired from the plant entrance and Deputy Sheriffs laid down a tear gas attack.

The two most seriously hurt are Al Curry, 30 years old, a steel worker, and Luke Starchenko, 37, a picket. Starchenko was shot in the abdomen and Curry suffered a fractured skull. Physicians at Valley Hospital in Sewickley said both may die.

As disorder spread into the Beaver Valley, more than two-thirds of the 75,000 soft coal miners in Western Pennsylvania remained out despite orders from their leaders to go back to work today. Picketing at mines was widespread but no violence was reported.

Picket lines also were maintained at the Clairton plant of the Carnegie Steel Co. and at the Weirton and Clarksburg, W. Va., and Steubenville, O., operations of the Weirton Steel Co.

Pickets Form in Night.

The picket line at Armbridge formed during the night. In the darkness before dawn, workers began to arrive and formed in a knot near the entrance. Suddenly the employes moved toward the plant and pickets closed in.

There were cries of "Let 'em have it!" and 'Give 'em the bricks!'

C. R. Barton, vice-president in charge of operations of the company, said "about 180 of our 1300 men are members of the organization, which I understand to be Communistic."

Deputies in Charge.

$1,000,000 LIQUOR SEIZURE ON FREIGHTER AT NEW YORK

Customs Officials Raid Anchored Ship; Members of Crew Held as Vagrants.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Customs officials announced today the seizure of 25,000 cases of liquor, which they valued at $1,000,000, on an abandoned freighter anchored in the Hudson River, off Haverstraw, N. Y.

The vessel, camouflaged to resemble a coast-wise freighter and with the name "Texas Ranger" painted on the sides, was identified by a Treasury agent as the British freighter "Holmewood," registered in West Hartlepool, England.

The vessel dropped anchor off Haverstraw yesterday afternoon and the members of the crew went ashore. They were arrested shortly afterward as vagrants.

Customs officials said it was the largest liquor seizure in several years. The ship's crew said their base was Nova Scotia.

KILLED WHEN AUTO RUNS DOWN PICKETS AT INDIANA MINE

By the Associated Press.

SULLIVAN, Ind., Oct. 4.—Frank Stalder, 30 years old, was killed today by an automobile driven through a crowd of pickets assembled at the Starburn mine several miles north of this city.

County authorities were informed the automobile that struck him was driven by Crede Fitzpatrick, superintendent of the Starburn mine. They said, however, they were unable to substantiate the charge.

The Starburn mine, which has been operating on a co-operative basis, has been under guard for several months. It was the scene of disorders a year ago when union sympathizers sought to persuade miners to cease working.

ANCIENT CROWN OF DENMARK DUG UP NEAR COPENHAGEN

Some Believe King Christian II (1514-1559) Buried It in Flight to Jutland.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Oct. 4.—An ancient royal crown, of gold and intricately designed, was found under the pavement of the public square in a small town near here today. With it were a gold chain and crucifix.

Some believed the crown belonged to King Christian II, who hid in the town in 1532. King Christian may have buried his treasure before crossing to Jutland, pursued by his former subjects.

Christian II, born in 1481, was King of Norway and Denmark from 1514 to 1559.

HAVANA STORM FORCES A HALT IN POLITICAL STRIFE

Street Crowds Driven Indoors by Severe Gale and Cuban Capital Passes Peaceful Night.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Oct. 4.—A 70-mile-an-hour gale swept Havana today and residents had to remain indoors, after the capital experienced its most peaceful night in a week.

A few shots were heard near the presidential palace early last evening, but later the wind drove street crowds indoors.

Belen Observatory reported this morning that a disturbance of slight intensity was crossing Matanzas and Havana provinces and was moving northward toward the Florida straits.

Telephone lines were broken in Havana and trees were uprooted. High seas and heavy winds were forecast for later today. Reports from Matanzas said no serious damage had been done. The National Observatory reported that the storm was increasing in intensity as it moved northward.

Soldiers were deployed about the United States Embassy following rumors of a plot to bomb it. The home of former President Mario G. Menocal was searched by soldiers while machine guns were trained on the house. An officer said rifles and ammunition were found.

A check today of the dead in Monday's street fighting and battle at the National Hotel put the total at 54. Of the officers who resisted the attack of soldiers on the hotel, 17 were killed, more than 20 wounded, and 368 were imprisoned in Principe and Cabana fortresses.

Twenty-seven victims of the National Hotel warfare were buried last night in Colon Cemetery, while the storm raged and soldiers held their rifles ready should any disorder occur.

The officers held in Cabana fortress denied rumors that some of their number had been executed on the way there and said they were being well treated. They opposed Ramon Grau San Martin as President.

The President meanwhile announced the institution of drastic measures to bring order and protect "foreign life and property," and said "peace now prevails through the island."

Julius Cesar Fernandez, editor of the student newspaper, Alma Mater, in an article charged American Ambassador Sumner Welles

125 INJURED WHEN 1000 ARE TRAPPED IN RAVINE

Workers on R. F. C. Relief Project, Inexperienced in Forest Blazes, Caught When Wind Fans Flames in Box-Like Area.

TOTAL NUMBER OF DEAD MAY BE 50

Victims Cut Off From Escape Try to Climb Rock Walls — Order Sending Untrained Persons Into Section Denounced.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4.—With the recovery of 35 bodies from the fire-swept box canyon in Griffith Park, early estimates of the number of dead were considerably reduced today, although it was still believed there were more bodies to be found and that the death list might run to 50.

Four charred bundles which a Deputy Coroner said he believed to be bodies of additional victims were brought out this morning. Reports that other groups of bodies had been found which would increase the death list to more than 50 remained unverified.

Officials said it may be two days before a final check of the total deaths can be made, because many of the 3784 RFC workers employed in the park did not report today for roll call.

More than 125 men were burned or otherwise injured, some of them seriously.

Robert D. Barr, 29 years old, an unemployed motion picture projectionist, was arrested by police and booked for suspicion of arson. He was traced through the license of an automobile which had been parked near the spot where the blaze started and from which a man had been seen to enter the canyon and reportedly start the blaze.

Police said they found rags soaked with kerosene on the man when he was arrested. Barr made no statement to police. He has a police record of having been arrested on a drunkenness charge.

So badly were the bodies burned that not a single victim of the fire had been identified this morning. Relatives were permitted to view the bodies at 9 a. m.

Throughout the night thousands of relatives of the more than 3700 workers on the roads of the park crowded about the county morgue and a hastily improvised mortuary. Police held them in check.

Inexperienced Fire Fighters.

Frank Merrill, superintendent of Griffith Park, attributed the large death list to "lack of experience in brush fire fighting" on the part of those who died and the men who sent them into the canyon.

Fire Chief Ralph Scott said "it was suicide to send those men into a walled-in canyon whose entrance was blocked by raging flames and whose only other means of exit was a winding cow-path up the wall of the ravine."

Blindly following orders of their foremen, more than 1000 workmen streamed into the box-like Mineral Wells canyon. Deep in the canyon a small area was burning. There was little or no wind, the flames and smoke from the burning scrub oak growth in the canyon's floor, shooting straight upward.

Suddenly a wind whipped into the canyon, fanning the blaze outward from its center. In a few seconds the hundreds of men who had entered the canyon were scrambling up its steep sides.

The cowpath became a line of fighting, sweltering men. The strong clambered over the weak.

Survivors said the flames jumped as high as 100 feet at the time, catching up with and bringing down the struggling men.

The men were suffocated by the walls of smoke that rolled over them or struck down by flames.

One pair had almost reached the

SLAYER WHO SAYS HE'S CRAZY MAKES FACES FOR JURY

Paul Barbata, on Trial for Killing Three, Grimaces at Parents as They Testify in His Defense.

MOTHER DECLARES HE HAS DELUSIONS

Says He Often Wanted to Fight Imaginary Intruder —Expresses Opinion He Is Insane.

Paul Barbata, former amateur pugilist, made faces at his mother and father today when they took the witness stand to testify in his defense in Circuit Judge Bader's court, where he is on trial for murder.

Barbata shot and killed 18-year-old Lillie Salamoni, her father, Samuel, and her brother, Joseph, after he had been ordered to keep away from their home last January, because he was married and his attentions to Lillie were both unwelcome and disgraceful. His insanity defense, which started at the opening of today's court session, is that he was then, and still is, unable to tell the difference between right and wrong.

Mrs. Mary Barbata testified through an interpreter that her son "never liked to go to school and the other children used to complain about him fighting." When he was 16 or 17, she said, he awakened with a shriek four different times, insisted that someone was in his bedroom and wanted to fight the imaginary intruder. He had bad table manners, she said, and, after he started boxing, used to complain of headaches. Late last autumn he visited her and said, "Somebody's after me."

Mrs. Barbata concluded by saying, "I think he's crazy." In this his father, Joseph, concurred. However, the father testified he never had discussed these peculiarities with any doctor or with anyone else until he conferred with Paul's attorney, Joseph B. Catanzaro.

Talks Sanely Out of Court.

The 32-year-old ex-pugilist, who formerly owned a florist shop, evinced no interest in the testimony other than to wrap his fingers around his nose from time to time, to purse his lips in strange grimaces. He pulled his ears, sat for long periods with his eyes shut, at other times stared vacantly at the ceiling. Outside the coutroom, however, he discusses the proceedings avidly with the Deputy Sheriffs who escort him to and from the city jail.

During preliminary testimony yesterday he stared, somewhat like a person who would not know wrong from right. When the two survivors of the Salamon family testified, he embellished the vacant gapes with grimaces similar to those exhibited today.

Victim's Mother Testifies.

Mrs. Lucille Salamoni, mother of the slain girl, and her daughter, Mrs. Angeline Russo, both of whom Barbata tried to shoot, were principal witnesses for the State.

Mrs. Russo, 20 years old, who was married last May, five months after her sister, her father and her brother had been slain, told virtually the same story that her mother had related through an interpreter just before her.

The Salamoni family, of 2317 Cooper street, in that southwest section of the city known as "The Hill," had known Barbata for more than two years. He had a floral shop at Cooper street and Wilson avenue and he made a wreath when Mrs. Russo's young brother died. They met him when he came to their home to collect installment payments. Angeline and her sister, Lillie, passed his shop occasionally and he used to call them in and give them flowers.

Then, on Jan. 5, he went to the Liggett & Myers tobacco factory where Lillie, Angeline and their mother worked. He called Lillie downstairs and talked to her for 25 minutes. Lillie told her mother about it; that he had asked her to go out with him. On Jan. 6, when the two girls and their mother got home from work, Barbata called.

Barbata Told to Leave.

Mrs. Salamoni denounced him, told him to stay away from the girls. Samuel Salamoni, the father, who was unemployed, came in from the kitchen and told the fighter-florist: "Go away. Don't come here any more. I don't want people talking about my daughters."

Barbata was indignant. "I can go to every house on the Hill," he retorted, "and no one turns me away." With that he stamped off.

Ten minutes later the sisters, who were washing clothes in the basement, heard someone tap at the window and request that it be opened. Lillie opened it and Barbata informed her, "I came to tell you good-by." Thereupon he shot her in the shoulder and she and Angeline screamed. Lillie ran upstairs to the kitchen. Barbata rushed into the kitchen, encountering Samuel Salamoni and his 17-year-old son, Joseph, at supper. Angeline started up the basement stairs.

"As I got to the kitchen," she related, "he was shooting my sister again. I did not see him shoot my father and brother. They were already lying on the floor. I heard him counting as I came up the stairs. 'One,' and then a shot. 'Two,' and another shot. 'Three,' and he shot my sister in the heart. Then he pointed it at me and pulled the trigger. It snapped and didn't go off. He turned and went out the kitchen door without saying anything more."

Mrs. Salamoni testified earlier that she heard the shots and rushed to the kitchen from the front of the house in time to see Barbata shoot Lillie and that he pointed the pistol at her "but it wouldn't go off any more." Apparently neither Angeline nor her mother saw each other in the stress of the moment.

On cross-examination, Defense Attorney Catanzaro asked Mrs. Russo if it were not a fact that Lillie had sent her to Barbata to say that Lillie loved him and would marry him if he got a divorce. "No," she flashed. "My sister had her boy friend. She was to have announced her engagement on Jan. 7. That was what caused him to come over and try to kill us all."

Desk Sergeant Morris J. Cooper of the Mounted Police Station testified that Barbata arrived there about 6 p. m. on Jan. 6, entered casually and unhurriedly, and took off his overcoat. Then, said the Sergeant, he asked for Lieut. Bush, and, informed he was not on duty, stated: "I just shot three people on the Hill. Started to kill a family, but didn't finish up."

Barbata was told to sit down and wait. Soon Lieut. James Moran came in and Barbata told him all about it, concluding, "I meant to kill them all and kill myself, but the pistol jammed."

FORMER MISSOURI BANKER GETS 5 YEARS IN PRISON

Arlie Wessel of Treloar Sentenced for Embezzlement and Grand Larceny.

WARRENTON, Mo., Oct. 4.—Arlie L. Wessel, former cashier of the closed Farmers' Bank of Treloar, pleaded guilty before Circuit Judge W. C. Hughes here yesterday to two charges of embezzlement and a charge of grand larceny, and was sentenced to five years in prison.

Wessel was sentenced to five years on each of the three charges, but Judge Hughes stipulated that the sentences run concurrently.

Wessel was charged with embezzling $2000 of Community Power & Light Co. bonds owned by Fritz Macke and his wife, Caroline Macke, residents of the Concord Hill community, and a $500 bond of the Houston Oil Co. owned by Robert Borges. The bonds had been placed in the bank for safekeeping.

The third charge, grand larceny, alleged that Wessel took $7000 of Northern Coal Co. bonds belonging to the assets of the old Treloar Savings Bank, which was merged with the Farmers' Bank several years ago.

STRIKERS DRIVEN FROM TOWN

1000 Farmers Eject Their Employes at Lodi, Cal.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LODI, Cal., Oct. 4.—Armed with revolvers and clubs, 1000 farmers and grape growers yesterday drove striking grape pickers from town.

One of the strikers was seriously injured. Some of them were native-born, while the others were Mexicans, Turks and Bulgarians.

with being "the only person responsible for Monday's tragedy."

Welles, the student said, "created a thin, uncouth mediation comedy and tried to ignore the revolutionary principle to serve the interests of the men responsible for many crimes but who were ready to obey the orders of the dollar."

It was disclosed that Capt. Cossio committed suicide in the National Hotel when one of his fellow officers charged him with cowardice.

During the siege at the hotel the officers had been existing on beans and rice, with only one meal a day during the last 10 days. They had been in the hotel since mid-August.

W. H. Taylor, manager of the National Hotel, estimated damage to the structure at a little more than $100,000.

"We will reopen Saturday," he said.

Of 550 rooms, 100 were damaged. One suite of rooms was wrecked. Damage to furniture was not great. He estimated there were 200 shell holes in the walls.

BONUS PROPOSALS BEATEN BY LEGION LEGISLATIVE GROUP

Committee Rejects Requests From Five States—Commander Gives Advice on Benefits.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—The American Legion Committee on Legislation today voted down resolutions submitted to it by five states asking for immediate payment of the bonus.

The proposals had been previously rejected by the subcommittee on adjusted compensation and the subcommittee's vote came before the Legislation Committee accompanied by a minority report compiled by Congressman Wright Patman of Texas. Whether Patman would carry his effort to the convention floor was not indicated.

The Legislation Committee later approved a resolution urging that Congress provide for waiving interest on loans made or to be made on adjusted compensation certificates.

Members of the Legion were called upon by their national commander, Louis A. Johnson, to adopt a policy on veterans' relief that would consider the taxpayer as well as the disabled ex-soldier.

Johnson, addressing the opening business session of the Legion's convention, reviewed events leading up to passage of the National Economy Act in Congress last March, which cut $300,000,000 a year from veterans' benefits, and said the reduction resulted in some part because of extravagance in previous legislation.

The national commander said some of the earlier laws "imposed injustices upon the Government which should have been removed, not only in the interest of the taxpayer, but in the interests of our own honestly disabled comrades.

Reviewing the last year, Johnson said the Legion never had faced a more critical 12 months.

Campaign of Slander.

"We were subjected to the most merciless and most untruthful campaign of slander that ever beset an association of American veterans," he said. "What few shreds of criticism our enemies could honestly bring against us were magnified and distorted to a degree that made even them malicious falsehoods.

"It almost became a fad to throw mud at the uniform of the American soldier."

Under the economy act, Johnson said, "the economy knife was applied ruthlessly to even the most pitiful classes of battle scarred veterans."

Johnson assured the legionnaires that the American people would not permit an injustice to a disabled veteran "so long as the veterans demonstrate that they are not seeking benefits for those who have no just call upon the Government for support."

Advises Separate Program.

The retiring commander, for whom a successor will be chosen tomorrow, advised against the legionnaires joining with veterans of other wars in a common legislative program.

Johnson said he hoped the convention would affirm its pledge of unlimited support to the Government in its battle for economic recovery "and carry on until the battle is won."

JUDGE ASKS DRY VIOLATORS WHAT FINES THEY CAN PAY

The policy of imposing light fines on first offenders charged with violating the liquor laws was continued today by Federal Judge Davis in disposing of his liquor docket.

Forty-four defendants pleaded guilty yesterday, first offenders receiving fines of between $5 and $25 and second offenders receiving the minimum fine of $100. In many instances, Judge Davis asked the defendants what they could pay and assessed fines accordingly. Only two were unable to pay the $100 fine for second offense and were sent to jail for 30 days.

union chiefs, a crowd of 15,000 Fayette and Greene County coal diggers at a mass meeting yesterday shouted down district leaders, and greeted with loud "Noes," Gov. Gifford Pinchot's plea that they end the walkout begun three weeks ago.

Vociferously, they asserted they would remain on strike and use the weapon of picketing to keep mines closed until the H. C. Frick Coke Co. specifically recognizes the United Mine Workers.

Between 20,000 and 25,000 men went back to work in mines in Cambria, Indiana and Somerset counties, east of Pittsburgh, in the face of threats from the Fayette miners to picket those collieries.

He agreed with Pecora this would make banks "a bit more circumspect in their investments," and said his firm was considering making quarterly statements.

More Publicity Beneficial.

"If corporations were required to give more detailed information on their operations, it would be beneficial," he commented.

"It would give you a chance to judge the true value of securities."

Pecora asked whether, if detailed statements at intervals were required, it would cause any "inconvenience or hardship" on the bank. Dillon said it would not if the regulation did not call for too much information and at too frequent intervals.

"What about market quotations?"

"It probably would steady them because the investor would have a fairer judgment which would prevent violent fluctuations."

"Do pool operations cause violent fluctuations?"

"That is difficult to say, because unless the market is moving in one direction or the other it is difficult for a pool to affect it. If the market is moving one way or the other the operation of a pool might cause a fluctuation."

Asked if the commission charged by bankers was not larger on more risky securities, Dillon said the risk depended more upon the salability than intrinsic value.

THREE CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH IN HOME

Fire Near Plad, Mo., Set by Baby Playing With Matches.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 4. — Three children were burned to death yesterday near Plad, in Dallas County, in a fire started by an 18-month-old girl who was playing with matches.

The baby was fatally burned as were a brother, Clarence Bailey, 7 years old, and a sister, Ruth, 5. The home was destroyed.

The mother, Mrs. Claude Bailey, rose from her sick bed in an effort to rescue her children when she heard their screams. She is suffering from severe shock and burns. Clarence pulled Ruth from the blazing kitchen but both died on the way to a hospital here with their mother.

The Baileys have two other daughters, 9 and 4 years old.

THREE CONVICTED OF LUER KIDNAPING, SEEK NEW TRIAL

Attorneys for Fitzgerald and Mr. and Mrs. Chessen File Motions at Edwardsville.

Motions for new trials were filed in Circuit Court at Edwardsville today on behalf of Percy Michael Fitzgerald, Charles Chessen and Mrs. Lillian Chessen, convicted last Saturday as the kidnapers for ransom, of August Luer, Alton banker and meat packer.

The motion on behalf of Fitzgerald makes 30 allegations of error. It alleges that the punishment, life imprisonment, is excessive; the court erred in permitting Mrs. Luer to identify Fitzgerald as the man who knocked her down when her husband was abducted; the court erred in not granting severances to the various defendants, and in permitting Detective Sergt. Leonard Murphy to testify about a conversation with Fitzgerald in which the defendant admitted participation in the kidnaping.

The motions on behalf of Charles Chessen, whose sentence was fixed at five years, and his wife, Mrs. Lillian Chessen, on whom the jury imposed life imprisonment, were brief. They were mailed from San Antonio, Tex., by theri lawyer, Harold J. Bandy. No motions have been filed on behalf of the other three defendants, Mike Musiala, Randol Eugene Norvell and Christ Nicola Gitcho, also convicted.

Federal income tax liens for a total of $960.25 were filed today against Norvell. The liens, filed by Collector of Internal Revenue Becker, were for 1928 delinquent income tax, $407.83 and for additional tax, 1929, $552.42.

AERIAL TREASURE HUNTERS ARRIVE AT COLUMBUS, O.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 4.—Fifty-four airplanes landed here today on the third leg of the St. Louis-to-New York sportsman pilot's aerial treasure hunt.

The contestants, who flew into Cincinnati from Indianapolis late yesterday, paced by Helen McCloskey of Pittsburgh, were given puzzling instructions on how to find a huge letter "B" spread on the ground near Columbus. By solving veiled clews in verse, Miss McCloskey won 100 points and $50 by being the first to sight the letter "I" near Cincinnati. She now leads the treasure seekers, with P. J. Sones of Haines City, Fla., who won the St. Louis-Indianapolis leg and 100 points.

REGISTRATION TOMORROW FROM 8 A. M. TO 9 P. M. FOR SPECIAL BOND ELECTION

POLLING places in the city's 669 precincts will be open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. tomorrow for a supplementary registration of voters in preparation for the special bond election of Nov. 21.

All persons qualified to vote, who are not already on the registration books, may register tomorrow. This includes those who will be 21 years old by Nov. 21 and those who have moved since registering previously. The last registration totaled 385,012 and little change in the number is anticipated.

The special election is on a proposal to transfer a $1,500,000 bond item for an unnecessary rail approach of Municipal Bridge, so that the money may be used for part of the cost of the new Negro hospital and for other hospital buildings.

35 MEN KILLED FIGHTING FIRE IN LOS ANGELES PARK

canyon's rim. One of the two, a stalwart, had been pushing his fellow struggler upward when the blaze cut them down.

While a crew of men stood on high ground, arguing against their foreman's command that they rush to a lower level to aid a squad fighting flames, the fire at the lower point spurted into a sudden new fury and engulfed a dozen workers.

1000 Acres Burned Over.

The fire swept over 1000 acres of uninhabited land thickly studded with brush before it was controlled by hundreds of firemen and some 3000 drafted workers.

It spread rapidly with the aid of the customary afternoon wind from the ocean and a temperature of 91 degrees, the hottest October day in Los Angeles in nearly half a century.

This rugged country, sometimes the scene of motion pictures calling for such a setting, is about 10 miles from downtown Los Angeles.

"Our foreman ordered us to go to the lower level," said Michael Fernandez. "Someone shouted 'No.' While we were arguing a sheet of flame leaped up and covered the lower crew. A few seconds later the flames receded. The whole party below was dead."

In another section H. N. Claypool, a foreman, had a second to make a decision. He made it, and saved the lives of a score of men.

"I started to take my men into the path of the blaze to clear a break," Claypool said. "Something told me to hesitate. I gave the order to halt. In an instant a whirlpool of flame whipped across the spot where we would have been had we gone ahead. Eight men in a squad just beyond us were trapped. It was all over in an instant."

The men were pick and shovel workers, recruited from all walks of life in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation-Los Angeles County move to combat unemployment with park work. They were working on the roads of the park, largest in the Los Angeles recreational system, when they were ordered into the ravine and told to beat the fire out with the shovels and cut a fire break.

Mayor Frank L. Shaw ordered a thorough investigation of the circumstances which caused so great a loss of life. He said if carelessness or negligence is found, the city will co-operate with the county in fixing the responsibility. He promised also that the city would provide relief for the families of the victims.

A carelessly tossed cigarette was advanced as one possible cause of the fire.

The workmen were insured by the city under the State Compensation Act. On Sept. 12 the city notified the Board of Supervisors that this insurance, costing $8000 weekly, could not be carried beyond Oct. 5.

All Over in Seven Minutes.

"It was all over inside of seven minutes," said John Secor of West Hollywood, one of the survivors of the fire.

"The flames swept 50 feet high," he said. "I was on the spine of the ridge. I ran. A Negro staggered up out of the canyon. He collapsed. Another man on the ridge threw him over his shoulder and struggled on with his burden. Smoke billowed up. One time it opened up and I saw a man who had another on his back. The flames closed down upon him. He gasped and fell back. Other men were dragging their feet. shovels. If they had dropped them they could have run faster and maybe been saved. But none of us realized the speed of the fire. It came at us 20 miles an hour. The best a man could do through the brush was three miles an hour. You could tell the progress of the fire by the screams. It was all over inside of seven minutes."

HORNER CALLS MINE MEETING TOMORROW

Representatives of U. S., Both Unions, and Both Operators' Groups Asked to Attend.

Two Homes Bombed in Mine Disorders at Harrisburg.

By the Associated Press.

HARRISBURG, Ill., Oct. 4.—Disorders occurred last night in Harrisburg and Galatia in the bitter fight betwen the Progressive Miners' Union and the United Mine Workers for supremacy in the coal fields.

Dynamite bombs rocked two homes here and shattered windows while one man was wounded in Galatia.

A bomb shattered windows in the home of John H. Davis and damaged windows in six other homes about 3 a. m. Davis is said to be a United Mine Worker sympathizer.

Five minutes later another bomb was tossed at the home of Hugh McDole, a United Mine Worker employed at Peabody Mine No. 6 here. McDole, awakened by the first explosion, was up when the bomb was tossed at his home and fired several shots at the automobile from which it was thrown.

THOUSANDS HAIL VEILED PROPHET IN ANNUAL PARADE

Throngs Line Streets to Greet Mysterious Ruler on His Fifty-fourth Visit to St. Louis.

Through the balmy haze of perfect October weather, faintly tinged with the crisp scent of the dying leaf, the Veiled Prophet and his floats paraded brilliantly through the streets of St. Louis last night, before tens of thousands of his subjects.

The old gentleman, who was on his fifty-fourth annual visit, saw a huge crowd along the six-mile route, and saw it comfortably. No shivering under an inhospitable fall wind this year, and no need to glance up apprehensively at lowering clouds.

John Hoffmann, who has captained the Prophet's title float for years, declared often last night that it was the largest gathering to turn out in his time for the visit of the Seer of Khorassan. As far as Hoffmann was concerned, it made the going that much harder.

Difficult to Keep Crowd Back.

Hoffmann, who, unlike the other retainers of the Prophet, scorns a mask and works in his business clothes, had a pretty hard time of helping the mounted police put the crowd back, so that the Prophet could pass. He walked along briskly beside the title float, swinging a broomstick by its leather thong, uttering martial cries, and now and then stopping the police escort at the head of the column so the parade might hold together and not string out over too many blocks.

Hoffmann, whose duty is to keep the head of the parade moving, was not much impressed by the turnout. Too much trouble getting through and keeping on schedule. And one could never tell when some of the policemen's horses might step on spectators' feet.

The Prophet, whose comings and goings are mysterious, entered his den at Ranken and Laclede avenues from the east or south last night to board his glittering galley and could have had no foreknowledge of the great crowd that was awaiting him.

Beneath the garish bare bulbs in front of his St. Louis headquarters there were only a platoon of mounted policemen, smoking cigarettes beside placid horses, a few of the Prophet's heralds, resplendent in yellow, red and purple silks, and a few onlookers.

Start of the Parade.

When the policemen mounted and clip-clopped out into Laclede avenue just before starting time, the street was deserted except for a few of the Prophet's retainers whose duties keep them outside the den. As the horses' shoes struck fire from the paving of Laclede avenue, the first float, Hoffman's, rumbled out of the den and, lightless, drab under the bare bulbs, was dragged the few hundred feet to Laclede avenue by the Prophet's four henchmen at tow ropes.

While the escort waited a half block up Laclede, the rest of the floats were drawn from the den, each by four horses. Mummers, masked and garbed in the costumes appropriate to the theme of this year's parade, "A Journey Through Bookland," hung precariously to supports as the wagons bumped along the rough surface of Ranken avenue.

Magically the floats sprang into tri-colored brilliance as they were put on the car tracks on Laclede avenue and the trolleys were put to the wires. Spontaneously a murmur, high-pitched with children's voices, arose from the crowd, which had gathered. The prophet, sitting high in his golden galleon, took a grip on his scepter, and began to nod to his subjects with as much benignity as an old gentleman can show from behind a heavy veil.

The procession made its way westward, between the ranks of a throng that was eight to 12 deep on either side of the street. There were children everywhere, starry-eyed youngsters in father's arms or on shoulders, bright-faced tots who sat elbow to elbow at the curb, boys and girls of school age.

Creations from Fairyland.

West to Sarah street, north to Olive, then east as far as Grand boulevard, the old Seer passed through the section of the crowd that must annually bring the greatest joy to his heart. For here at the earliest sight of him are gathered the greatest number of children, murmuring in childish babble at the magnificence of the Prophet's retinue. The floats are contraptions of papier mache and electric bulbs to them, but glorious creations straight from Fairyland. No one, least of all the visitor from Khorassan, could fail to be moved at their joy in the sight of the man behind the veil.

In other years the crowd has been inclined to string out, sometimes to a single row along Laclede avenue west of Grand, but this year it thickened as the parade progressed and when the head of the retinue had reached Sarah street the mounted policemen had to go to work to clear a way through the throng, with Hoffman aiding them and doing the work of four horses and men.

North on Sarah street the crowd was jammed tightly, spilling over into the street and extending back to the building line. Many of the Prophet's adolescent subjects made their way to the tops of one-story shops and held their places there, some of them clinging precariously, while good-natured policemen tried without success to persuade them to come down.

Grand and Olive Throng.

Swinging east on Olive street, where the spectators are usually strung out thinly at the curbs, the parade passed through lines that were 10 deep, with greater overflow at points where high front yards offered points of vantage. At Grand boulevard, where the curvetting horses of the policemen and the Prophet's brightly garbed equerries had to be called forward to make way, the throng, tightly massed, extended for 100 feet into the cross-town street on either side of the procession.

Children were fewer from that point to the end of the six-mile route, but the number of the grownups was greater. Shouts and murmurs of the crowd took on a deeper note, punctuated by shrill screams as the horses of the mounted men picked their way daintily along the edge of the throng, forcing everybody back to a decorous distance.

Nowhere along the route from Grand boulevard east to Jefferson was the crowd less than six deep on each side of the procession. Along Jefferson avenue, it was jammed tightly between sidewalk and curb. Swinging east into Washington avenue, the Prophet could see as far east as Seventeenth street that the broad street was a sea of persons, through which presently his retainers were making a way for him.

Along the downtown section of the route irreverent youths are wont to blow dried peas and even birdshot at the Prophet's mummers, who are protected against such contingencies by steel masks, but this year there was none of that. Not once did Captain-of-the-Title-Float Hoffmann have to sally into the crowd brandishing his broomstick and uttering prodigious threats.

Many in Office Buildings.

In his course down the brightly-lighted stretches of Washington avenue the Prophet was greeted by cheers as he passed through a lane between eight to 20 ranks of his subjects. South on Broadway the crowd thinned out somewhat, but was still four or five deep. West on Olive street to Twelfth boulevard it was heavier. Hundreds watched from the windows of the office buildings and stores.

Beyond Twelfth boulevard on widened Olive street spectators were ranked from eight to 10 deep as far as Fourteenth, where they thinned out again to four or five ranks. Negroes began to predominate in the crowd as the procession turned south on Jefferson to Laclede avenue, and so they were until the Prophet had returned again to his den.

Again Ranken avenue was almost deserted. The floats were taken off the tracks, dropping back again into unlighted tawdriness. The Prophet's mummers, back in the den, climbed down stiffly from their places, doffed their costumes.

The Veiled Prophet mysteriously disappeared. Ben Hur, the Three Musketeers and Baron Munchausen, who had ridden in splendor in the first three floats behind the Prophet, became tired men in sack suits. The Lilliputians who had capered around a papier-mache Gulliver of massive proportions agreed with one another that it was a pretty tiring trip.

Ivanhoe and the Black Knight, who had carried on a broadsword duel from dummy horses over the six-mile route, rubbed their aching arms, while Uncas and Major Hayward from "The Last of the Mohicans" float, who had been standing all evening, walked up and down briskly.

Robinson Crusoe and his man Friday walked away together. Ali Baba and his Forty Thieves, Rip Van Winkle, Tom Sawyer, Don Quixote and Sancho Panza, and the Mad Hatter from the "Alice in Wonderland" float, hurried to their cars, tossing away cigarettes as they went. Thus also disappeared the mummers from the rest of the floats, "The Crisis," "Old Curiosity Shop," "Tarzan of the Apes," "Riders of the Purple Sage," "Grimm's Fairy Tales," "Beau Geste" and "Uncle Remus."

Where the Prophet went, to await the time for his final appearance of the year at tonight's ball, no one knows—or is supposed to know. But it is safe to say that after he got into his royal pajamas and crawled into his royal bed, he lay awake for a while, reflecting on the beauty of children's faces, as he had seen them bright with anticipation and with the reflected lights of his triumphal procession.

Fighting Conviction for Lotto Game

—By a Post-Dispatch staff photographer.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR PENNOCK,

WHO have appealed from six-month workhouse sentences, attending a meeting of lotto promoters and followers, at which plans were made to aid them in their appeal. The Pennocks were the first lotto game operators convicted in St. Louis on gambling charges.

LOTTO PROMOTERS TURN TO DANCING TILL COURT ACTS

At Mass Meeting, Arrange Benefit to Finance Appeal of Pair Convicted of Gambling.

Lotto promoters, mindful of the recent six-month Workhouse sentences imposed on Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pennock for operating a lotto game, have abandoned the field, at least until the higher courts have passed on the Pennocks' appeal, it became apparent last night when they met to make plans for aiding the Pennocks.

Mrs. Bess Finnegan, promoter of games at Carpenters' Hall, 1411 North Grand boulevard, where the meeting was held, said the professional operators would not attempt to conduct games. Mrs. Finnegan, herself under indictment on gambling charges based on lotto games, protested vehemently that the games were still being conducted by churches, fraternal organizations and other groups.

Since police and the Circuit Attorney's office have been active against lotto promoters, Mrs. Finnegan said, dozens of "house lottos" have sprung up and prospered. These are neighborhood gatherings in private homes where admission is charged and prizes are awarded.

The professional promoters have organized the "Equal Rights Club" to combat what they regard as discrimination and claim for it a membership of more than 1000. The club will give a benefit entertainment and dance at Carpenters' Hall, Sunday afternoon, to raise funds for the appeal of the Pennocks.

The Pennocks were found guilty of establishing a lottery by a Circuit Court jury about 10 days ago. They were the first lotto operators to be prosecuted in St. Louis and their case was regarded by the Circuit Attorney as a test.

Mr. and Mrs. Pennock reside at 3833A Page boulevard and were connected with lotto games held last winter at 3636 Page boulevard. They said the games were for the benefit of a veterans' organization and other groups.

Archbishop Glennon recently forbade churches of the diocese to sponsor lotto games for cash prizes or to advertise such games on church properties. These practices, his order said, "conflict with the civil law and the spirit of the church, and savor of commercialized gambling."

CLOTHING BUREAU'S BIGGEST MONTH, 30,592 HELPED

Office Unable to Supply 10,000 Garments Needed in September; Red Cross Aids.

Citizens' Committee Clothing Bureau, 815 North Broadway, distributed 111,727 garments among 30,592 men, women and children last month, more than were ever before helped in one month. The necessity of furnishing clothes for school children was a factor in enlarging the demand.

Mrs. Irving Bettman, director of the bureau, said it was unable to supply more than 10,000 garments needed during the month. The deficiency would have been greater, she said, had it not been for Government supplies turned over to the bureau by the Red Cross.

Contributions of outer garments and shoes are the bureau's greatest present need, Mrs. Bettman said. They may be taken there or will be called for if donors telephone CEntral 3365.

PENNY & GENTLES BUILDING RAZED TO REDUCE TAXES

Old Department Store Fourth Large Structure to Be Wrecked in Six Months to Prevent Levy.

The old Penny & Gentles five-story department store building, at the northwest corner of Broadway and Delmar boulevard (formerly Morgan street), is being razed by its owners to avoid payment of taxes on the obsolete structure. It is the fourth large St. Louis building ordered wrecked within the last six months for a similar reason.

The Southern Hotel, a landmark at Broadway and Walnut street for more than half a century, is to be torn down in the near future, its owners announced recently. It was closed as a hotel in 1912, and has stood vacant for 10 years.

A six-story factory building at the northeast corner of Twentieth and Locust streets, formerly occupied by the Smith & Davis Manufacturing Co., is being razed. The site of the old St. Louis Medical School, later the Washington University Medical School, on Locust street west of Eighteenth, is now a parking lot, the building having been demolished last spring.

A number of smaller unoccupied buildings also have been wrecked recently to reduce tax assessments, and their sites converted to parking lots. This use is being considered for the Southern Hotel and Smith & Davis properties.

Mayor Dickmann, who has joined with Comptroller Nolte in opposing a large bond issue at this time for public works, yesterday mentioned the recent wrecking of buildings to avoid tax payments, as further evidence that the tax burden on real estate has reached its limit.

Garage and Parking Lot.

The site of the Penny & Gentles building is to be used as a basement garage, with the concrete roof as a parking lot, according to Thomas L. Remley, secretary of the David Realty & Investment Co., owners.

The building, which occupied a quarter of the block and had an assessed valuation of $32,000, was built in 1892 for the Famous department store, whose building on the same site had been destroyed by fire the year before. The Famous company, which later absorbed Barr's and became Famous-Barr Co., removed to Sixth street and Washington avenue in 1907. Several years later Penny & Gentles moved into the Broadway and Morgan building and remained until the firm quit business in 1928.

Since then it was occupied for short periods by other retail firms establishments, but since 1930 has been vacant except for the first floor, which was used by a grocery and meat market.

Among other buildings demolished recently was a four-story structure occupying 61 feet on the west side of Third street, between St. Charles and Vine streets. This building, said to have been more than 75 years old, was "of no earthly use," according to John F. Shepley, one of the owners, except to necessitate payment of taxes on a $16,000 valuation. It was formerly used by a produce company and before that a furniture store. The site now, as in other cases, is used profitably as a parking lot.

Eyesore Is Removed.

A one-story brick building at the northeast corner of Twentieth and Chestnut streets, with an assessed valuation of $12,000, was torn down last spring. Formerly a tobacco warehouse, it has been "more of an eyesore than anything else" recently, according to J. B. Kennard, one of the owners. Part of the lot, 109 by 169 feet, is now used for parking.

Two three-story brick residences at 5227 and 5231 Delmar boulevard are being razed to make way for a parking lot in connection with an adjoining automobile firm. Elimination of taxes was a consideration in demolishing these buildings, according to officials of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., owners.

Other buildings torn down to cut taxes include a five-story former warehouse at 210-14 Washington avenue, demolished in 1931, and a group of buildings, one to four stories high, on the east side of Ninth street, between Marion and Barry streets, razed in 1930. The Washington avenue property is now a parking lot.

Owners report that wrecking companies are generally unwilling to demolish buildings free, in return for what they can salvage from them. Formerly the return on salvaged building material made wrecking jobs profitable.

Another Parking Lot in the Making

3 FORMER BANK TELLERS INDICTED ON U. S. CHARGES

Thomas A. McGrath, Robert E. Blum, and Frank J. Boundy Named.

Three bank tellers, against whom warrants had been issued previously, were indicted by the Federal grand jury yesterday, charged with violating the national banking laws by embezzlement, misapplication of funds and falsification of records.

They are Thomas A. McGrath, former teller for the Manchester Bank of St. Louis, 4011 Chouteau avenue, charged with embezzlement of $5385; Robert E. Blum, former teller at the Manchester Bank, charged with embezzlement of $1000; Frank J. Boundy, former teller at the West St. Louis Trust Co., 4101 Easton avenue, charged with embezzlement of $1373.

In the warrants McGrath was charged with taking $16,400 and Blum with misapplying $1132. When the warrants were issued last July, McGrath, 40 years old, resided at 4114 Alma avenue and Blum, 28, resided at 3526 Vista avenue. J. P. Hickok, vice-president of the Manchester Bank, said they had admitted the peculations, which were not connected. The bank was fully protected by surety bond.

Boundy was charged in a warrant last June with embezzlement of $1100. He resided at 4410A Richards place. The West St. Louis Trust Co., closed by directors Jan. 13, is being liquidated by the State Finance Department. The defalcation was alleged to have taken place in November, 1932.

SUIT TO VOID SALE OF MEADOWBROOK CLUB

Bond Holder Says Purchaser Paid for Less Than True Value.

Suit to set aside the sale of Meadowbrook Country Club to William Berberich was filed at Clayton today by former Circuit Judge Thomas L. Anderson, who alleges the purchase price is less than 30 cents on the dollar of the value of the property.

Berberich has refused to disclose the purchase price, but announced that, beginning Nov. 1 he would take over the golf club and operate it with night club features. He also announced he would seek outstanding golfers for appearance on the Meadowbrook course next year.

Judge Anderson, asking for an accounting, injunction and receivership, relates that in 1927 he bought $3000 worth of mortgage bonds in the club, which was then known as Midland Valley. A total of $200,000 in bonds was issued, secured by a mortgage on the 119 acres of club grounds.

The bonds came into default, but subsequently $40,000 of them were retired, the plaintiff asserts. Early in 1932 a bondholders' committee bought the property at foreclosure, and organized the Meadowbrook Golf Club and Tavern, Inc. Judge Anderson alleges the purchase was made with his bonds and those of other bondholders, which had been deposited at the request of the committee. To provide for operating capital, $65,000 was borrowed on deeds of trust on the property. Preston Bradshaw, architect, was engaged to operate the club under a contract, but the venture proved unsuccessful, according to Judge Anderson, and the new company lost $10,000.

Several months ago, according to the petition, a real estate dealer tried to arrange a sale for the property, which would have netted bondholders about 30 cents on the dollar, according to Judge Anderson. The deal was held in abeyance because of the opposition of the majority of the bondholders, and was followed by the reported sale to Berberich, which Judge Anderson holds is less attractive than the other offer.

The petitioner contends that those in charge of the property had no right to make a sale to Berberich. As defendants he names the club, Garfield J. Taussig and William F. Dowdall, former directors of the Bondholders' Committee, and Morris G. Levinson and Charles H. Hoyle, the present heads of the club. He points out that various taxes and interest payments are falling due, and asserts that the company is insolvent.

An order to show cause, returnable Oct. 13, was issued.

Veiled Prophet to Crown Queen at Coliseum Tonight

Musical Program, Beginning at 8 P. M. to Precede Arrival of Court at 54th Ball — German Prince Among Guests.

Ten o'clock is zero hour at the Coliseum tonight, when the Veiled Prophet will place a crown of platimum and spun silver on the head of his newly chosen Queen. Her name will become known at that time to the 7000 guests who will attend the Prophet's fifty-fourth annual ball.

The Prophet's name is never announced, and his identity is anybody's guess. Any prominent citizen who does not appear unmasked at the ball is open to the suspicion of being the Prophet or one of his masked and costumed attendants.

The Jefferson avenue entrance will be open at 7:30 o'clock for the invited main-floor guests, who are required to appear in evening dress. For men, this means swallow-tail coat preferably, and white waistcoat and tie invariably. For women, the requirement is simply and inclusively "costumes without hats."

Holders of gallery tickets, who may dress as they please, will enter by the Locust boulevard entrance, beginning at 7.

Arrival of the Court.

Orchestral music begins at 8 o'clock. A half-hour program of six numbers will be followed, at 8:30, by the arrival of the Ladies of Honor and Maids of Honor. First the 83 matrons, then the 49 young women, will be attended by escorts to their seats on the terrace of the Prophet's throne setting, at the south end of the Coliseum. Fifty-four maids have been designated, but the Queen and her four special maids of honor are reserved for a later appearance.

Miss Myrtle McGrew Lambert, reigning Queen of the past social season, who was crowned at the 1932 ball, will make the first of the formal individual entrances, being escorted from the Washington boulevard door to the Prophet's throne.

When she has been seated, the Prophet's Krewe, from last night's parade, will begin their entrance. They are masked as characters of the 19 works of fiction depicted in the street pageant, but without the floats they are just a line of grotesque figures of various countries and centuries. The Prophet's Guard of Honor usually appears at this time, and has some drilling to do.

The printed dance program next announces "Arrival of His Mysterious Majesty the Veiled Prophet, accompanied by his two High Priests, his Almoner, his Herald, and Master of the Crown Jewels." The Guard keeps near enough to the latter functionary to watch the jewels.

When the Prophet has greeted his retiring Queen, the Herald will begin his announcing. The fourth special maid of honor is called first, and has a processional of her own to the throne, where she receives a coronet from the Prophet. Then the third special maid, the second, and the first, announced and presented individually. The names of the four special maids, like that of the Queen, are not made public until their appearance.

The climax of the evening is then reached, with the Herald's loudly intoned announcement that "His Mysterious Majesty the Veiled Prophet, in his great wisdom, has selected the fairest maid of his beloved city of St. Louis to reign as Queen of his Court of Love and Beauty until his coming again," and that "He commands his loyal subjects to do homage to his Queen, Miss ....."

The new Queen is then escorted to the throne, receives her crown in a ceremony, conducted at a gracefully deliberate tempo, then accompanies the Veiled Prophet to the box reserved for former Queens 10 or 12 of whom are usually in attendance. There are 32 former Queens, including this year's retiring Queen, Miss Lambert, and 20 of them live in St. Louis and its suburbs.

About this time, dancing begins, and the Prophet, Queen, matrons and maids have the first dance with the maskers of the Krewe. Then the Queen and her maids will depart for the midnight supper at Hotel Jefferson, while the balcony guests will begin working down toward the dancing floor. The dancing usually continues several hours.

German Prince to Be Guest.

Prince Louis Ferdinand, second son of the former Crown Prince of Germany, will attend the ball, occupying a box with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bascom and Mrs. James Platt. He will attend the Queen's supper at the Jefferson, with Mr. and Mrs. Max Teich, and will be introduced to the debutantes by Miss Marie Eleanor Busch. He will go to a party at Bridlespur Country Club, arriving there at 2 a. m.

Guests driving to the Coliseum will show their tickets, at points along the way, to policemen who will route them on reserved streets. The regulations direct that automobiles from the west and north go east on Locust boulevard to Jefferson avenue; those from the south use Grand boulevard to Lindell boulevard, and thence into Locust; and those from the east go west on Pine boulevard to Leffingwell avenue, 2800 west, and north on Leffingwell to Locust, where they join the line. After discharging passengers, cars will proceed east to Twentieth street and will be assigned to parking places.

Traffic rules will apply also to those driving to Hotel Jefferson, after the ball. They will drive east on Washington avenue to Twelfth boulevard, south on Twelfth to Locust and west to the hotel entrance.

CEREMONIAL TIMETABLE FOR VEILED PROPHET BALL AT THE COLISEUM TONIGHT

CEREMONIAL events at the Veiled Prophet's ball in the Coliseum tonight will move on this approximate time schedule:

7:30—Main floor entrance on Jefferson avenue open.

8 to 8:30—Concert.

8:30 to 9—Entrance of Matrons and Maids of Honor.

9 to 9:05—Entrance of Reigning Queen, Miss Myrtle McGrew Lambert.

9:05 to 9:30—Entrance of the Guard of Honor and Krewe.

9:30 to 9:40—Entrance of Veiled Prophet.

9:40 to 10—Entrance of Special Maids.

10 to 10:10—Entrance and coronation of new Queen.

10:10 to 10:30—Guard maneuvers and promenade of court.

10:30 to 10:45 — Dance of Krewe with Matrons and Maids of Honor.

Victor S. Pearson Dies.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 4.—Victor S. Pearson, 45 years old, president of the State Association of Insurance Agents, died yesterday three hours after he was found unconscious in his automobile on the Little Rock-Hot Springs highway. Doctors attributed his death to a cerebral hemorrhage. Survivors include a sister, Mrs. Charles Hall, of St. Louis.

ENCEPHALITIS 'UNDER COMPLETE CONTROL'

U. S. Health Chief at Washington Reports on St. Louis Epidemic.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The epidemic of encephalitis in St. Louis is "under complete control," Surgeon-General Hugh S. Cumming of the United States Public Health Service announced today.

Dr. Cumming praised his officers in St. Louis, Dr. J. P. Leake, Dr. L. L. Williams Jr. and Dr. Bruce Mayne, who allowed themselves to be bitten by mosquitoes which had bitten encephalitis patients. In nearly three weeks' observation, none has shown the characteristic symptoms of the disease. Surgeon-General Cumming said it now seemed virtually certain that mosquitoes had nothing to do with spreading the epidemic, and that the indications, within the limits of that experiment, supported the original hypothesis of spread by personal contact.

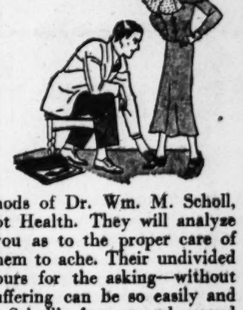

Another City Resident Dies of Sleeping Sickness.

Mrs. Julia Dougal, 63 years old, 6123 Suburban avenue, died of encephalitis today. Since the first death July 30 in the suburbs, the epidemic has resulted in the death—generally with complications or chronic disease—of 106 residents of the city and 83 residents of the county.

The third death of a resident of adjacent Illinois, that of William Jasper Rives, 68, occurred last night at a railroad hospital in St. Louis, where he was taken a week ago from his home in Dupo. Police are broadcasting in an attempt to notify his son, William D. Rives, who left Dupo last February.

TWO MEN SHOT DEAD WHEN THEY RUN FROM POLICE

One Negro Arrested in Auto, Breaks Away; Patrolman Fires Twice, Killing Him.

Two Negroes, one identified as an automobile thief, and the other as a holdup man, were shot to death early today as they attempted to flee from police in different parts of the city.

Joseph A. Wilson, 28 years old, was shot by Patrolman Glen Scism of the Carr Street Station at 1:10 a. m., soon after the officer had arrested him on a charge of attempting to steal an automobile. Charles Murray, also 28, was killed five minutes later by Patrolman Adolph Karrasch of the North Market Street Station when he ran to escape being questioned on a robbery charge.

Patrolman Scism was walking his beat near Blair avenue and Biddle street when he saw Wilson attempting to start a sedan parked in front of 1418 Biddle. Knowing the owner to be a white man, Scism asked Wilson what he was doing in the car. When Wilson professed to be the owner, Scism arrested him and took him to the patrol-box at Fourteenth and Biddle streets.

Fires Twice at Running Negro.

Scism reported that he had one hand on the patrol box and the other on the prisoner when the Negro broke loose and ran south on Fourteenth street. Calling twice to the fugitive to halt, Scism fired two shots and the man dropped to the sidewalk. Other officers, attracted by the shots, took the Negro to City Hospital, where he was pronounced dead of wounds in the left side and center of the back.

Police records show he had served two Workhouse sentences as the result of grocery burglaries. In February, 1931, he was caught attempting to break into a store at 1208 Biddle street, and in July, 1932, was captured inside a grocery at 700 North Fifteenth street. He had been arrested 12 other times. Joseph Stovall, 1418 (rear) Biddle street, owner of the automobile Wilson was trying to start, said he did not know Wilson and had given no one permission to move the car.

Murray was killed in an alley between Compton and Leonard avenues south of Easton avenue and identified later as one of two holdup men who robbed Julius Klearman, 1343A Montclair avenue, of his suit of clothes, shoes, $20 and a watch in front of 2920 Thomas street at 6:45 o'clock last night.

Patrolmen Get Tip.

Patrolman Karrasch and Patrolman John McCrady were in a scout car returning from a service garage when a Negro hailed them at Franklin and Leonard avenues and said, "Charley Murray, the man you're looking for in those stickups, is walking north on Compton avenue."

The officers drove to Compton and saw Murray walking just south of Easton avenue. As they stopped the car to question him, he started west in an alley. Karrasch followed, calling a halt twice. Murray turned south into another alley, disregarded three shots fired over his head and was hit in the back by one bullet. He leaped over three fences, ran through three yards and fell dead in a yard at 1034 North Leonard.

His body was identified by Klearman and also by a Negro who said he had bought from Murray a watch stolen in the holdup Monday night of Sterling Hackmann at Garrison avenue and North Market street. Both Klearman and Hackmann were held up by Negroes armed with knives.

Wearing only underwear, shirt, socks and hat after being robbed, Klearman drove his automobile to the Dayton Street Police Station and reported the crime.

NIGHT FLYER CROSSES COUNTRY IN 24 HOURS AND 26 MINUTES

M. J. Chumbley of New York Is Winner in Air Race.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Crossing the continent in two night flights with an elapsed time of 24 hours and 26 minutes, M. J. Chumbley, New York pilot, landed here today ahead of what was left of the starting field in the transcontinental night air race. He carried off first honors and $1500 prize money.

Merle Nelson of Los Angeles flew the two legs—Los Angeles-Wichita and Wichita-New York—in 30 hours 16 minutes for second place, with Frank Bowman Jr. of El Paso, Tex., third with an elapsed time of 30:41.

These three were the only ones of a starting field of seven to finish. The "darkness derby" was run as a preliminary event to the national air pageant here Saturday and Sunday.

VOLUNTARY BANKRUPTCY PLEA

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court today by Erwin C. Grenzebach, 34 Sunset court, Normandy, listing debts of $21,030 and assets of $10,025. Debts include $8300 in secured claims. Assets consist of $10,000 in real estate and $25 cash.

Grenzebach operates the Clover Leaf Potato Chip Manufacturing Co. from his residence.

SAVE YOUR NERVES !

Careful! Don't let our modern work-hard-play-hard way of living get the best of you. Avoid things that can rob nerves the wrong way...like the caffeine in ordinary coffee. This stimulant often overworks nerves and heart, aggravates high blood-pressure, causes sleeplessness.

Change to Kellogg's Kaffee-Hag Coffee! Blend of finest Brazilian and Colombian coffee beans. Can't possibly affect your nerves, because it's 97% free of caffeine. Kellogg spent $1,000,000 to develop the best way to take out the caffeine ... and made a surprising discovery! Removing the bitter caffeine freed the delicate flavor oils. Result: smoother, mellower coffee. Cook it strong. Never gets bitter, never loses its mellowness.

Make this test. Drink your fill of delicious Kaffee-Hag for three weeks. Watch your nerves grow calmer, your sleep sounder.

Ground or in the Bean... Roasted by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Vacuum packed. Buy it from your grocer. Satisfaction or your money back.

KILLED BY AUTO GOING HOME FROM PARADE

Barney Baker Hit When He Leaves Bus—St. Charles Merchant Held.

Barney Baker, 41-year-old employe of a downtown sandwich shop, was killed by an automobile last night as he got off a bus in front of his home, 7600 St. Charles road, on his return from the Veiled Prophet parade.

The driver, Jacob Sanofsky, merchant, 323 North Main street, St. Charles, was held under $2500 bond following the inquest.

Witnesses said Baker was starting across the road, from the north to the south side, when the left front fender of the automobile hit him and dragged him about 100 feet. His skull was fractured.

Sanofsky said he did not see the man before the car struck him.

STRIKERS TURN DOWN OFFER OF CLOTHING MANUFACTURERS

Workers Say Plan Fails to Provide for Recognition of Their Union.

A proposal of men's clothing manufacturers, offered through the NRA mediation board, was refused by members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union, on strike since Aug. 25, at a meeting today at the Gayety Theater.

The strikers objected that their demand for recognition of the union as their chosen representative for collective bargaining was not met; that they were given no assurance of re-employment and that approval of the proposal would permit the manufacturers to dominate workers.

Hyman Schnied, organizer, said the proposal was the first effort employers had made to settle the strike through the mediation board. Former employes who had not been arrested for peace disturbance would have been returned to work "as rapidly as requirements enable," and workers in each shop would have voted on bargaining through the union or through a company union but non-union workers employed now also would have been permitted to vote.

COUNCILMAN CAN'T BE A PAID OVERSEER

Attorney-General Holds Appointment by Palmyra, Mo., Council Is Illegal.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 4.—Appointment of a councilman by the City Council of Palmyra to receive compensation for overseeing construction of a new sewer in Palmyra was illegal, the Attorney-General's department ruled yesterday.

John W. Hoffman Jr. an Assistant Attorney-General, who wrote the opinion, approved by Roy McKittrick, Attorney-General, ruled that it "would be unlawful for the City Council to appoint a councilman to oversee the building of a new sewer line and receive compensation therefor."

"The attendant evils to any other conclusions," Hoffman wrote, "would be such as to undermine the very principles of our government and would be in direct conflict with public policy." H. M. Phillips, Mayor of Palmyra, requested the ruling.

Any city officials who directly or indirectly is interested in any contract under the city or any of its institutions, makes himself criminally liable and at the same time liable to dismissal, from office, McKittrick also ruled today.

The opinion was written by Frank W. Hayes, an Assistant Attorney-General, in reply to a query by L. B. Boicourt of Carterville.

THREE WOMEN AND BABY BECOME VIOLENTLY ILL

Cause Undetermined; Stricken in Rooming House; Had Detected Odor of Sewer Gas.

Three women and a baby were taken to City Hospital this morning from a rooming house at 2338 Hickory street after becoming violently ill from an undetermined cause.

The attack in each instance started with nausea, and two of the women became delirious. The face of each was puffed on arrival at the hospital. All responded to treatment, and their condition is not considered serious. They reported that there had been an odor of sewer gas in the house several days.

The women were Mrs. Percy Pauls, 22 years old; Mrs. Ivy Baker, 17, and Miss May Bailey, 17. Mrs. Pauls' son, Percy Jr., 19 months old, also was affected. Police are investigating sanitary conditions in the house.

FIVE IN CITY JOBS 28 YEARS OR MORE FIRED

13 of 18 on Police and Telegraph Force Dismissed at Once.

Thirteen of the 18 employes of the Fire and Police Telegraph Department, which has charge of reporting and transmitting fire alarms, have been discharged by the city in the turnover of jobs caused by the new administration. Five of those let out have been there 28 years or longer, one almost 40 years.

The men have been discharged gradually while new men were being trained in their jobs. Whether the five remaining old employes will remain is problematical, but Mayor Dickmann has announced that he intends to fill every job with a Democrat.

Those discharged in the Fire and Police Telegraph Department and their term of service are as follows: Andrew J. O'Reilly, superintendent, 2207 South Grand boulevard, 8 years; Benjamin F. Badger, chief operator, 5961A Minerva avenue, 37; Charles W. Hammond, 1015 Forest avenue, 39; Peter Scherzinger, 4225 Maryland avenue, 30; Charles Sadring, 2906A Greer avenue, 28; Charles Zimmerman, 4231 Laclede avenue, 28; Carty Schnurr, 6103 Gambleton place, 2; Louis Badger, 5961A Minerva avenue, 4; Edward G. Jacoby, 2123 Portis avenue, 7; Christian C. Geisel, 4126 Clayton avenue, 14; George L. Hausner, 3304 Texas avenue, 12; August Johnson, 2511 South Kingshighway boulevard, 2; and John J. Zumsteg, 2539 West Sullivan avenue, 5 months.

O'Reilly, a Republican, was president of the old Board of Public Improvements, and was at one time City Supervisor of Public Lighting. He served two terms on the State Public Service Commission before being appointed to his post in the Fire and Police Telegraph Department by Mayor Miller.

GOOD FAITH ISSUE IN VANDEVENTER BANK $72,000 SUIT

Judge Faris So Comments in Taking Receiver's Action Against Directors Under Advisement.

The suit in which Joseph F. Holland, receiver for Vandeventer National Bank, is seeking $72,000 from eight of its directors was taken under advisement by Federal Judge Faris today after a two-day hearing.

The amount sought by Holland is a 100 per cent assessment against 720 shares of stock in the bank which were in the name of a holding company owned by these directors. He charges the holding company was merely a device through which the directors sought to escape the possibility of assessment under the old double liability clause of the national banking laws.

In taking the case under advisement, Judge Faris remarked that it hinged solely on the question of good faith. He pointed out that none of the defendants ever owned as individuals the bank stock involved in the holding company deal.

Each of the defendants denied that the holding company was devised to evade the possibility of an assessment against stockholders, and declared its purpose was to facilitate the elimination of a $35,000 impairment in the bank's capital.

Four defendants who were witnesses today are: L. E. Dorr, Edgar L. Miche, W. B. Knight and W. N. Matthews. Each of them, questioned by their counsel, Frank Y. Gladney, testified they had continued to make deposits in the bank up to the time it failed. On cross-examination it was brought out that all except Dorr owed money to the bank at the time it failed.

Four defendants testified late yesterday, J. B. Corby, Rhodes E. Cave, Max Lippmann and Jesse Wolfort, said they knew when the holding company was formed that the bank's capital was impaired, but declared they had no knowledge that the bank was insolvent. There was no mention of the possibility of an assessment against stockholders in the discussions which led to the formation of the holding company, they said.

The holding company, as the evidence showed, was formed in May, 1931, to buy 1315 shares of the bank's stock at $80 with the intention of reselling it at $110. The difference was to be a contribution to the bank to restore a capital impairment of about $35,000 caused by bond depreciation and bad loans.

Not all of the stock had been resold when the bank was closed in January, 1932, but three customers of the bank related from the witness stand how they came to buy the stock on which they are now required to pay a 100 per cent assessment.

Dr. David L. Penney, a physician of 4440 Lindell boulevard, said W. C. Anderson, vice-president of the bank, approached him about the time the Metropolitan Holding Co. was organized with a proposal to "let him in on the ground floor." Penney said Anderson told him the bank was in excellent condition and had some stock that it was offering to its friends.

Anderson told him, Dr. Penney said, that by Christmas his investment should double in value and persuaded him to take 10 shares for $1100. The doctor posted collateral and borrowed money from the Vandeventer Bank to pay for the stock.

Edward M. David, a house mover, 5339 Pershing avenue, testified the stock he acquired was sold to his account at the bank without his knowledge. He had refused an offer to buy stock made by W. C. Johnson, president of the bank, David said, but later Anderson asked him to sign an agreement in which stockholders contracted to sell their stock back to the bank if they should decide to sell.

David protested that he was not a stockholder, but looking over his checks later, he said, found that his account had been debited for $1100 to pay for the stock. "And that," he said, "is how I happened to be a stockholder."

The testimony of another physician, who bought stock at the request of a teller, was excluded because it was not shown that the teller was acting as agent for the defendants. This witness said that at the teller's suggestion he had borrowed money from the bank, using Government bonds as collateral, to pay for 10 shares of the stock.

Anderson testified he had bought 40 shares of the stock for himself, borrowing the money from a friend. He denied that the condition of the bank had been misrepresented when the stock was sold.

Holland contends the defendants organized the holding company to evade the possibility of the double liability assessment then provided under the national banking law. The defense statement is that it was necessary to borrow money to buy the 1315 shares of the bank's stock and that no individual was willing to assume responsibility for that loan.

A former national bank examiner, John Lilly, testified he conducted an examination of the bank in March and April preceding the formation of the holding company in May, 1931. He found, he said, $58,000 in bad loans, $7000 in doubtful loans, and $384,000 in loans which he criticised as an unwarranted extension of credit. Total loans of the bank at that time, he said, were $1,539,000.

LOEB AND LEOPOLD ENJOY A PARTY TILL OFFICIALS COME

Found in Cell With Two Other Chicago Murderers, Both of Whom Are Drunk.

By the Associated Press.

JOLIET, Ill., Oct. 4.—Four Chicago murderers were found in a penitentiary cell Monday night, apparently enjoying a convivial party.

Nathan Leopold Jr., and Richard Loeb, the boy murderers of Bobby Franks, were two of the visitors. Their excuses for paying a call were not so lame as the others and prison physicians said they were not drunk, so the Warden just sent them back to their own quarters.

Robert Scott, a life-termer, and George Sullivan, in for 14 years, both intoxicated, were ordered into solitary confinement. No liquor was found in the cell.

Leopold and Loeb excused themselves with the explanation that they were delivering papers in the penitentiary correspondence school course and books from the prison library.

The four were found in Scott's cell.

HARRY B. WALLACE HEADS CITIZENS' RELIEF COMMITTEE

President of Cupples Co. Succeeds Robert L. Lund in the Welfare Post.

Harry B. Wallace, president of the Cupples Co., and chairman last year of the Mayor's Committee of 600 which conducted the successful campaign for the $4,600,000 bond issue for unemployment relief, has been appointed chairman of Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment.

He succeeds Robert L. Lund, chairman since August, 1932, who submitted his resignation to Mayor Dickmann because of the pressure of other duties. Lund is president of the National Association of Manufacturers, a member of the NRA Advisory Board for Industry, and has spent much of his time in Washington.

The Mayor said the committee would ask Peter Kasius, general manager of the Provident Association, to become its director. E. G. Steger resigned as director recently to devote himself to his duties as director of the Community Fund and Council and of United Relief, Inc.

GRAND JURY FAILS TO INDICT

No True Bill in Case of Ralph Stanley Jr. in Auto Fatality.

The grand jury yesterday returned a no true bill in the case of Ralph Stanley Jr., 22-year-old salesman, 5515 Cabanne avenue, who had been held in connection with the death of Taylor Green, Negro laborer. Green was injured fatally when struck by Stanley's car last Aug. 31.

Witnesses testified Stanley's car was hit by another at Compton and Lucas avenues, causing his machine to run up on the curb and strike Green.

SHIP LINE TRIED TO ADVANCE MAN ON FEDERAL BOARD

Wanted J. Caldwell Jenkins Made President of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Efforts of the Black Diamond Line to have J. Caldwell Jenkins elevated from the vice-presidency to the presidency of the Emergency Fleet Corporation were looked into today by the Senate committee investigating ocean mail contracts. Jenkins, after he left the Fleet Corporation, became a vice-president of the Black Diamond Line, a post he now holds.

Senator Black (Dem.), Alabama, chairman of the investigating committee, placed in the record a cablegram from an associate of J. E. Dockendorff, president of the Black Diamond Line, stating, "Donovan advises he has done all he can to aid Jenkins." The reference was to Col. William J. Donovan, former Assistant Attorney-General under Republican administrations, who later was engaged by Dockendorff as counsel.

"Now, how about this matter?" Black asked.

"We certainly did all we could," Dockendorff answered, "to help Mr. Jenkins, because we believed in his fairness and integrity."

Black, reading from another piece of the Dockendorff correspondence, said the Shipping Board was composed of "seven men, five usually voting together." These five, the letter said, did not include Chairman T. V. O'Connor and Vice-Chairman Plummer.

Senator King (Dem.), Utah, committee member, asked:

"Do you mean the board was factional?"

"Yes, practically that," the witness replied.

MACHINE GUN KELLY TO PLEAD GUILTY, HIS ATTORNEY SAYS

Lawyer Asserts Husband Will Appear as Witness for Wife in Kidnaping Trial.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Oct. 4.—George (Machine Gun) Kelly will plead guilty to the Government's charge he kidnaped Charles F. Urschel, but Kathryn Kelly will stand trial, with her husband appearing as a witness for her, John Roberts, defense attorney, said today.

Roberts made his announcement following a long conference with Mrs. Kelly in the heavily guarded county jail, where five convicted Urschel kidnapers, including Harvey Bailey and Albert Bates, are held waiting to be sentenced next Saturday.

Roberts quoted Mrs. Kelly as saying she would file a lawsuit to prevent the $15,000 reward, offered for the capture of herself and her husband, from being paid to "anybody else." Roberts indicated she meant to claim the reward on the grounds she had planned to surrender before Government agents surprised the two in their Memphis hiding place last week.

Washington Star Announces Action After Protest Is Filed Against Columbia System.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4. — In retaliation for what it called "unwarranted invasion of the newspaper field" by the Columbia Broadcasting System, the Evening Star announced yesterday that it had discontinued publication of the programs of WJSV, local Columbia station.

Charges were filed with the Federal Radio Commission last week by Indiana police that a Columbia news broadcast of an alleged police hunt for escaped prisoners was a fake. The charges later were withdrawn.

ALAN DINEHART SETTLES SUIT

Defendant in $250,000 Breach of Promise Action.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4.—A settlement out of court has ended the $250,000 breach of promise suit filed against Alan Dinehart, Hollywood screen actor, by Betty Kaege, former Follies dancer. A dismissal of the suit was on file in Superior Court today.

Miss Kaege filed the suit Aug. 31, after Dinehart had married Mozelle Brittonne, screen actress. She charged Dinehart had promised to marry her after a divorce from his former wife.

Dr. E. J. Scott Asks for "Square Deal in Every Code."

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Dr. Emmett J. Scott, secretary of Howard University and a special assistant to the Secretary of War during the World War, last night asked for a "square deal in every industrial code under the NRA" for Negroes.

East Side Fugitive Caught.

Word has been received by Sheriff Munie at Belleville of the arrest in Chicago of Charles Holzmeier, charged with being the leader of a quartet of men participating in a series of robberies in St. Clair, Madison and Randold counties, Illinois. Holzmeier's alleged confederates, including his brother, Oliver, Gus Greenfield and Joe Cadell, are held at Belleville jail.

TWO WOMEN AND FIVE MEN ARRESTED IN LOTTERY INQUIRY

Two women and five men were arrested by Soulard District police yesterday in an investigation of a raffle conducted under the name of the "Hooverville Industries."

About $100 worth of tickets had been sold on a radio by persons who, police say, represented themselves as physicians. Officers say they were informed that "Hooverville, Industries," was to get 50 per cent of the proceeds and the promoter and solicitors were to split the remainder. Attention was called to the raffle by the Better Business Bureau.

The prisoners were booked suspected of obtaining money under false pretense and establishing a lottery. All furnished bond.

CASHIER ROUTS ROBBERS IN VERGENNES, ILL., HOLDUP

Picks Up Pistol and Returns Fire of Intruder; Men Escape; Nobody Shot.

VERGENNES, Ill., Oct. 4. — An attempt to rob the Vergennes State Bank was frustrated yesterday by the bank cashier, Roy Allard.

Two men entered the bank, one of them asking for change for a $1 bill. As Allard began making the change, one robber drew a revolver and said, calmly: "This is a holdup."

Instead of complying with the demand, Allard seized a pistol in his cage and when the robber fired at him, returned the fire. The bullet intended for Allard missed its mark.

The men fled in a Ford automobile, bearing a Missouri license. They were reported heading for St. Louis.

FREAK IDEAS ON CAUSE OF 'SLEEPING SICKNESS'

In Other Letters, Writers Offered to Sacrifice Selves, Health Official Discloses.

The ridiculous, the most shocking sort of commercialism, and the heroic desire to sacrifice oneself for mankind, were represented in hundreds of letters to the Health Department in the encephalitis epidemic, Assistant Health Commissioner Paul J. Zentay said in a radio address last night.

They came from most of the states, from Canada, Mexico, England, Holland, Germany and Austria, in a flood which obviated any attempt to answer any except the more important communications of physicians and health authorities, or the letters of laymen with a human element which could not be ignored.

Most of them, offering sympathy, suggestions or even the sacrifice of life, Dr. Zentay remarked, indicated that "the country at large must have considered this epidemic a major calamity, and responded to it as to an earthquake or a tornado."

Some of Theories Advanced.

Every conceivable theory was advanced as to cause—beer, the "kissing bug," the need of county sewers, the drouth, the use of aluminum ware, the malice of foreign nations or the "spirit world," visitors from Africa and the animals in the Zoo.

"It does not matter," commented Dr. Zentay, "that all these theories were absolutely wrong. It still is encouraging to know that so many people read the newspapers and have some form of opinion, and are even able to reason out a few things."

"The fact that the name, 'sleeping sickness,' was used in the press caused more trouble and complication than any other factor," he said. "You can nicely and easily trace from the letters the working of the minds of those who wrote to us. You can see how they read up in the encyclopedias or some other book they happened to have and found the description of the African 'sleeping sickness' caused by the trypanosoma (an altogether unrelated disease to this) and how they based all their further theories on this information."

Theories on Tsetse Fly.

Some of them sent pages torn from medical books or travel magazines on African "sleeping sickness," he related. They theorized of many possibilities for the importation of the African tsetse fly to St. Louis, including the man-eating Komodo lizard that died at the Zoo last spring, and missionaries home on furlough. An Indian princess in Florida, Dr. Zentay added, gave an elaborate theory of mutations of the tsetse fly, found only near surface water in a sharply defined section of Africa, which might allow it to propagate in this climate.

"The repeal of prohibition and the appearance of beer apparently impressed the ardent prohibitionists as one of the factors leading to this epidemic," he remarked. "In a recent letter it was even suggested that beer imported from Japan contained poisonous germs implanted intentionally by the Japanese."

The chemically inclined dwelt on the possibility of poisons generated in the body or outside, while some spiritualists insisted it was nothing in the mind, but "some form of psychic or psychological infection."

Some Sought Cash in Advance.

Dozens offered to come to St. Louis and demonstrate their 'cures,' many free of charge, but some only in consideration of improbable sums of money in advance. Most striking, he said, was a New Yorker who offered to sell his "secret" for $100,000 and enlarged on the profits the health authorities might pocket if they handled it "judiciously."

"It was a most amazing example of how many cure-alls could be found on short notice," Dr. Zentay commented. "The office was bombarded with samples of all descriptions, each capable of curing every possible disease, including encephalitis."

The serious and carefully reasoned suggestions of physicians, most on false premises, were nearly as numerous, he remarked. One connected the epidemic with Malta fever and another with malaria. Suggestions with merit were turned over to the research committee.

Many Offer Selves for Test.

Newspaper mention of a "serum," he related, was followed by offers of persons from all parts of the country to come to St. Louis and give blood if it would be of any value in treatment. Many offered themselves for experiment. Most of them were young, and many wrote that they appreciated the seriousness of the hazards. None could be accepted, since the Metropolitan Health Council, he explained, required careful control for its experiments, possible only in such circumstances as the recently begun experiment with Mississippi convicts to determine if mosquitoes may transmit the disease.

"We had to suffer fanatics and cultists who used the occasion to vent their wrath, and they did not spare words in abusing medical science and the medical profession," he said. "Many of them suggested that as long as we had no specific 'cure' the best thing would be to turn these people over to the chiropractors and osteopaths and others for treatment.

"Various electrical apparatus and all kinds of quack treatments were suggested. To all this we could offer nothing but our patience and indulgence.

"On the whole, these various reactions of people were the most interesting by-product of the unusual epidemic that we went through in St. Louis. Often it amused us, often it hurt us, but it was almost always stimulating and instructive. We have all these documents on human psychology and we are going to preserve them."

RULES LEGISLATURE MUST REORGANIZE

Missouri Attorney - General Holds Officers Must Be Elected for Special Session.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 4.—Adjournment of the fifty-seventh General Assembly on April 25 dissolved organization of the two branches of the Legislature, making it necessary to reorganize at a special session, Attorney-General Roy McKittrick ruled yesterday.

"It is the opinion of this department that when the fifty-seventh General Assembly of 1933 adjourned April 25, 1933, sine die, it was the dissolution of that organization, and that in the event the Governor exercises his power and calls an extra session it will be necessary to re-elect officers who presided over the fifty-seventh General Assembly or to elect officers in their places," Olliver W. Nolen, an Assistant Attorney-General, held in an opinion approved by McKittrick.

The opinion was written in reply to a request for a ruling from Mrs. Grace Shay, chief stenographer of the fifty-seventh General Assembly, who asked if the elective officers of the regular session would be called back to act or if new officers would be elected

Although there has been a move among a group of Legislators opposing the Meredith-Keating leadership in the House to elect new officers, the movement apparently has not gained much headway. W. H. Meredith, Poplar Bluff, speaker during the last regular session, and Edgar J. Keating, Kansas City, majority floor leader, are expected to again lead the lower House.

There has been no move to overthrow the leadership of Michael Kinney, St. Louis, as speaker pro tem of the Senate, and Senator Phil M. Donnelly, Lebanon, as majority floor leader in the upper branch.

POLITICIANS' CONVENTION HESITATES TO CONVENE

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 3.—The Missouri State, County and City Officers' first annual convention was scheduled to open yesterday morning in the American Legion home here. Elaborate preparations had been made. The advertisement-filled program announced prominent speakers. Seats for more than 1500 had been provided.

William Robert Burns, Lieutenant-Governor of Oklahoma, had arrived to be the chief speaker.

When only six city and county officials had appeared at 10:15 o'clock, the Lieutenant-Governor remarked:

"It looks as if I had come on a snipe hunt, doesn't it?" The Oklahoma dignitary had left important business, he said. He paid his own expenses, too. After a brief session late in the day, the second day's meeting was disbanded.

"I'm not taking any responsibility for the Executive Committee," Charles C. Hon, County Recorder, of Moberly, said emphatically. "I see by the program that I'm on it but I know nothing about it."

PURSE TAKEN FROM WOMAN DURING THE V. P. PARADE

Visitor From Flat River Robbed in Crowd at Thirteenth and Olive Streets.

Miss Thelma Feeney, Flat River, Mo., was robbed of her purse, contaning $4 and a railroad ticket, while making her way through the Veiled Prophet crowd near Thirteenth and Olive streets last night. She reported that a Negro seized the purse and fled.

While the family was absent at the parade, burglars entered the residence of Cleveland Miller, 6607 Arsenal street, and stole a revolver and jewelry valued at $25.

Mrs. Nellie Rorke, 5322 Savoy court, was robbed of her purse, containing $4, by a youth while walking in the 5500 block of Delmar boulevard yesterday afternoon.

U. S., Britain to Discuss War Debt.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—In a conference today at the State Department between Secretary Hull and British representatives, arrangements were made for beginning discussion of Great Britain's war debt to the United States at the Treasury Department at 10 a. m. tomorrow. The negotiations on behalf of the United States will be handled by Dean Acheson, Under-Secretary of the Treasury, and Frederick Livesey, assistant economic adviser of the State Department.

Over Entire L. & N. System

In April, this railroad announced that it would conduct a six months' experimental period of drastic passenger fare reductions, lowering its rates to 2¢ per mile in coaches and 2¢ per mile each way for round trip tickets for transportation in parlor and sleeping cars, and 3¢ a mile for transportation in Pullmans where one-way tickets are bought. (When parlor or sleeping cars are used cost of space is extra). Announcement was made that the continuation of these experimental fares would be dependent upon their reception by the traveling public and the management is now glad to say that due to the encouraging response given to these fares the experiment will be continued for another six months beginning with October 1st and ending with March 31st.

CAPITAL INDUSTRIES LEAD IN RE-EMPLOYING

Makers of Producers' Goods Ahead of Concerns Manufacturing for Consumers.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Industries making producers' or capital goods out ran industries producing consumers' goods in rate of employment recovery from March, 1933, to August, according to an analysis of United States Department of Labor indices made by the National Industrial Conference Board.

In a representative group of capital goods industries employment increased 29.2 per cent and payrolls 44 per cent, while in consumers' goods industries employment gained 16.9 per cent and payrolls 25.9 per cent.

In 1929 producers' goods employed 2,800,000 persons with a payroll of $4,806,000,000 and consumers' goods industries gave work to 9,500,000 persons at $11,200,000,000.

In the three-year decline from the 1929 peak, employment and payroll in capital goods industries dropped proportionately faster than employment and payrolls in consumers' goods industries.

Employment in consumers' goods industries declined with seasonal irregularities from the high point of 109.6 in December, 1929, to the low of 69.7 in March, 1933, while employment in producers' goods industries dropped from the high of 111 in August, 1929 to the low of 31.8 in March, 1933.

Advance Since March.

Since March, 1933, the advance of employment has been notable, the August figure at 81.5 per cent of the 1929 level being nearly as large as the previous December.

The course of payrolls in consumers' goods industries has followed the course of employment, although fluctuations have been smaller and the decline has been greater.

Workers' incomes declined more than their number, due in part to a lessening of the hours of work per week and in part, to a reduction of wages rates.

Since March, 1933, there has been an increase in payrolls, which in August stood at 62.7 per cent of the 1929 figure, an advance of about 26 per cent, and in the same period employment increased about 17 per cent. From July to August, 1933, payrolls increased 8.3 per cent and employment rose 4.6 per cent.

Early Employment Drop.

In capital goods industries as early as January, 1930, employment had dropped more than 10 per cent below the average level of the previous year and nearly 20 per cent below the level of August, 1929.

Since March, 1933, when employment was only 31.8 per cent of the average level of 1929, there was a continuous advance, and at 41.1 per cent of the 1929 level, in August, 1933, employment had advanced by over one-fourth, 29.2 per cent, over the March level.

Total payrolls decreased with the same regularity as employment, but even more rapidly. In March, 1933, payrolls were only 18.2 per cent of the average level of 1929.

A subsequent recovery of about 44 per cent over the March level brought them in August, 1933, to 26.2 per cent of the level of 1929.

ON ENGLAND-AUSTRALIA FLIGHT

Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith Takes Off at Lympne.

By the Associated Press.

LYMPNE, England, Oct. 4.—Wing Commander Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian aviator, took off today for Australia in his new airplane, the Miss Southern Cross.

He said he was not aiming at setting a new record, but if he surpasses the time of eight days, 20 hours and 47 minutes C. W. A. Scott took for the distance in April, 1932, it would be incidental. Sir Charles, whose air exploits include long flights in all parts of the world, started planning the present trip in February of this year.

SMILE AGAIN!

Do you ever worry about bleeding gums, mouth infection or pyorrhea? Forget those threats! Protect The Danger Line and be happy about your teeth!

WOULDN'T it be a real relief to stop worrying about your teeth and gums? To know that they are as safe as possible from danger?

Complete, balanced protection is the answer. And Squibb's Dental Cream—5-way guardian of The Danger Line—gives you such protection. With regular care by your dentist—and Squibb's on guard—you can forget fear and smile at threats.

Squibb's Dental Cream cleans effectively and polishes safely, with absolute freedom from grit. It helps to prevent bleeding of the gums by safe cleansing, not by the use of astringents or other irritants. It combats the germ acids that cause tooth-decay. And its use is true economy.

You'll like Squibb's. It is clean and refreshing to the taste—a joy to use. Children love to keep their teeth clean and shining bright with this delightful dentifrice.

But most of all, you'll like the comforting sense of security that comes from using a dentifrice you can trust.

★ The Danger Line is the area where the thin edge of the gum encircles each tooth. Here food particles collect and bacteria multiply, generating acids. These acids which attack the tooth-structure, also constantly irritate the gum tissues. Nearly all gum diseases are due to the effects of germs and irritation caused by ineffectual cleaning. Not one, but all your teeth are endangered when gums and teeth are unclean. And when you use Squibb's Dental Cream, you force into the sheltered areas countless antacid particles which combat the germ acids and protect the gums.

SQUIBB'S DENTAL CREAM

5-WAY GUARDIAN OF THE DANGER LINE

When your dentist advises sodium perborate, ask for Squibb's Oral Perborate and use it as he directs. It is pure, effective, more pleasant-tasting. A unique double-purpose cap on the handy bottle is a real convenience. Remove small cap for sprinkling on tooth-brush. And to make a solution, unscrew the entire cap and use for a measure.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Stocks had one of their best sessions in several weeks today as leading metal, alcohol and rail issues spurted 2 to around 7 points. The upturn was attributed largely to the obviously over-sold condition of the market, with professionals accounting for the major part of the transactions. The close was strong. Transfers approximated 2,000,000 shares.

There was a buying rush just after the opening that sent many shares up 1 to around 4 points. For a while the ticker tape was behind.

The feverish pace slowed down later, although there was no appreciable reaction in the dullness. The forward dash was resumed in the last half hour and all categories joined in another fast advance. Although wheat finished with gains of 1½ cents a bushel, other grains were hesitant. Cotton and other commodities were fairly firm. Bonds, especially some classes, followed stocks. The dollar, at the same time, advanced against leading European exchanges.

Shares of Union Pacific and National Distillers were up around 8 points each, Homestake Mining jumped 18 and Celanese advanced 6. Others up around 3 to 5 included U. S. Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, American Commercial Alcohol, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, New York Central, Santa Fe, Delaware & Hudson, Western Union, Allied Chemical, American Telephone, Chrysler Johns-Manville, U. S. Steel, du Pont, Case, Bethlehem Steel, Consolidated Gas, General Motors Sears Roebuck and Westinghouse. Many stocks were up a point or more.

Final gains in wheat ranged from 1⅜ to 1¾ cents a bushel. Corn, however, was unchanged to ¼ of a cent lower. Oats ended ⅜ of a cent lower to ⅛ higher.

Rye and barley gained ⅛ to ¾ of a cent a bushel. Cotton moved up 45 to 60 cents a bale. Bar silver firmed ⅛ of a cent at 38⅞ cents.

The British pound sterling declined 2 cents at $4.76¾ for Cables. The French franc eased .01¼ of a cent at 6.06¾ cents; Dutch guilders declined 1.10 of a cent at 62.55 cents, and Belgian belgas and Swiss francs were moderately lower. German marks, the Scandinavians, Canadian dollars and Japanese yen eased.

News of the Day.

Many traders, believing that railroad stocks form the real market barometer, having been closely studying the statistical position of the carriers. The recent rise in merchandise loadings to a new high for the year, in the face of a decrease in other freight classifications, is being viewed with much satisfaction. In some instances, it is believed, roads reporting aggregate loadings somewhat under a year ago may show actual increases in gross revenues because of the higher class rates obtained from miscellaneous shipments in comparison with coal and grain.

Weekly Trade Summaries.

The signing of 17 codes by the President, together with administrative preparations to release the huge deposits in closed banks throughout the country were cheerful indications to Wall street. The conference of the President with Secreary Woodin and George L. Harrison, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, was believed in some quarters to presage important developments in the credit expansion program and to further lessen the chances of currency inflation.

While "Iron Age," in its review of the steel industry, reported that the production average for the country has risen slightly.

Electric power production for the week ended Sept. 30 was reported as 1,652,811,000 kilowatt hours against 1,499,459,000 in the like 1932 week, or an increase of 10 2-10 per cent. The previous week's increase was 9 9-10 per cent.

AUTO CHAMBER MEMBERS MADE 139,153 UNITS LAST MONTH

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce estimated that September automobile production by its members amounted to 139,153 cars and trucks, compared with 173,172 units in August. In September, 1932, production was 47,897 units.

The chamber estimated 1,294,582 units were turned out in the first nine months of this year, an increase of 54 per cent over the same period last year.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES 9 TO 12 POINTS HIGHER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Cotton steadier today on trade buying and covering promoted by the action of the stock and grain markets, comment that a holding movement in anticipation of the 10-cent loan plan was developing in the South, and a smaller volume of Southern hedging. December contracts sold up to 9.90 during the early afternoon, with active months generally showing net gains of 9 to 15 points, but more Southern selling appeared at these figures and prices were 4 or 5 points off from the best around 2 o'clock.

Futures closed steady; 9-12 higher. Oct., 9.65n; Dec., 9.87@88; Jan., 9.92; March, 10.11; May, 10.28; July, 10.43. Spot, steady; middling, 9.90.

October opened at 9.53; December 9.75; January 9.83; March 10.01; May 10.17; July 10.34.

There was considerable Southern selling but the offerings were readily absorbed by trade demand and covering promoted by the early action of the stock market. It also was encouraged to some extent by lower private crop estimates.

One placed the indicated yield at 11,710,000 bales and the other at 11,750,000, or nearly 1,000,000 bales below some of the private figures recently issued.

December sold up from 9.75 to 9.78 after the call, with the market showing net advances of about eight to 13 points. Liverpool cables reported a quiet, steady market there and while the early cables were lower than due, there were rallies before the local opning.

FINANCIAL NOTES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Alexander Berger and Willis D. Wood have been elected directors of the Western Pacific Railroad, succeeding Arthur Anderson of J. P. Morgan & Co. and Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

George W. Davison, chairman of the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., has been elected president of the New York Clearing House Association, succeeding Mortimer N. Buckner, chairman of the New York Trust Co., who has served two years. Percy H. Johnson, president of the Chemical Bank & Trust Co., was made chairman of the Clearing House Committee.

Adams Express Co. reports net asset value of $6.44 per common share as of Sept. 30 after deduction of outstanding bonds and preferred stock.

WHEAT CLOSES FIRM AT 1 3-8—1 3-4C RISE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Grain trade interest centered mainly today on what President Roosevelt might say tonight in New York. As a result, wheat prices a general upward trend.

Foreigners seeking breadstuff supplies were again in the market, and purchased 1,250,000 bushels of Canadian wheat, but the price spread between Chicago and Winnipeg widened somewhat, with weather in the Canadian Prairie Provinces favorable for threshing.

Wheat closed firm, 1⅜@1¾c above yesterday's finish; corn unchanged to ¼c lower; oats, ⅜c off to ⅛c up, and provisions varying from 12c decline to a rise of 17c.

Comment was also at hand that estimates of European wheat import requirements were being enlarged. Opening with ¾@1¼ gain, wheat later held near the initial limits. Corn started unchanged to ½ higher and susequently altered little.

Active buying on the part of commission houses lifted wheat afterward about two cents above yesterday's finish. Some of the buying was associated with hopes in various quarters that an address from President Roosevelt tonight would prove a market stimulus, helping further to strengthen prices was continued notice taken of curtailment of domestic receipts of wheat.

Arrivals at United States primary points today totaled but 726,000 bushels, compared with 1,375,000 a year ago.

Provisions were higher with grains, and responsive to an abrupt rise of hog values.

STEEL OUTPUT HAS A SLIGHT INCREASE

Fourth Quarter Contracts for Heavy Hot-Rolled Products Being Placed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—"The placing of fourth quarter contracts for heavy hot-rolled steel products brought considerable tonnage to order books in the past week, and general adherence to the new form of buying agreements, which do not permit cancelation by consumers, refined probable consumer requirements more accurately than heretofore. Expiration of old contracts for sheets and strip steel also brought heavy specifications, which will occupy mills for the greater part of October. Tin plate backlogs are adequate for the month, although production has been curtailed by strikes," says "Iron Age."

"The larger steel-consuming industries are generally curtailing their requirements and give promise of little sustained improvement in the next two months. Motor car production is declining gradually and output this month is tentatively estimated at 145,000 units, against a probable 185,000 in September. Increased steel takings, however, are unlikely, as automobile companies have been stocking heavily in anticipation of higher prices. This tendency is also noticed among many other consumers of steel, and the extent to which fourth quarter requirements has been discounted will have an important bearing on new buying in the next two months.

"The trend of production in November and December also depends largely upon the efforts of the Federal Government to stimulate business. With more than half of public works administration's fund now allocated, some large projects are beginning to reach the contracting stage. Approximately 52,000 tons of cast iron segments and steel castings has been placed for the Midtown Tunnel at New York, and Cleveland has awarded 12,000 tons of cast iron pipe for waterworks extensions.

"Promise of Government aid to the railroads to finance rail purchases has developed estimated requirements from a number of carriers amounting to 280,000 tons.

"Despite a sharp decline in the Wheeling district, occasioned by the strike, steel ingot production this week has risen one point to 42 per cent of capacity. With output unchanged at Chicago, Cleveland and Birmingham, operations have been advanced six points to 35 per cent at Pittsburgh and two points to 50 per cent in the valleys, while the Philadelphia and Buffalo districts have curtailed production one and six points, respectively.

"Pig iron output during September dropped to 1,522,257 tons, or 50,742 tons daily, compared with 1,833,394 tons, or 59,142 tons daily in August. The decline of 14.2 per cent followe da 9.4 per cent drop in ingot output during August, while pig iron production was rising 2.2 per cent. Eleven furnaces were blown out or banked during August and two were blown in, a net loss of nine.

"Finished steel prices under the code are rapidly becoming clarified and, with advances of $3 a ton on bars and $2 on plates and shapes now effective, the 'Iron Age' composite price has been raised to 2.036 cents a pound, compared with 1.992 cents last week. The pig iron composite, affected by freight rate adjustments, is 10 cents a ton lower at $16.61, while the composite for scrap is down 8 cents to $10.96 a ton."

PICK UP IN PRICES ON BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Values in the bond market picked up all along the line today. U. S. Governments turned in further moderate gains, and the majority of prime issues in the corporation list shook off their recent heaviness and scored moderate improvement.

The widest advances occurred in the semi-speculative categories. Popular low-priced rails were bid up from 1 to 2 points at times, and similar gains featured many of the electric, communications and miscellaneous industrial loans.

The foreign group had a slightly uneven appearance. British and French Government obligations yielded a little ground, but German and other continental offerings were steady.

MAY ACCEPT MARGIN TRADES IN STOCKS SELLING UNDER $5

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—New York Stock Exchange member firms will be permitted hereafter to accept margin accounts in stocks selling at less than $5 a share, under a ruling of the exchange announced today. The new arrangement will not apply to stocks selling below this figure if they are unacceptable to the banks as collateral for call loans.

Modification of the margin rules was authorized by the exchange, it was said, in order to lift a discrimination against stocks, which, in spite of their low value, were considered good loan collateral by the banks.

The action rescinds a rule adopted by the exchange early in August which stated that "No value shall be allowed on any stock selling at less than $5 a share or any bond selling at less than 10 per cent of its face value." This was put into effect in conjunction with other regulations tightening restrictions on margin dealings.

GIANTS AGAIN DEFEAT SENATORS, 6 TO 1

Crowd Drops to 35,461 for Second Series Game

Fitzsimmons to Oppose Whitehill Tomorrow in Game at Washington

(By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—With their backs to the wall, the Washington Senators will have to call upon Earl Whitehill, a veteran southpaw, to pitch the third game of the world series tomorrow against the New York Giants at Washington. The game there will start at 12:30 p. m. St. Louis time.

Having suffered two straight defeats at the hands of the National League champions, Manager Cronin must pin his hopes of victory on Whitehill, who was his southpaw ace in the 1933 pennant race.

Manager Bill Terry of the Giants will send Fred Fitzsimmons, his burly right-hander, to the mound in an effort to gain the Giants' third consecutive victory. Fitzsimmons, a veteran, and a smart pitcher, hurled effectively for the Giants during the pennant race and was a big factor in his team winning the championship.

It was apparent early that the attendance at the second game would not be as large as that of yesterday. Half an hour before game time, there were thousands of empty seats in the left and right-field corners of the unreserved upper deck. Even the bleachers were not jammed, there being many available seats at 1 o'clock. The attendance was announced as 35,461.

As a result of the Giants' two victories, the odds on the series were said to have changed until the betting commissioner had made the Giants 4 to 5 favorites. However, the game today was considered an even proposition, the wagering gentry figuring that Manager Joe Cronin of the American Leaguers had saved Crowder, his ace, to square the series, rather than risk a defeat for him at the hands of Carl Hubbell.

Today's game was considered of unusual importance, because American League partisans insisted that with Hubbell out of the way the Senators would show their superiority against any other pitcher Terry might name. If they could have defeated Schumacher, they would have had an advantage in that the next three games will be played at Washington, before sympathetic crowds.

On the other hand, Schumacher had an opportunity to push, and did push the Senators against the well-known wall. Today's victory puts the Giants half way to the championship, and they have to win only two more out of five to clinch the winners' share of the spoils. The Senators now face the necessity of winning four out of five, a difficult task, with the haunting figure of Carl Hubbell always in the offing.

The umpires shifted today, with George Moriarty behind the plate, Cy Pfirman at first, Red Ormsby at second and Charley Moran at third base.

FAIRMOUNT TRACK, Oct. 4.—The Judge, well backed in the mutuels, carried the racing colors of S. & J. Molay to victory in the five and a half furlong fourth race here this afternoon before 3500 racing fans. Never far away from the pace, The Judge took the lead after entering the stretch and then crossed the wire a winner by a half length. Fountain was second and Chianti was another half length back for third.

The winner paid $5.34 for $2 and was time din 1:07 1-5.

Jockey Doublin Taylor rode his second consecutive winner when he booted R. M. Anderson's Mildness, a chestnut filly, to victory in the six furlong second race. Mildness led from the start and had an advantage of six lengths at the wire. Barcardi Sweep was second and Olive Anna third in the field of 11 three and four-year-old maidens which accepted the issue.

The winner was clocked in 1:13 4-5 and refunded $13.32 for $2.

J. A. Nix's Centennial, the favorite, led home a field of nine platers in the opening one mile race, for the first victory in Centennial's two-year old racing. Lilac Bloom closed fast in the stetch to finish second by a head, with Sunny World third.

The winner was closed in 1:40 1-5 and paid $7.02.

Josephine D. was favored by the bettors in the six-furlong third race, and justified the confidence of her backers by taking the lead on the far turn and then staying in front to the wire, even though pressed in the final sixteenth. Irfaneh was second by a length and a half, with Lavender Lady third.

The winner paid $5.04.

The "daily double" paid $38.34 on Mildness and Josephine D. in the second and third races.

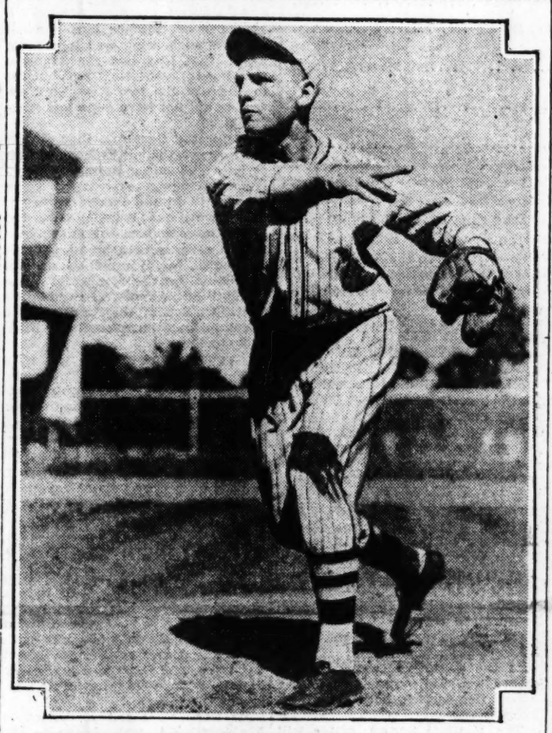

There were 122 winning tickets out of 2502 sold in the special pool, the management said.

Jockey Hooper, one of the two riders suspended yesterday for the remainder of the meeting, was allowed to ride J. F. Vaughan's Esperanto in the fifth race. He had accepted the mount prior to the suspension.

Banas Averaged 5.6 Yards.

Although he was not rated a regular last year Steve Banas of Notre Dame carried the ball for an average of 5.6 yards per run. He is this year's fullback.

SENATORS FAVORED TO WIN TOMORROW; GIANTS SERIES CHOICE

ALTHOUGH the New York Giants have won the first two games of the series with the Senators, the Washington club has been made over-night favorite to win tomorrow's game by Betting Commissioner Tom Kearney. For this contest the Senators will be quoted at 3 to 5 against the Giants at 11 to 10. In other words, to bet on Washington the speculator must put up $5 to win $3.

The odds on the series are now quoted by Kearney at 6 to 5 against the Senators and 1 to 2 against the New York club.

"I figure the Senators will win tomorrow's game sure," Kearney explained. "New York has used up the two best pitchers, while Washington still has Whitehill and Weaver, both very strong right now. In the odds on the series I have figured in tomorrow's game as a Washington victory."

CROWDER KNOCKED OUT OF BOX IN NEW YORK'S 6-RUN RALLY; "GOOSE" GOSLIN HITS HOMER

By J. ROY STOCKTON,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Harold Schumacher's over-hand down-shoot crackled with disconcerting effectiveness around the shoestrings of the Washington Senators this afternoon, and the Giants of William Harold Terry took another stride toward the championship of the baseball business by defeating the American League pennant winners in the second game of the world series, 6 to 1.

Schumacher showed all the requisites of a great pitcher. The young man, who only last June journeyed to St. Lawrence University to get his diploma, displayed the courage of an old campaigner, as he spiked the guns of the supposedly slugging Senators, and his victory was more dramatic than that of Carl Hubbell in the series inaugural, because Schumacher had to climb a steep upgrade to his triumph.

Goslin Poles Homer.

In the third inning Leon "Goose" Goslin, the hard-swinging slugger who for a time wore a Brownie uniform, hit a tremendous home run into the upper deck of the right field stands and as "General" Alvin Crowder retired the Giants, inning after inning, it seemed that the Senators might ride to even terms with their opponents on that one mighty drive.

Giants in Six-Run Rally.

But inspired by Schumacher's great display of courage in the sixth inning, as game a piece of pitching as you will ever see in any world series, the Giants rallied in the sixth, and in one great uprising they out-smarted, out-slugged and defeated the American Leaguers.

For five innings Crowder held the Giants to two hits, both singles, but in the big sixth they knocked him out of the box and made eight hits, good for six runs.

Giants Outsmart Senators.

The Giants did everything better than the Senators. Terry's generalship was good, the New York strategy was surprising and effective and in contrast the Senators played rather stupid baseball.

Perhaps the secondary turning point of the game was a bit of unsound strategy by Joe Cronin. In the sixth inning, with the Senators leading, 1 to 0, Goslin singled and Manush walked. That brought Cronin to the plate and the smart thing to do seemed to be a sacrifice. That would have put two men in scoring position and a single or a long fly would have added to the Washington lead and discouraged the Giants.

But Cronin chose to try for a base hit and fouled out, and Schumacher then pitched out of the inning, striking out Oswald Bluege with the bases filled.

Then it was that the Giants, the greatest opportunists of the 1933 season, went to work. Joe Moore singled, and Kuhel's fine work turned Critz's intended sacrifice into a forced play. But Bill Terry dropped a double in left, sending Critz to third, and after Ott was passed intentionally, Lefty O'Doul batted for Davis and singled to center, changing a 1-0 deficit into a 2-1 advantage for the Giants.

Mancuso Upsets Senators.

Jackson singled to right, scoring Ott and Mancuso and then thew the Senators into confusion and rout by dropping a perfect bunt between the third-base line and the pitcher's mound, the squeeze safety scoring Davis.

Schumacher and Moore also singled, to drive in two more runs and chase Crowder to the showers, and after that it was an easy afternoon for Schumacher.

And now the Giants need only two more victories to capture the championship, while the Senators must win four of the remaining five. The series scene of battle will shift tomorrow to Washington, where the third, fourth and fifth games, if necessary, will be played.

MANCUSO'S BUNT FINE STRATAGEM, FRISCH WRITES

By Frank Frisch,
Manager of the St. Louis Cardinals.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4. — Harold Schumacher and Gus Mancuso were the outstanding figures in the second game of the world series this afternoon, as I saw the National Leaguers score their second straight victory under the smart direction of Bill Terry.

Schumacher stood out because of his brilliant pitching. The young right-hander certainly showed his courage, pitching out of a number of tight situations with the score 1 to 0 against him, and especially in the sixth inning, when with the bases filled he struck out Bluege on a wide sweeping curve.

The crowd gave Schumacher a

WHITE SOX WIN FROM CUBS, 3-2 IN FIRST GAME

By the Associated Press.

WRIGLEY FIELD, CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Behind the six-hit pitching of "Sad Sam" Jones, the White Sox defeated the Cubs, 3 to 2, in the first game of the city championship before a crowd of 12,000 spectators at Wrigley Field today. The White Sox scored all their runs by bunching four singles with an error in the second off Guy Bush.

Bush was touched for eight hits before being jerked for a pinch hitter in the eighth. Evar Swanson drove in two runs during the White Sox insurrection in the second inning and "Mule" Haas drove in the other. The White Sox slashed out nine hits, all of them singles.

BEARS AND BILLIKENS PLAN REAL OFFENSE FOR BIG GAMES

NEITHER LOCAL COACH EXPECTS TO RELY ALONE ON DEFENSIVE

By James M. Gould.

Whether or not their coaches subscribe whole-heartedly to the opinion that, in football, "the best defense is a strong offense," it is a fact that both the St. Louis U. Billikens and the Washington U. Bears are stressing scoring plays in practice as they prepare for Class AA competition in their second games. The Billikens' system will be tested first, for they meet Bo McMillin's Kansas State team, Friday night. The test for the Bears comes Saturday afternoon, when the famous Bob Zuppke's Illini oppose Jimmy Conzelman's likely looking 1933 hopes.

To Stress Offense.

According to Coach Conzelman, the days of strictly defensive teams at Washington are over. "The popular team—the one that goes somewhere—is the team with the punch," he says. "Time was out here when we had to adopt a 'hold that line' attitude, but not any more. We have switched our slogan to "we want a couple of touchdowns." Moreover, we figure we've got a good chance to get them in any game we play—Illinois or no Illinois.

"We know what Illinois will use on offense—at least, we think we do—and see our way fairly clear to stopping their plays. This, of course, we'll have to do in order to win, but our main idea is not so much stopping their plays as it is to make our own scoring plays hard for them to stop. Mind, I'm not predicting a victory over Illinois. Any Big Ten team is pretty tough, but—and this is the new spirit at Washington—I'm not predicting any defeat, either. One thing is certain, we'll take the field with a "hold Illinois" idea but planning to do some scoring ourselves. I'm hopeful that we'll escape many injuries so that we can keep our first-line strength in there most of the time. You see, Illinois has considerably more reserve than we have and that would be a big factor in a close game. We plan a strictly offensive game against Zuppke's team. 'll take care of the defensive part when the need arises."

At St. Louis U. there also is a plan for a hard offensive, but circumstances may turn the Billikens into a defensive unit for part of the game.

"Most Important."

"This game," says Walsh, "is right now the most important one on our schedule and temporarily we are forgetting about all the others. It is possible that we may get only one 'break' in the whole battle, and we want to be able to take advantage of it, if and when it comes, and push over a touchdown. Of course, we are working defensively, too, because we're going to need a good defense to stop Graham, a big, fast back, who can do and does about everything. If we can render him sort of 'null and void,' we ought to be able to take care of the rest of the Kansas attack.

"But, offensively, I intend 'shooting the works.' We're going to give them all we've got and, if we are lucky enough to do some scoring, then we'll show the fans just what a conservative football game is."

Underdog Shows Its Teeth.

WITH Mr. Hubbell on the hill
First blood was scored by Memphis Bill,
And his surprising Giants.
Carl made it tough for Cronin's crew;
His screw ball they could not unscrew,
In spite of all their science.

Right from the start those pesky Nats
Who always swung such wicked bats,
Were running into trouble.
And in so far as we could see,
With Washington it seemed to be,
A case of to much Hubbell.

Though hard the Legislators tried,
The Giants wouldn't be denied,
And on their merits won it.
So it's now written on the slate,
The Nats won't win the first four straight,

Ouch!

The Senators threw a scare into the Giants by filling the bases in the ninth with none out. However, they were more frightened than hurt, as only one run resulted.

Mel Ott made four hits, including a homer with one on, out of four times up, and Buddy Myer made three errors out of seven chances. And that explains in a measure the defeat of the Senators.

Adolph Camilli and several of the club attaches of the Cubs were ignored in the division of the third place world series and city series money. Indicating that the former champions are running true to form.

The Browns have drafted a Coast League pitcher who won 31 games. Looks like first division.

No matter which team wins the world series, it is going to be a triumph for the playing manager.

A Tough Spot.

John McGraw has the toughest assignment of his entire career. He has to sit in the press box and watch somebody else directing the Giants in a world series. Gus Mancuso may give the signal for the wrong kind of a pitch and there is nothing in the world John can do about it.

The best Mac can give the Giant pitchers is his moral support and that won't keep any balls from going where they 'aint.

See where a Chief of Police lost his job for testifying in behalf of some kidnapers. The general idea being that the police are supposed to be agin 'em instead of for 'em.

New York must have her series thrill
If the Yanks don't give it the Giants will.

This is customers' year in baseball. The Giants and Senators are both selling single tickets to the series.

Mr. and Mrs. Babe Ruth have been invited to make a good will visit to Mexico.

THE land of the tamale hot
Would entertain the King of Swat.
Who in a spirit of good will
Would show them how he hits the pill.

As an Ambassador of good will, Babe ought to bat 1.000. The Bam 'aint mad at nobody.

Midnight, Thursday, Oct. 5, is the deadline for selections and letters in the first week's Post-Dispatch football scores competition for 1933. Letters postmarked after that time cannot be eligible for the $250.00 in cash awards that will go to winning entrants.

Participants are invited to name the winners of the 15 games scheduled for Friday and Saturday which are listed on this page; estimate the scores, and write a short letter explaining their choices. The $250 in prize awards will be divided as follows:

First award	$100
Second award	50
Third award	25
Fourth award	15
Fifth award	10
Ten awards, each	5
Total	$250

Entries should be mailed to the Football Scores Editor, care of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Names of winning entrants will be published in the Sports Section, Saturday, Oct. 14.

Here Are the Simple Rules.

The football scores competition each week may be participated in by everyone except Post-Dispatch employes and members of their families.

A letter of 250 words or less must accompany each selection. This letter should give participant's reasons for his preferences and score predictions.

Awards will be made to persons whose letters, in the opinion of the Football Scores Editor display the greatest familiarity with the prospects and capabilities of the scheduled teams in each week's competition and the logic and clarity of reasons given for selections.

The 15 games on which the first week's competition is based will be listed in the Post-Dispatch sports section up to and including Thursday, Oct. 5. The first week's competition will close at midnight Oct. 5. Entries to be eligible must be postmarked before that time.

It is not necessary to use the form in the Post-Dispatch. Any piece of paper of approximately the same size will do.

You do not have to buy the Post-Dispatch to enter. Copies may be examined at public libraries or in the business office of the Post-Dispatch.

Only one entry may be submitted by each participant.

In the event of a tie for any award the full amount of the award tied for will be paid to each tying participant.

The Football Scores Editor will be the sole judge of entries submitted, and his decision as to winners must be accepted as final.

LEADERSHIP OF TERRY BIG HELP, M'GRAW SAYS

By John J. McGraw.

Vice-President New York Giants.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—All credit in the world is due Carl Hubbell for giving the Giants the advantage of having driven home the first blow in the world series. It was not, perhaps, one of his best games—he has on occasion worked more smoothly—but never was he more effective under greater pressure.

But for two misplays he would have had a shutout. However, when the Senators crowded him hardest in the two closing innings, he had the stuff to hold victory in hand.

Sharing in the honors, of course, was Mel Ott, whose hitting was directly responsible for three of the four New York runs. The Washington pitchers did not seem to have any luck at all in pitching to young Mel, for he hit Stewart and Russell for four hits. The homer, of course, was the most timely blow of all. It gave Hubbell a fine working edge when it sent him away to a two-run lead in the very first inning and from then on the Senators were always at a marked disadvantage. For the psychological effect of trying to overcome such a substantial margin against a known great pitcher like Hubbell has no small bearing on the outcome itself. That lead had the Senators pressing from the start and but for the help of the two New York errors would not have done any scoring at all.

As for the Senators, they simply did not get the pitching and their defense was rather insecure, Buddy Myer having an extremely tough time of it around second base.

However, one must not be too severe in criticising the misplays.

Both sides were a bit nervous at the outset for it must be remembered this was the first world series competition for most of the fellows in it. On top of that, most of the misplays were on exceedingly difficult chances.

Grabbing the opener naturally gave the Giants a decided edge. They have found the vaunted attacking power of the Senators not to be quite so serious as it had been pictured. And their own defense stood up well enough to meet all the requirements.

NORMANDY HIGH STAR OUT OF ACTION WITH INJURED SHOULDER

Eddie Haefler, Normandy High School backfield star, will be out of action for at least three weeks on account of an injury he suffered to his shoulder in the game with St. Louis University High School last week, and there is a possibility that he will be out for the remainder of the season.

Haefler sustained a dislocated shoulder. He was taken to the County Hospital for treatment, and now, because of stiffness in the muscles, is being given special treatment at Champaign, Ill., by Nat Bullock, trainer of the University of Illinois eleven.

WRAY'S COLVMN

Sound Taps for "W. L."

THE fight world is poorer today, through the death of Young Stribling, William Lawrence by name, "W. L." to Pa and Ma and a worshiping solid South.

Stribling was no champion, as ring achievements go; he was a great fighter who never quite reached the summit. But he was unique in more ways than any pugilist before or during his time. He was unique in that:

He was a strictly manufactured fighter, predestined for the profession almost from the cradle.

Despite his almost reckless daring in airplane, automobile, motor cycle and other adventures, which proved his courage beyond cavil, there were many who considered him "yellow" in the ring.

Although he won almost half of his 300 battles by knockouts, he never was able to use that knockout punch in a fight of major consequence.

In spite of his several failures to lift himself into title eminence, he still had, to the time of his death, a great following which believed that some day "W. L." would cash in and top the world.

Notwithstanding his profession, which he had pursued from the time he was 16 years of age, he remained to the end, in his contacts with others, not a fighter but a fine, upstanding, honorable young man, a "family man" first and a fighter afterwards.

Although he had many struggles and battles, the only one which did not find him at least on his feet at the finish, was the last one, his battle for life.

The Real Courage.

YOUNG STRIBLING, in almost his last words, confounded his critics. He evidenced a courage that seemed completely to refute allegations that he showed timidity in his ring battles.

With his foot torn violently from its ankle socket, his pelvic bone fractured and suffering internal injuries, only fortitude of high character could have prompted the remark he made with an attempt at a grin shortly after the accident: "It looks like I won't have to do any more road work."

Early Coaching at Fault.

FEW who knew Stribling intimately failed to realize that mere inability to "take it" was responsible for some of his weaker showings when Opportunity knocked. This writer has always believed that Stribling, on the contrary, was a daring, fearless young fellow, but one who, as far as his ring career was concerned, suffered from early bad training and coaching.

His early training tended toward defense and the protection of his head and body. He was taught some very bad ring habits, of which he was only partly able to rid himself. A professional at 16, his fighting style was definitely established for life.

More than one promoter took Stribling away from the influence of his father, believing that he could change his ring habits.

The late Walk Miller once thought he had cured Stribling of his weaknesses. He wrote this writer and asked him to attend one of Stribling's fights in the elimination series of 1927 at New York.

"You'll not recognize the boy now," Miller wrote. "He hits and fights hard and he won't back up."

But "W. L." disappointed. He used the same old Fabian tactics and backed away from a third-rate fighter whom he had beaten before, Sailor Hoffman.

At Cleveland, before the Schmeling fight, Pa Stribling told how "W. L." would throw caution to the winds and wade in to do his stuff. Willie did a little better in this bout; but he fell short of his friend's expectations.

The training he received at an impressionable age and his coaching to save himself from punishment, always were in the background of his fights, and, this writer contends, were the real causes of his failure to battle with that abandon which his friends thought would have gained him the title.

Stribling Barred Nobody.

ONE of the features of Stribling's ring career which still stands out was his willingness at all times to fight anybody, no matter how much he was outweighed, for a reasonable percentage. He did not ask a guarantee.

He was the first fighter of note to take on the Man Mountain, the present champion, Primo Carnera. He fought Primo twice in Europe, although outweighed at that time almost 100 pounds. And he drew no line at any fighter although he was not a true heavyweight at any time in his career. His best fighting weight was around 180 or less. Any more that he carried was of no use to him. At no time was he a real heavyweight in poundage or structure.

It's hard to impute lack of courage to a fighter as willing as Stribling showed himself to be.

And yet, there was some comment, later, because he never had a third battle with Carnera. When the Man Mountain first came to this country, there is no doubt that a third match between Stribling and Carnera would have filled any stadium. But it never occurred. The match was never made. This writer never heard that any real effort was ever made to make it.

But Pa Stribling will tell you that the fault was with Carnera, not W. L.

BIG SIX ELEVENS WORK HARD FOR WEEK-END TESTS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 4.—The way their boys have been missing chances to add extra points after touchdowns has been receiving much attention at Iowa State and Kansas State this week.

The Cyclones failed in every attempt to add extra points against Denver, so Coach George Veenker put his kickers through a drill yesterday. Coach Bo McMillin of the Wildcats stressed the subject Monday after his players had failed in three of four attempts against the Emporia Teachers.

St. Louis U. Plays.

McMillin dropped the subject yesterday, however, as he directed his regulars against the freshmen, who were using St. Louis University plays.

This problem is among the least of the worries of Coach Ad Lindsey at Kansas, for the Jayhawkers have connected six times in seven chances. His main worry right now is perfecting an aerial offensive for use against the Notre Dame Ramblers. He had Domm, Manning, Bloomfield, Ole Nesmith, Kell and Harris tossing the aerials yesterday, but at the end of the session he expressed displeasure with the execution of pass plays.

Just by way of showing his Missouri Tigers what can be done, Coach Frank Carideo turned player on the freshmen squad and reeled off gains of 10 to 15 yards consistently. Against the second squad he didn't do so well, but began throwing passes, of which the yearlings completed three in succession.

fine ovation for his performance in that critical inning and he deserved it, for although this was his first world series game, he performed like a veteran. He was a trifle wild at the start, but he quickly settled down and pitched marvelous ball.

I mention Mancuso as sharing the honors with Schumacher. Gus has handled both of Terry's starting pitchers and his catching has been courageous and heady.

Mancuso not only distinguished himself behind the bat but also pulled what I considered the outstanding strategic play of the afternoon, when he laid down a perfect bunt in the big sixth inning, catching the Washington infield flat-footed. The bunt, it seemed to me, upset the morale of the American League club.

Terry deserves much praise for his intelligent handling of the team and for doing the right thing at the right time. He called on O'Doul to hit for Davis and O'Doul delivered the hit which gave the Giants the lead. Then, undoubtedly, Terry gave the sign to Mancuso for the squeeze play.

I do not wish to appear to be second-guessing either manager. They have been successful with their brands of baseball in the league races. However, in my opinion, Joe Cronin laid himself open to criticism in the sixth inning.

THREE REFEREES ARE NAMED FOR MATCHES IN PRO SOCCER LOOP

Announcement was made last night by Don Anderson, president of the St. Louis Professional Soccer League, that Oscar Mossman, Robert "Ribby" Murphy and Jimmy Dunn have been selected to referee in the matches this season, beginning with the opening doubleheader Sunday afternoon at Sportsman's Park.

The officiating this season will be a round-robin affair, with the three arbiters taking care of the referee's and linesmen's assignments. Oscar Mossman will referee the first contest between the Stix, Baer & Fuller team and the Andersons, with Murphy and Dunn waving the flags. The Ben Miller-Minit Rub contest will have Murphy as the chief official and the other two doing line duty. Dunn will reefree his first game of the season a week from Sunday during the opening contest.

Zbyszko Gets Divorce.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 4.—Wladek Zbyszko, veteran Polish wrestler of New York and one time claimant of the world heavyweight title, announced last night he had been granted a final divorce decree from his wife, Milli Zisa. He made a cash settlement of $1000 with his former wife, and a provision for $35 a week alimony.

Giants Again Defeat Senators, 6-1; With Big Rally in the Sixth

The series will end when one team has four victories.

Schumacher Nervous at Start.

Schumacher, undoubtedly a bit nervous, was wild at the start and Myer, first up for the Senators, drew a pass. Schumacher's first pitch was a ball, the next a called strike and then threw three straight balls. Mancuso kicked when Moriarty called the last one a ball.

When the first two pitches to Goslin were balls, Terry motioned to the bull pen and Herman Bell began to warm up. With a call of two balls and one strike, Goslin bounced over Schumacher's head to Ryan, who threw him out at first.

Bell continued to warm up, but Schumacher didn't need help. Goslin flied to Davis, an easy chance, and Cronin struck out on three pitched ball. Schumacher, settling to his task, was finding the strike zone with his low drop.

Crowder, a veteran of the wars, showed the poise of experience and quickly disposed of the Giants in their first turn at bat. Moore fouled off a couple and struck out and Critz, trying to bunt, hit the ball too hard and straight to Kuhel and was an easy out. Terry then popped to Cronin in short left.

Schumacher issued another pass in the second, but it was an easy inning for him. Schulte tapped to the box and, after Kuhel popped to Ryan, Schumacher quickly put over two strikes on Bluege. Hal then tried to "work" on the batter and finally walked him. Sewell, however, flied to Moore for the third out.

Crowder pitched out of a dangerous situation in the second inning. He started by walking Ott and George Davis then dropped a single in center for the first hit of the game, moving Ott to second. Jackson sacrificed neatly, Bluege to Kuhel but with two runners in scoring position Mancuso grounded straight to Bluege and Ryan, trying to dodge an inside pitch, grounded to Kuhel who easily beat him to the bag.

Goslin Hits Homer.

"Goose" Goslin got the first hit off Schumacher in the third inning, a tremendous drive into the upper deck of the right-field stands, which broke the scoreless tie and produced the Senators' first earned run of the series. Schumacher disposed of Crowder on a grounder to Jackson and Myer on a roller to Ryan, and then, with a call of two balls and one strike, Goslin picked on a curve and hit his four-bagger. It was no cheap homer. It would have been good for the circuit in almost any ball park.

Manush flied to Moore to end the inning.

After Schumacher fanned in the New York half, Joe Moore hit the facade between the upper and lower decks of the left field stand, but the drive was a foul by a couple of yards and Moore then tapped to Crowder. Critz, fouling off four after the call was three and two, finally drew a pass, but Terry ended the frame with a fly to Schulte.

Pitching prevailed through the fourth inning, both sides going down in order. Cronin flied to Ott, Schulte grounded to Jackson and Kuhel to Critz, and in the National League half, Ott popped to Kuhel and Davis fouled to the first baseman. Cronin then ran to his left for a glove-hand stop of Jackson's grounder and the crowd, unusually quiet, gave the Washington manager a polite cheer for the best play of the afternoon.

Crowder Gets a Single.

Crowder had the honor in the fifth of making the second hit off Schumacher. Bluege first up, flied to Moore and Sewell topped a curve to Ryan. Crowder then lined a single through the box. The safety did no damage, as Myer followed with a grounder to Critz, who tossed to Ryan, forcing Crowder at second.

The inning also saw the second hit off Crowder, but it was nullified by a double play. Bluege threw out Mancuso and "Blondy" Ryan then lopped a single to center. Schumacher worked his string to three and two, but Crowder, a little wild, called for a new ball, nonchalantly took a fresh quid of tobacco and Schumacher grounded to Cronin and Myer pivoted around for the Senators' first double play of the series.

Schumacher Shows Courage.

Schumacher showed a stout heart and a low curve that crackled and made the fans stand up and cheer as he pitched out of trouble in the sixth. Goslin, first up, singled to right-center, and Manush walked. Everybody thought Cronin would sacrifice, but Joe tried for a base hit and fouled to Mancuso. Schumacher than made a wild pitch, a low curve, that caromed off Mancuso's chest protector and the runners advanced. Schulte swung at a low curve and on his grounder to Jackson Goslin was run down, Manush reaching third and Schulte first. Kuhel walked on four pitched balls, Manager Terry probably having issued orders not to give the left-handed hitter anything good. Schumacher then struck out Bluege and as the third strike, a low curve, popped into Mancuso's glove, the crowd stood up and gave the young right-hander a mighty cheer.

Giants Rally in Sixth.

It was an inning of action. The mob was aroused now and scarcely had the cheer for Schumacher subsided when a new one arose as Moore singled to left. Critz, trying to sacrifice, forced Moore at second, Kuhel to Cronin, but Terry dropped a double near the left foul line, moving Critz to third. Ott, whose bat won the first game, was purposely passed, filling the bases, but Terry countered by calling on Lefty O'Doul to bat for Davis. O'Doul delivered. With a call of two and two, Sewell barely missed catching a foul tip and on the next pitch O'Doul lined a single over second, Critz and Terry racing over the plate and Ott reached second. Travis Jackson also had a base hit in his bat, his single to right-center scoring Ott and sending O'Doul to third.

Gus Mancuso then turned the neatest bit of trick batting of the series. Gus is not one of the speedsters of baseball and infielders play deep when he is at bat. Gus noticed that Bluege was playing deep and dropped a neat bunt between the third base line and the pitcher's box. It was a perfect squeeze bunt, scoring O'Doul from third and Sewell placed that even the slow-footed Mancuso easily beat Crowder's throw to first. Jackson moved to second on the hit and the Giants were not yet through with the rally. Ryan took a called third strike but Schumacher, a pretty good hitter for a pitcher, slashed a single past Bluege and Jackson raced home and Mancuso advanced to second. Then Moore lined a single to center, his second hit of the inning, and Mancuso easily scored from second.

The blow knocked Crowder out of the box and Al Thomas, who saw service in the first game, went to the hill for the Senators.

Critz greeted the new pitcher with a hot smash to short. Cronin knocked down the ball, but it went for a single, filling the bases. That was all, however, as Terry forced Critz at second to end the profitable inning.

Homer Peel went to center field for the Giants as the Senators went to bat in the seventh. Sewell started the frame with a fly to Ott, near the grandstand wall and Sam Rice, batting for Thomas, singled to center.

It was the fourth hit off Schumacher and it did no harm or good, as Ott went back for easy catches of long drives of Myer and Goslin.

Veteran McCall Goes to Box.

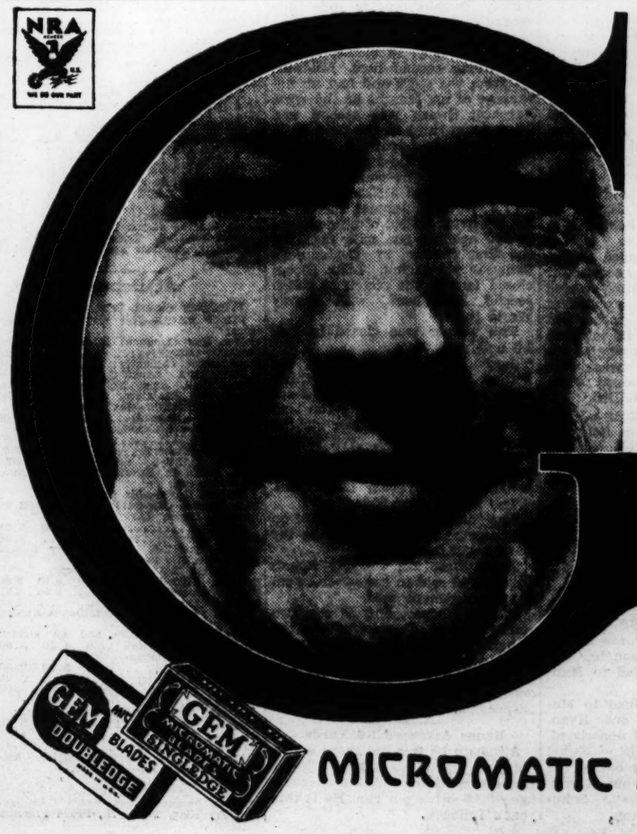

Alex McColl, 37-year-old veteran of the minors, recently purchased by the Senators, went to the hill for the American Leaguers in the seventh, and turned back three Giants in a row. Ott grounded to Cronin, Myer threw out Peel and Jackson bounced ot Cronin.

Manush opened the eighth inning with a single to right, but Schumacher and Jackson soon squelched the Senators' hopes. Cronin hit a hot grounder to Jackson, who made a clean stop, a throw to Critz and Hughie relayed it to Terry for a double play. Schulte then fouled to Mancuso for the third out.

The eighth was a short inning for McColl, as Mancuso flied to Manush, Ryan tapped to the box and Schumacher grounded to Kuhel.

The ninth was just a matter of routine mopping up for Schumacher. Kuhel opened with a high and harmless fly to Moore; Harris, batting for Bluege, was out on, his slow grounder to Jackson, who made a clever throw and Bolton for Sewell, ended the game with a tap to Schumacher.

AUSTRALIAN ACE LIKELY TO MEET JAMESTOWN IN A "TUNEUP" EVENT

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 4. — Jamestown, George D. Widener's five-year-old, which has won his two races since returning last month from retirement, was sought today to test the ability of Winooka, the Australian horse, for a match race with Equipoise, the American champion.

The Jamestown-Winooka race was being arranged by Andrew J. Cummings, president of the organization operating Laurel Park, for the track's program between Oct. 18 and 21.

The match race between the Australian horse and the American champion was set for the United Hunts on Nov. 7 at Belmont Park by Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, owner of Equipoise, in accepting the challenge of the Rufe Naylor, Manager of Winooka.

Equipoise was scheduled for retirement after his race last Saturday at Havre de Grace, but Whitney was willing to set his five-year-old son of Pennant to the post again, believing a match race "would be a fine sporting event and would be welcomed by the followers of the turf."

Whitney asked that Winooka meet a ranking Eastern horse first "in order to show the public his real ability." Naylor said he would like a match with Jamestown at three-quarters of a mile.

Equipoise, accustomed to carrying top weights of 130 pounds or more, would have a light load as Naylor fixed the Belmont match race weight at between 100 and 112 pounds and over seven furlongs. He also would like a purse of $10,000 to $25,000, winner take all.

Praising the performance of Equipoise in his race Saturday when he finished second to Osculator and saying "I have never seen a gamer bit of horseflesh in my life," Naylor, in his challenge to Whitney said "all Australia is hoping your champion of America will meet our champion—Winooka—in a match race."

Whitney in reply said "I believe a match race between your horse and Equipoise under proper conditions would be a fine sporting event and would be welcomed by the followers of the turf. I feel very strongly, however, that your horse should meet one or more of our first class Eastern horses before meeting Equipoise in order to show the public his real ability."

U. OF WASHINGTON HALFBACK RESIGNS ARMY APPOINTMENT

By the Associated Press.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 4. -- The resignation of Cadet Burl F. Bufkin of Amarillo, Tex., former halfback on the University of Washington team, has been accepted by the War Department, it was announced yesterday.

In his letter of resignation Bufkin said he found himself unable to meet the rigid academic standards of the United States Military Academy and he wished to resign now to take advantage of a scholarship offered by the University of Washington, to which he planned to return.

Bufkin pointed out that he was appointed last May to enter the academy July 1, and the short period of time gave him no opportunity to make special preparations in mathematics. Because of a deficiency in that branch he said he felt sure he would be "flunked out" in the December examinations and believed it was useless to continue.

Bufkin's officers said he was a well disciplined youngster and showed many qualities desirable in an army officer. He expressed keen disappointment at not being able to continue.

ILLINOIS VARSITY STOPS THE FRESHMEN

By the Associated Press.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 4. — The Illinois varsity experienced little difficulty stopping a freshman eleven using Washington University running plays yesterday in the first scrimmage of the week. Coach Zuppke also drilled the first stringers in protecting their kickers. A signal drill also was held.

COLUMBUS WINS LITTLE WORLD SERIES, BEATING BUFFALO, 10-2

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 4.—The little world series championship was in the hands of the Columbus Red Birds of the American Association today as the result of their five out of eight games' victory over the Buffalo Bisons of the International League.

The Birds climaxed their drive to the title last night with a 10-2 victory.

The Bisons qualified for the series by defeating Baltimore and Rochester in the playoffs of their league after barely squeezing into the fourth qualifying position.

The victory and the championship came to the Birds on the strong right arm of Jim Winford, who held the much vaunted bats of the Bisons to five scattered hits and fanned 11 men. After a brief wildness in the first inning, when the Bisons scored one run, Winford settled down to retire the Bisons with monotonous regularity. From the first to the sixth only one Bison got beyond first base, and the last three innings he kept the other three hits scattered and pulled out of heles by the strikeout route.

The Birds went to work on Lefty Milistead in the third and drove him to the showers with a four-run attack which was materially aided by Bison errors. Fresco Thompson, who has been drafted by the New York Giants, contributed two errors in that inning, while Joe Brown added another.

In addition to four runs in the third the Birds got one in the second, one in the fourth, two in the sixth and two more in the eighth as Cullop, Riggs, Rothrock and Delancey walloped the ball to all corners of the park. The Bisons used three pitchers to stem the attack, but none was equal to the task.

Carlin Opposes Harsh.

Johnny "Swede" Carlin of Indianapolis meets Johnny Harsh of Wood River in the one fall to a finish wrestling match that headlines the card for the Social Center Gymnasium, in East St. Louis, tonight. Walter McMillian opposes Claude Woodson in the 30-minute semi-final, while Harold Methany meets Wesley Wagster and George Toby tackles Whitey Whittler in the other two 30-minute matches. Eddie Piantanida opposes Kid Barnett in the 20-minute time limit curtain-raiser.

"GREASE! HOW MEN HATE IT!
MY NEW BRUSHLESS IS CREAMY, NOT GREASY"
W. G. Mennen
I'M GETTING hundreds of letters from men who tried old-time brushless shaves—and hated them.
The trouble was grease—grease that clogged the razor—messed up the wash bowl, wouldn't wash off the face.
But these grease-haters are flocking to Mennen Brushless. Because it's creamy—not greasy—it has these 5 advantages:
1. Wilts whiskers so that the blade sails through—cuts clean.
2. Shows white on the face. You can see the path of the razor.
3. Washes off EASILY. Doesn't stick to face or hands. Doesn't clog razor. Doesn't mess wash bowl.
4. It spreads easier. You can use less (about ½ less).
5. Protects your skin. Particularly good for dry, tender skins.

RICHMOND HEIGHTS DROPS SIDEWALK CONDEMNATION SUIT

Plan to Acquire Strip of Land for Clayton Road Pedestrian Pass Dropped.

City Counselor Feigenbaum of Richmond Heights has been ordered by the City Council to dismiss a condemnation suit brought by the city in 1929 to acquire a 10-foot strip of land for sidewalk purposes on the south side of Clayton road between Big Bend boulevard and North and South road.

Mayor La Tourette said dismissal was ordered because of objection of taxpayers to the condemnation. Benefits and damages had been set at $82,000 and 1100 property owners in a benefit area extending south to Harter avenue were to have been assessed. There are no plans at present for a sidewalk, the Mayor said.

Made Guardian of Sons.

REDWOOD CITY, Cal., Oct. 4.—Mrs. Lawrence Tibbett, wife of the baritone, was made guardian of her three sons by a former marriage in an order signed yesterday by Superior Judge Maxwell McNutt. Mrs. Tibbett, former wife of John C. Burgard, San Francisco sportsman, said she had the consent of their father in asking for the guardianship of the estates of the boys. All are under 14.

BANK LOSES SUIT AGAINST ESTATE OF JOHN H. SILLS

Sought to Include in It, $22,500 in Bonds Marked as Property of His Sister.

A citation filed by Ben Lang, vice-president of the First National Bank, in the estate of John H. Sills, former vice-president of the Franklin-American Trust Co., which was absorbed by the First National, was dismissed by Probate Judge Holtcamp yesterday.

The citation was for the purpose of discovering assets, it being contended that bonds and other securities amounting to $22,500, found in Sill's safe deposit box, should be inventoried as part of his estate. They were in an envelope marked as the property of his sister, Miss Marie Sills, who is under guardianship.

Edward P. Walsh, attorney for relatives of Miss Sills, resisted the application. The Court held there was no evidence to indicate that the securities belonged to Sills, who shot and killed himself Dec. 18, 1931.

PLANS FOR CONSECRATION OF BISHOP WINKELMANN

Testimonial, Congratulatory Address and Dinner Are Arranged by Priests.

Priests of the St. Louis Archdiocese decided yesterday on honors to be extended Bishop-elect Christian H. Winkelmann when he is consecrated as auxiliary bishop to Archbishop Glennon.

The priests will present him with a testimonial, a congratulatory address will be given, and a dinner will be tendered him after the consecration. While the date of the services has not been fixed, it probably will be the Feast of St. Andrew, which falls on Thanksgiving day.

Mgr. P. P. Crane, vicar-general of the archdiocense, presided at the meeting of priests, held at Cathedral Hall. The Rev. E. H. Prendergast, assistant at St. Liborius' Church, was made secretary of the arrangements for the priest's part in the consecration, and the Rev. O. T. Siesener, pastor of St. Agatha's, was made treasurer.

REJECTS LOWEST BIDS MADE FOR AUDITORIUM FIXTURES

Plaza Commission With Public Service Director Awards Contract to Guth Co.

A contract for electric fixtures for the Municipal Auditorium has been awarded by the Plaza Commission to the Edwin F. Guth Co., for $43,574, with the approval of President Brown of the Board of Public Service, although the Guth company was not the low bidder.

The lowest bid, $39,650, was made by the Sterling Lighting Co., 118 Delmar boulevard. Other lower offers were $42,500, by the Chapline Electric Co., and $42,967, by the Gross Chandelier Co. Five companies bid higher than the Guth Co., with prices ranging up to $57,000.

Brown explained that the lighting fixtures were one of the most important things in the new building, from the decorative standpoint. He said La Beaume & Klein, members of the Plaza Commission and the supervising architects, had recommended the award after inspecting the plants of the Guth company and the lower bidders. The architects concluded the Guth company was better equipped and had more experience in work for a "job of this magnitude and importance."

The lighting fixtures come under the general contract for the auditorium, held by the Boaz-Kiel Construction Co. An allotment of $46,500 had been made for the fixtures in that contract.

MAX BAER, BOXER, DIVORCED BY DOROTHY DUNBAR, ACTRESS

Mutual Consent Decree Obtained in Mexico; Suit Filed After He Went on Screen.

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 4. — Mrs. Dorothy Baer, formerly Dorothy Dunbar, movie actress, has been granted a divorce from Max Baer, heavyweight boxer, her attorney was informed yesterday from Juarez, Mexico, where the suit was filed.

The lawyer said the divorce was obtained by mutual consent.

MAN WHO THREATENED TO QUIT OVER NRA STILL IN BUSINESS

Dairy Products Manufacturer of Elgin, Ill., Says Customers Urged Him to Continue.

By the Associated Press.

ELGIN, Ill., Oct. 4.—Benjamin S. Pearsall, wealthy dairy products manufacturer who announced he would close his plant rather than conform to NRA code requirements, is still in business today. As a member of the National Margarin Code Committee he spent much time at Washington drafting rules for the industry. Then he announced he would go out of business Oct. 1.

Pearsall has not raised the Blue Eagle emblem, selling milk at less than the organized milk trade. He said his customers had urged him to continue in business "rather tahn leave them wholly with the cut-rate monopolists."

"We have laid off 24 in the factory and 10 in the office, or one-third of our Elgin working force," Pearsall stated, "and we are doing as much business, showing we had always carried our load and done our part with labor without any military gang rule. We now work under four codes which require four different sets or lengths of hours for our four departments, so we are entitled to all the eagles the Postmaster has, but we want an eagle with some character and reputation, not a communistic vulture.

MAYOR AGAINST EX-MAYOR IN CLEVELAND CITY RACE

Ray T. Miller and Harry L. Davis Nominated in Non-Partisan Primary.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 4. — Mayor Ray T. Miller, Democrat, and Harry L. Davis, Republican, former Governor and Mayor of Cleveland in World War days, will oppose each other for Mayor in the Nov. 7 election.

In a non-partisan primary election yesterday in which 215,076 votes were cast, exceeding by about 15,000 the vote at the last mayoralty election and by 60,000 that of the last mayoralty primary, Miller and Davis were chosen over Congressman Martin L. Sweeney, independent Democrat.

Miller received 74,750 votes, closely followed by Davis with 73,903. Sweeney got 59,766 votes.

KILLED BY AUTO AS HE TRIES TO SAVE GIRL FROM TRAIN

Motorist Struck After Stepping From His Car; Child, 14, Loses Life Near Du Quoin, Ill.

By the Associated Press.

DU QUOIN, Ill., Oct. 4.—As a passenger train killed Ethel Marie Grant, 14-year-old school girl, near here yesterday, Emery Dottery, 58, was killed by an automobile as he stepped from his machine to try and save the girl.

She was returning from school and walked into the path of the train. Dottery, who lived nearby, was driving into his yard. Seeing the girl in danger he stopped his machine and stepped on the pavement to rescue her. An automobile driven by Edward Senior of Ashley struck him.

FALLS FROM 21ST FLOOR TO DEATH IN CHICAGO LOOP

Man Had Written Note: "If I Ever Faint Again, Notify Dr. Thompson."

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—G. M. Attwell, 65 years old, head of a printing concern, was killed yesterday in a fall from the twenty-first story of a Loop office building. In his pocket was a note: "If I ever faint again, notify Dr. Thompson."

Dr. O. K. Thompson, his physician, said Attwell had suffered from a heart ailment for several years and had been worried over business.

TEXAS U. S. JUDGE UPHOLDS FEDERAL OIL REGULATION

Denies Injunction but He Still Has 'Gravest Doubts' as to Constitutionality of Recovery Act.

TAKES SAME VIEW AS WASHINGTON COURT

By the Associated Press.

TYLER, Tex., Oct. 4.—The Panama Refining Co. lost its suit attacking Federal regulation under the National Recovery Act yesterday when Federal Judge Randolph Bryant denied an application for an injunction against the action of Department of Interior agents in requiring reports on oil received, refined and shipped.

Judge Bryant based his decision on the same point which caused another refining company to lose in the District of Columbia Supreme Court several weeks ago—the presumption of validity of acts of constitute authorities.

"Gravest Misgivings."

The Court said that while at the outset and even now it had the "gravest misgivings" regarding the constitutionality of the recovery legislation as applied to the refining business, it realized from a "more or less intimate connection" with parallel cases that Congress had full and plenary powers over interstate commerce, that the Supreme Court had extended this power into many lines of commerce and industry, and that the presumption of the validity of acts of the Interior Department agents compelled him to deny the application.

J. Howard Marshall, Assistant United States Attorney-General; A. D. Ryan, chief investigator for the department, and S. D. Bennett, United States Attorney at Beaumont, were defendants.

Marshall sought to show that Congress felt it necessary to check shipments of refined oil as one outlet of illegally produced oil which was demoralizing the market over all the country.

Eighteenth Amendment Cited.

He said defense counsel could show that 80 to 85 per cent of all oil produced in Texas went into interstate commerce and prevention of interstate shipment of that part produced in violation of regulations of the State Railroad Commission would assist the citizens of Texas by preventing loss of royalties and taxes on oil.

In rebuttal, an attorney for the plaintiffs asked "where would the end be?" if a limit were not placed on activities of Federal agencies in State matters. He objected to a declaration of defense counsel that Interior Department agents were merely co-operating with State authorities. He was answered by Judge Bryant's observation that instances of such co-operation were not lacking and citing the prohibition amendment.

Ickes Terms Decision "Sweeping Upholding of Act."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Secretary of the Interior Ickes last night hailed the Federal Court decision in Texas against the Panama Refining Co. as a "sweeping upholding of the National Recovery Act."

In a statement Ickes, who is the Oil Administrator, said:

"The refusal of the Federal Court for the Eastern District of Texas to grant a temporary injunction against the Government is another sweeping upholding of the National Recovery Act. By its action the Court maintains the right of Government agents to full information on purchases and production of petroleum by refineries.

"The decision is naturally a great satisfaction to me, as it involves not only the orders against 'hot oil' shipments, but the entire petroleum code."

BUSINESS GETTING BETTER LEAGUE BULLETIN DECLARES

Debt, Unstable Currency and Trade Barriers Still Obstacle to Recovery, It Says.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Oct. 4.—At the end of July there was more confidence and greater economic activity in the world as a whole than at any time since the depression began, said the "World Economic Survey," issued by the League of Nations today.

The book added that hope persists the forces of recovery, "evident not only in the United States, but elsewhere as well," will develop further strength. "Indebtedness, currency instability and excessive trade restrictions "are obstacles to recovery which cannot be expected to vanish without positive action based on international agreement."

Chancellor of Exchequer Predicts Britain's Return To Gold--On Conditions

Neville Chamberlain Intimates That Other Nations Must Do Something Too—Montagu Norman Thinks Empire Is Gaining on the Depression.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Neville Chamberlain, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, last night set forth four main objectives he believes necessary before world prosperity is regained.

In a speech before British bankers, Chamberlain attacked high tariffs and uncontrolled European inflation. He predicted England's eventual return to the gold standard.

Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, in a brief speech, declared that the world could look forward to gradual improvement, and said England's prospects were "hopeful."

Four "Prosperity Points."

The four "prosperity points" emphasized by Chamberlain, were:

Lowering of excessive trade barriers.

A rise in commodity prices to be attained by control of supply and demand.

Establishment of an international monetary standard.

Resumption of international lending.

One of the conditions Chamberlain previously had set for England's return to the gold standard was settlement of war debts.

Chamberlain attacked British critics who called for "abandonment of orthodox methods and seek to adopt in public affairs 'imaginative' finance, although in private finance it generally goes by a much less agreeable title.' He said:

Effect of Currency Anxiety.

"It is very well for those who have no responsibility for what may follow, but for an old country like this whose roots are extended to the uttermost parts of the earth, such a Government must be very sure the old principles have really failed before they abandon them, and that new experiments are really likely to succeed before they venture to embark on them.

"I do not believe that the multiplication of trade barriers in recent years has been entirely or even mainly due to the growth of a spirit of economic nationalism. I rather ascribe it to fears born of experience of uncontrolled inflation in certain European countries.

"I believe that if all anxieties about stability of currency were to be removed, then the principal reason for these exchange controls, these quotas and excessive tariffs, would disappear."

While monetary factors have great influence in bringing about a rise in commodity prices, Chamberlain said, "the best and quickest method of bringing about such a rise is control of production and proper adaptation of supply to demand."

Discussing establishment of an international monetary standard, he declared:

"It seems likely that ultimately we will return to the gold standard.

"But we cannot consent to link our currency to gold until certain conditions permit the gold standard to function efficiently."

Here Chamberlain referred to war debts and the dollar stabilization issue raised at the World Economic Conference. He remarked: "I need not repeat what those conditions are, but I will say that they do not exist yet."

Basis of International Loans.

Resumption of international lending, according to Chamberlain, is "dependent upon a return of confidence."

Montagu Norman said:

"While prospects at home are hopeful, we cannot look to the East or the West without seeing clouds. The clouds may pass away, but there they are, for the moment.

"We can look forward to some gradual improvement, but it will be piecemeal, and there will be many difficulties at home and abroad, and many disagreements. But I console myself with the thought that dogs bark and the caravan passes on."

BRITON PLEADS CAUSE OF JEWS AT GENEVA

William Ormsby-Gore Urges They Be Given All Rights Under Minority Treaties.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Oct. 4.—William G. A. Ormsby-Gore, British Commissioner of Works, declared before the League of Nations Political Committee today that Jews should be considered a racial minority and given all rights and protection under minority treaties.

The committee in its studies of minorities had been asked by the German representative, Dr. Von Keller, not to "mix" the Jewish question with a debate on minorities since the Jewish problem was a special one of race and the Jews had never asked to be treated as a minority.

Ormsby-Gore, considering Von Keller's speech point for point, delivered a defense of the parliamentary system of Government and criticised severely Von Keller's condemnation of "forced assimilation of foreign minorities by a dominant population." Ormsby-Gore declared: "There is among the Jews a sense of historic continuity . . . we must regard German Jews, as well as Jews elsewhere, as definitely a racial minority."

Objects to German View.

He said he particularly objected to the German delegate's view that people of Germanic origin everywhere from a part of the German Ethnical Unity, and declared that Great Britain had survived very well without regarding all peoples under her flag as Englishmen.

"What a tremendous responsibility we would have to shoulder," he continued, "if we consider all citizens of the United States who claim descent from the Mayflower Pilgrims as Englishmen."

After describing the great qualities of Disraeli who, Ormsby-Gore pointed out, always proclaimed himself as "the proudest of Jews," he declared that Jews everywhere were bound by race, blood anad history to all Jews in the world.

Demands Equal Rights.

He demanded equal rights for all peoples and insisted it was necessary for the League "solemnly to reaffirm the resolution of 1922" which expressed the hope that countries which had not signed minority treaties should nevertheless extend treaty privileges to their minorities.

Ormsby-Gore presented three proposals designed to give greater publicity to the League's treatment of minority questions and said that all that was required of the League in the present situation is to fulfill the duties as a League under existing minority treaties.

PRISONER SAYS HE ALONE SET REICHSTAG ON FIRE

Marinus Van der Lubbe Insists That He Had No Accomplices.

LEIPZIG, Germany, Oct. 4.—Marinus Van der Lubbe, the Dutchman who confessed in court that he started the fire which damaged the German Reichstag building last February, stubbornly insisted today that he set the fire unaided.

Asked directly by Wilhelm Buenger, the presiding Judge, Van der Lubbe asserted he had no accomplices and added had not even seen Ernest Torgler, former Communist leader, either in the Reichstag building the day of the fire or at any time before.

At the urging of defense counsel, Judge Buenger continued questioning Van der Lubbe along the same line, asking: "Is Torgler entirely unknown to you?" "Yes," Van der Lubbe promptly replied.

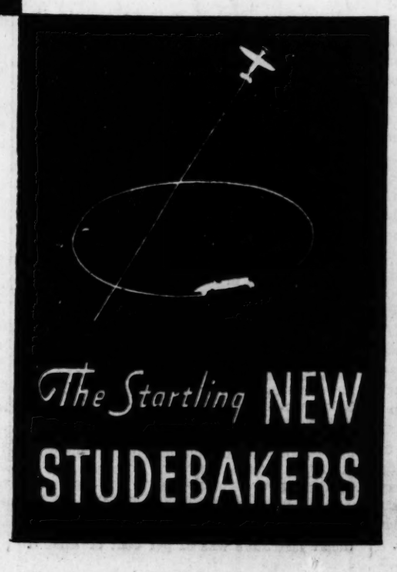

The confessed incendiary who, despite charges of the prosecution steadfastly has maintained that he is not a Communist, then stammered that he had been near the Reichstag the day of the fire to "look around," but had not gone inside.

Judge Buenger asked Van der Lubbe how he explained the reports of three experts that the fire could not have been started by "you alone." "I don't know," was the defendant's reply.

THIRD SPANISH GOVERNMENT IN FOUR MONTHS COLLAPSES

Parliament Votes Two to One Against Lerroux Cabinet, in Power Only 21 Days.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Oct. 4.—Spain's third Government collapse in four months has left the country without a Premier, without a cabinet and without a Congress.

Parliament turned against the government of Premier Alejandro Lerroux by a vote of more than two to one after the veteran radical Republican had walked dramatically out of the chamber at the head of his cabinet, after only 21 days in power. Bedlam reigned in Parliament as one after another of the Lerroux supporters joined minority groups in breaking away. A final vote of confidence, taken in the absence of the Premier, who already had announced his resignation, resulted 189 to 91 against the Government.

In view of the governmental crisis, Julian Bestiero, president of the Assembly, suspended Congress. Opposition Deputies maintained his action was in violation of parliamentary procedure because he insisted on a vote after Lerroux had resigned. As head of the Congress, Bestiero will consult with President Alcala Zamora first, followed by other outstanding political personalities of Spain.

Widespread precautions were being taken in the capital and throughout Spain because of the excited state of mind of the public generally.

AMADOR ASSUMES PRESIDENCY OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS COUNCIL

Argentine Delegation Is on the Way and Japanese Seat Also Is Vacant.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Oct. 4.—Paoul Amador, son of the first President of Panama and a graduate of Columbia University, began his presidency of a new League of Nations Council today.

The opening session found the seat of Argentina, the new Latin American member, vacant, as was that of Japan. Amador welcomed the other new members, Australia and Denmark, saying their collaboration would constitute a valuable contribution to the work of the League. He announced that the Argentine delegation was on its way to Geneva.

The Council ratified the Assembly's decision to increase the nonpermanent seats from nine to ten, making a total membership of 15, including Japan, which has given a two-year notice of her resignation from the League. In the meantime Japan has indicated her refusal to sit in the Council because of the League's rebuke for her campaign in Manchuria.

U. S. FARM MORTGAGE LOANS AT RATE OF $1,000,000 A DAY

Government Seeks to Speed Up Action on Applications for $800,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—A part of President Roosevelt's endeavor to expand credit, the Farm Credit Administration reported yesterday that it was issuing farm mortgage loans at the rate of $1,000,000 a day and that even this number would be exceeded within another month.

Gov. Henry Morgenthau Jr. of the administration said that greater speed will be necessary to catch up with the requests for $800,000,000 in loans—a record amount in applications—already on file with the 12 Federal land banks, and the new ones pouring in daily.

Land bank staffs have been doubled in some instances and will be tripled at some of the bank centers to keep up with the demand for the Government's offer of mortgage loans at interest rates as low as 4½ per cent. Increases in the number of appraisers is the main goal, with more than 2100 of them now on the job.

8 UNION GROUPS CHARGE LAXITY IN PUBLIC WORKS

Want A. F. of L. Convention to Appeal to President to Provide More Jobs or Oust Officials.

THOUSANDS SAID TO BE SUFFERING

Resolution Criticising Spending of $3,000,000,000 Fund Is Referred to Committee.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Eight national and international unions proposed today that the American Federation of Labor convention appeal to President Roosevelt for speedier spread of the public works program or removal of the officials in charge of it.

Their resolution said that "through the laxity or the inefficiency of those entrusted with the expenditure" of the $3,300,000,000 public works fund, thousands of industrial workers "are in suffering and want," and added:

"Resolved, That this convention appeal to the President for the removal of those public officials . . . . who either through their laxity or their inefficiency are responsible for much of the present unemployment . . . unless those now in charge can show their willingness to carry out the intent of Congress."

This resolution was signed by representatives of the Sheet Metal Workers, Boot and Shoe Workers, Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers, Elevator Contractors, Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, Street and Electric Railway Employes, Theatrical Stage Employes, Upholsterers, the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor and Newspaper Writers' Union No. 17,662.

The resolution was referred to a committee for consideration.

Other Resolutions.

Other resolutions were proposed demanding labor representation on State NRA boards, protesting against the establishment of Government workers' salaries on a cost of living basis, objecting to alleged violations of the textile codes and condemning the Hitler Government in Germany for its actions against labor and racial groups.

The proposal that the section of the recovery act permitting organization and collective bargaining be applied to all city, county and state employes was advanced by delegates for the International Association of Fire Fighters, while the American Federation of Teachers asked for an "unceasing activity" for ratification of the child labor amendment and establishment of a national banking system "under Federal ownership and control."

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers introduced a resolution for a congressional investigation of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and associated companies and enactment of legislation which, it said, was necessary to "prevent the abuses and impositions on the public by the operations" of this group.

Against Strike-Breaking Tactics.

Holding that "crews of professional strike-breakers are transported to points where the workers have not struck and have not threatened to strike, the purpose being to intimidate employes who practice collective bargaining during negotiations of contracts," the International Typographical Union suggested that the Federation request Congress "to investigate the activities of strike-breaking agencies" and enact remedial legislation.

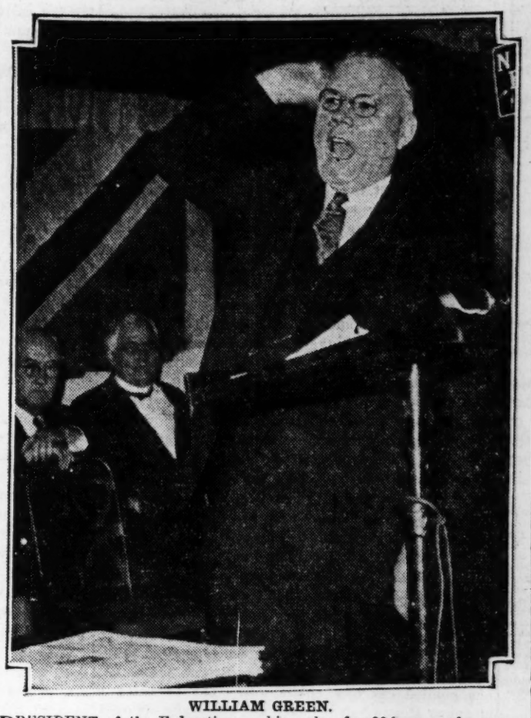

The building trades department reported that "in large cities certain public officeholders in charge of law enforcement machinery are attempting to gain control and domination over local labor unions through intimidation and coercion of their officers and members in order to suit their political ambitions and greed and place themselves in full and complete control over employing contractors and workers engaged in public works, solely for personal aggrandizement."

Charging Father Charles E. Coughlin of Detroit with pursuing an "open shop" policy contrary to the interest of organized labor, a resolution by Frank X. Martel of the International Typographical Union asked the Federation to find him no longer entitled to financial support from any trade unionists.

The resolution set out that Father Coughlin was erecting an edifice at Royal Oak, Mich., "in which he has publicly announced that the so-called 'open shop' policy of employment will prevail and whereon building trades mechanics are being employed as skilled labor at unskilled labor wages," and that he "has resisted all efforts on the part of organized labor to induce him to have his printed matter executed under union conditions and his new edifice constructed under union labor and union wage schedules."

The convention has 566 registered delegates in attendance, the largest number in its history.

Holds Blue Eagle Doesn't Permit Conspiracy Against Public to Eliminate Competition.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 4. — Circuit Judge Paul D. Barns ruled yesterday that the National Industrial Recovery Act does not give business the right to "conspire against the public" and eliminate competition in prices.

In making permanent an injunction sought by J. L. Jenkins and David L. Kemp against the Cleaners' and Dyers' Association of Greater Miami, Judge Barns said the "right or duty to enter a code is not to be taken as a franchise for aggression upon the public."

Jenkins and Kemp said they had signed the blanket NRA code with other members of the association and that other members had attempted to force them to meet prices fixed by the association.

"This is clearly a combination to fix prices," Judge Barns ruled, "and, if not criminal, at least a combination to eliminate competition as to prices, a clear case of combination and conspiring against the public and all this is published as done under the NRA blanket code.

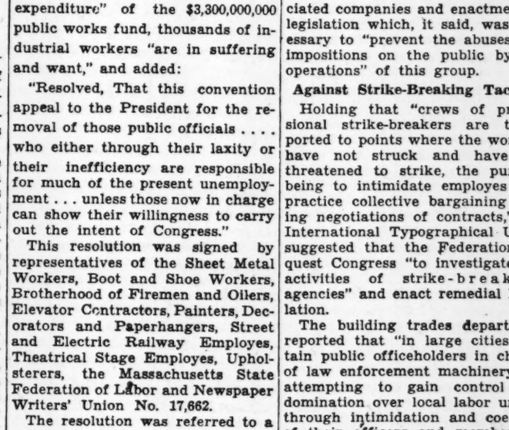

"A most extraordinary case wherein the parties evidently think 'codes' means 'price-fixing' of the sales price by combination and confederation, and the elimination of competition in that respect. Certainly no such interpretation is justified and is contrary to the intentions of the act."

DESIGNED AND BUILT FOR HARD-HEADED PEOPLE

FOR people who want a very full dollar's worth for every dollar they spend, the new Graham has been designed. It is offered in the sincere belief that it is the greatest automobile value in its price-class today.

The Graham engine—the heart of the car—is very finely engineered. The connecting-rod bearings are diamond-bored. It has replaceable Babbitt-lined crankshaft bearings and steel-backed camshaft bearings. It has oil-pressure lubrication to all crankshaft bearings and valve tappets. The cylinder walls and piston rings are lubricated by oil spray-metered from the connecting-rod bearings.

Graham rear axle gears are lapped and very carefully located and tested, to produce the longest wear. The rear axle ring gear is held in specially reinforced bearing supports.

These and many other refinements are hidden away out of sight, but they add tremendously to the life of the car.

And Graham bodies, of extra-strong wood-and-steel construction, are completely rubber-insulated to prevent creaking. The body finishes used are the toughest and most durable known.

But in order really to understand Graham value, you ought to see and drive the car. . . . We will gladly arrange a demonstration for you at your convenience.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles: that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong; whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Why We Persist.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHY does the Post-Dispatch persist in speaking of this year's Veiled Prophet's parade and ball as the fifty-fourth? The official program says it is the fifty-fifth, and the officials ought to know. KREWESMAN.

The Prophet's first visit was in 1878. One year later, in 1879, he made his second visit; two years later, 1880, his third visit, and so on to the present, 55 years later, which would be his fifty-sixth visit, but for the fact that two visits were omitted, in 1917 and 1918. So this is the fifty-fourth.—Editor's Note.

Recalling Julius Barnes' Program.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

JULIUS BARNES has broken into the news again! Buying the Missouri State Life Insurance Co. with its own money!

Remember 'way back in 1930 when he split the air with speeches advocating wage cuts? Yes sir, he would end the depression by preventing the $30-a-week workers from putting $40 or more each week into the savings bank, by putting two men to work at $15 a week each. (He didn't know that it was commercial deposits that gorged the savings banks.)

He got what he wanted, excepting that the one worker got $15 a week, but they forgot to hire the other fellow. And strangely enough, business got worse!

Barnes and the National Economy League were yelling for economy and cuts, so the people who only read the headlines cut their purchases, their employes' wages, demanded price cuts (and got them) and decided that the old car would do for another year. The cuts became general, until even underfed railroad presidents patriotically took salary cuts.

But the insurance companies, who so widely advertised the idea of cuts, forgot to cut rates and officers' salaries, and even indulged in post-boom high finance, as witness the Missouri State Life.

It must seem strange to Julius Barnes, but the big idea now is that if we don't hurry up and pay more and bigger wages oftener, we will not be able to replace capital losses resulting from the cuts, and may lose all.

Even the NRA re-employment questionnaire in cash and percentages indicates that the cash has helped some, but somehow the percentages have failed to stimulate buying power. PLATO JR.

PROGRESS OF PUBLIC WORKS.

The difficulties of launching a great public works program in the United States are illustrated by what is going on in almost every unit of government. States, cities and towns find it difficult to move because of their debt limitations.

The freedom of the Government itself in this field invites envious comparison. Immense projects are getting under way upon rivers and harbors. The Government's navy building plan is actively in progress in shipbuilding yards. Federal buildings are under construction at a time when states and cities which would like to improve their institutions face discouraging barriers.

Nevertheless, by Sept. 25 the Public Works Administrator had requested of the Federal Treasury $1,134,000,000. This is about one-third of the total appropriation of $3,300,000,000. Defenders of Secretary Ickes insist that the public works program has not been slow because of administration; that delays are inherent in the act itself. Thus, the chief impediment has been approval of projects by state and municipal authorities. In our own State of Missouri, as in the City of St. Louis, this is the great difficulty. Both State and city fear bond issues.

A way must be found out of these difficulties. Since they are widespread, their solution is certain. The public works program is an integral part of the whole recovery plan. The plan cannot succeed without it. We do not have to agree upon the causes of the depression to assent that a time has come when we can no longer support the working people in idleness. We must give them work. If we strain the credit of every unit of government, we are still bound by the necessity to give the people work. This necessity presses upon us as surely as it pressed upon the Roman Emperors who built the aqueducts, the port at the mouth of the Tiber, the innumerable embellishments and monuments which were the grandeur of Rome.

Objection is sometimes made that public works cannot be everlasting; that they leave public coffers in debt; that in the end they cannot employ 15,000,000 people. This is to look at the whole matter negatively. John Maynard Keynes, the British economist, has pointed out how public works can be made a means of starting all industry and commerce off dead center. He believes the whole wide world could recover from depression by cheapening money and putting people to work on public programs. This has been the program of the United States, but latterly we seem to have shrunk from the necessity to cheapen money. If so, we are disregarding the advice of the world's foremost authority.

As to government units going into debt, what hope can they have of remaining solvent when industry is paralyzed and the people walk the streets of the cities asking for bread? It is not for the Government of the United States, or for the State of Missouri, or for the City of St. Louis, to ask how it can put the people to work. They have only to consider what the consequences will be if they do not do so. President Green of the American Federation of Labor estimates that there are still more than 11,000,000 unemployed. Winter approaches. Relief funds everywhere are beggared. It is no time to stand and discuss the fine legalisms of constitutionalism, or to wonder how the people will vote. It is time to act.

It is not true that public works cannot be made to give work to the people. The whole number of those whose employment enters into any project is not necessarily visible at the point of construction. Work begins on the drawing boards. It flows through steel mills, stone quarries, cement works, saw mills, lumber yards, machine shops, coal mines, stores, factories. It reaches the grower of food. It increases traffic. It ramifies into every deep and every keep of our industrial and social existence. The case is perfectly put in the old jingle about the old woman who could not get home at night because she could not get her pig over the stile:

The cat began to kill the rat,
The rat began to gnaw the rope,
The rope began to hang the butcher,
The butcher began to kill the ox,
The ox began to drink the water,
The water began to quench the fire,
The fire began to burn the stick,
The stick began to beat the dog,
The dog began to bite the pig,
The pig, in a fright, jumped over the stile,
And so the old woman got home that night.

So shall we get home this night, and in no other way.

FORGOTTEN DEMOCRATS IN ILLINOIS.

A new brotherhood of man has emerged in Illinois, the Loyalty League of Forgotten Democrats. The organization nobly dedicates itself to "observance and strict adherence to those unselfish and burnt-in principles of true democracy" promulgated by Democratic Presidents from Jefferson to Roosevelt. This sounds highly idealistic, but the prospectus soon gets down to a practical matter—obtaining political jobs for the boys. If there aren't enough jobs for all of those who helped get out the vote, the boys are willing to wait their turn. Hence their platform includes a proviso for retirement of all appointees at the end of four years, "so their positions may be filled by other eligible and worthy Democratic party workers." This installment plan is an interesting variation of the historic spoils system. The L. L. F. D. calls it the "stagger system," and it is a fitting name. Undoubtedly, the sovereign State of Illinois would soon be staggering if afflicted by a horde of office holders appointed in that manner.

THE HOT-DOG DAYS.

If it is doubted that these are the hot-dog days, one has only to read the statistics of the Chicago Fair.

The largest take in the concession field to date is that of amusements, headed by the Streets of Paris. The next is that of restaurants. One of the big packing companies took the hot-dog concession, chiefly as an advertisement. It expected to lose money on it. What was its surprise to discover it was in possession of a bonanza! Hot dogs made up the bulk of the entire restaurant receipts. More than 17,000,000 people have gone to the Fair. The Fair has gone to the hot dogs.

We have a notion about this. It is that roaming around the country in automobiles has revolutionized feeding in the United States. Epicureanism was developed by a civilization which enjoyed leisure, repose and philosophic discussion. The Lucullans, who became famous for the luxury of their repasts, lounged in loggias to the music of the zither, and drank to the soft dancing of Nubian slaves.

As for ourselves, a civilization nurtured upon ham and eggs was in time to evolve into one nourishing itself upon sandwiches and roadside roughage. We have so long eaten in the automobile seat and sat on the crumbs that we are no longer comfortable at table. We have inhaled carbon monoxide until we prefer it to the bouquet of wine. We would much rather stand up and eat a hot dog with mustard and horseradish, and that is what we did at Chicago.

TRANSPORTATION SWEAT-SHOPS.

Cutthroat competition is about as popular, we reckon, as a peevish rattlesnake. That is to say, it hasn't a disinterested friend on earth. That accounts for the extraordinary reception accorded the recovery program's opening proposal to pry this vicious leech off the back of industry.

The expression, cutthroat competition, reveals to most of us a grisly picture—a dark, foul sweat-shop, where women and children toil unconscionably long hours for miserable pittances. There are other scenes, of course. There are the mills to whose flying spindles childhood is bound in slavery. There is Gastonia of wretched memory, now, happily, a free town, its night of slavery ended.

Unfortunately, cutthroat competition has not been confined to noisome tenements or to textile mills. The dreary truth is that cutthroat competition is found in many forms and places. It operates as ruthlessly in the sugar-beet fields, for example, as in any forbidding basement or factory. It operates on our broad highways.

The railroads, for example, complain of the cutthroat competition of truck and bus. They have a grievance. Railroad labor, thanks primarily to its efficient organization, is well paid, on a schedule of reasonable working hours. That is not true of the truck or the bus, industries in which "rugged individualism" may be seen, not through the theoretical spectacles of outmoded philosophy, but as it actually is. Here the wage and working day are determined, mostly, by individual bargaining. What are they?

The public does not know, other than that they are, broadly speaking, unregulated. The railroads say, truly, we believe, that in these new branches of transportation wages are low and hours are long. They insist this is unfair competition.

They cite as a further fact the comparative freedom from taxation which the truck and the bus enjoy, operating, as they do, on roads built by the public's money. Those advantages of low wages, long hours and what really amounts to tax exemption, the railroads insist, constitute cutthroat competition. Any of us, whatever our business, would make the same charge if confronted by a similar situation.

Now the truck and the bus are here, and here to stay, but so, too, are the railroads. We need them all. But, manifestly, no agency of transportation is entitled to special privileges. If the transportation war is for the survival of the fittest, the war ought to be fought on equal terms.

The railroads, to be sure, have troubles in their portfolios that are not chargeable to truck or barge, or any other transportation agency. And some of the railroads, even in these difficult times, are doing pretty well, notwithstanding the truck and bus. The Katy is going along, playing "heads-up baseball", as the diamond metaphor has it, and taking warranted pride in the fact that it has never had to borrow a penny from the Government. Another good railroad in the Southwest, the Santa Fe, is out of the red, which is a vindication of the wisdom and foresight of its great president, E. P. Ripley, dead these many years, who built a railroad while many contemporary executives were "dreaming of empire" and personally getting rich.

Just the same, the railroads are entitled to a fair deal and, with the truck and bus operators organizing to bring themselves under the provisions of the NRA, there is a prospect at least that cutthroat competition will disappear from the transportation industry.

THE WRONG END FOR NRA.

Admiral Byrd is carrying with him to his base in Antarctica an NRA banner, which he intends to unfurl to the sub-zero breezes. That is a novel idea. No doubt, however, the seagulls and penguins, or whatever fauna inhabit the Far South (no human beings have been found) will be complacent. They have seen the Admiral before and know his bent for odd ideas, such as flying over the South Pole in flimsy aircraft.

For NRA purposes, the Admiral is going to the wrong end of the earth. He should have taken the banner to the northern regions, where, instead of having a six or eight-hour day, the Eskimos have a six-month day. What a field for NRA and Gen. Johnson!

LESSENING TENSION ALONG THE BALTIC.

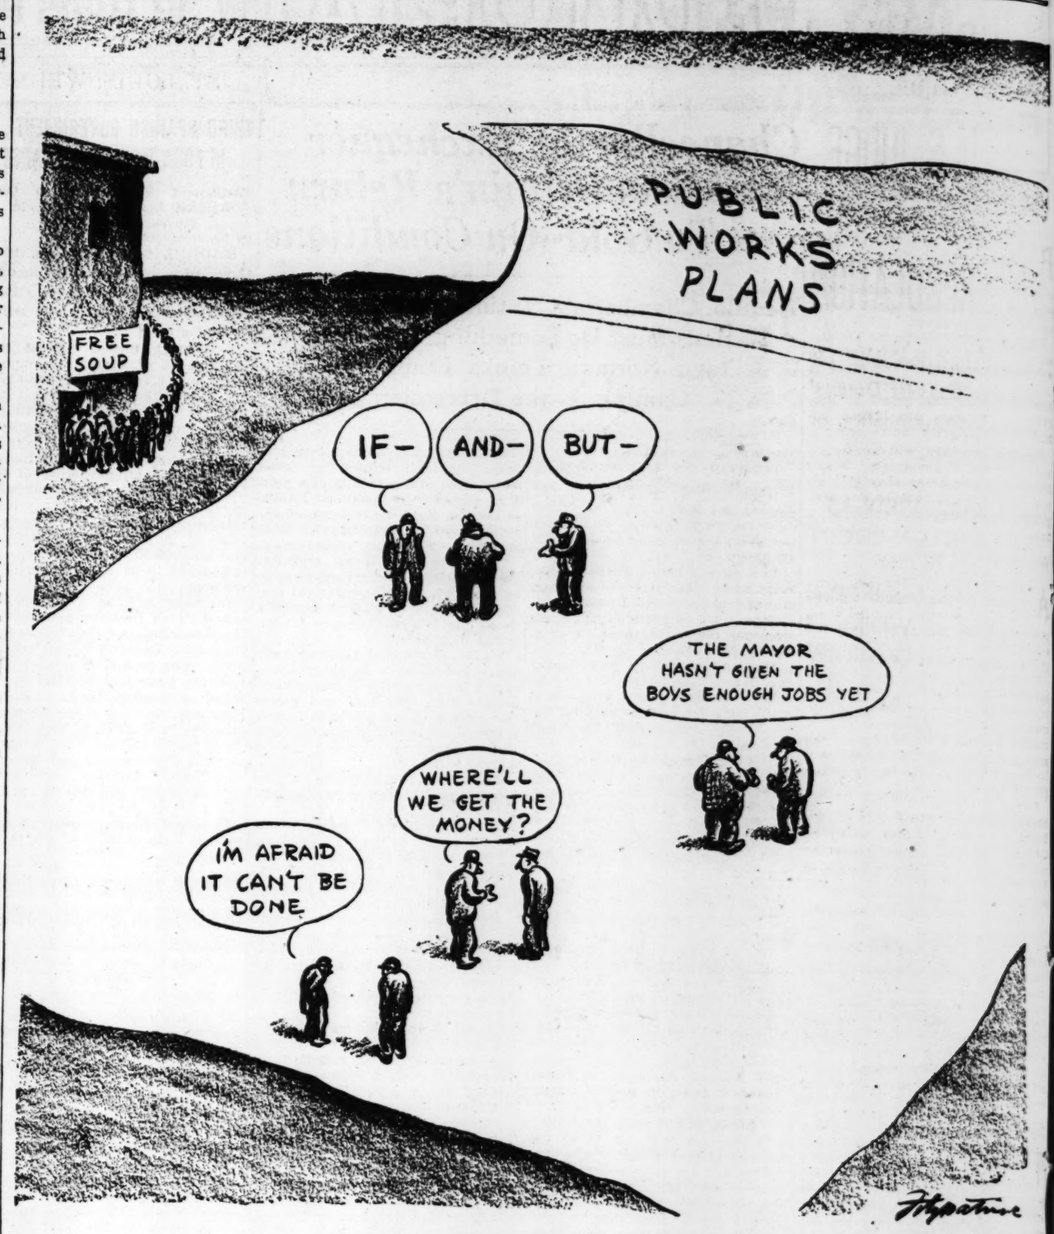

Writing from the Free City of Danzig for the Christian Science Monitor, Godfrey Lias finds that Poland and Danzig have finally shaken hands and that the feeling generally is one of letting bygones be bygones. Mr. Lias dates this new era in what has come to be thought of as Eastern Europe's powder magazine from the recent agreement between Poland and Danzig regarding distribution of foreign shipping.

Heretofore, Poland has made almost sole use of Gdynia, its port at the north extremity of the corridor. This has worked a great hardship on the once flourishing Danzig, which lies only a few miles to the east. Under the agreement, Poland has pledged itself to see that Danzig enjoys at least an equal share of Polish shipping. Danzig, Mr. Lias reports, has shown its appreciation by announcing that it will remove certain restrictions against Poles who live within the confines of the free territory.

While these signs of a better spirit in the vicinity of Danzig and the militaristic corridor are more than welcome, it would be unwise to expect too much of them. Dr. Clement Vollmer, professor of Germanic literature in Duke University, who has given much thought to the subject, sees little hope for harmonious relationships so long as the corridor remains as established by the map revisionists at Versailles. In the autumn issue of Foreign Affairs, he proposes abandonment of the strip which divides German territory and the creation of another corridor to the Baltic along the western bank of the Memel River, now the boundary between East Prussia and Latvia. This would unite East Prussia with Germany proper, make Danzig again a German city and give Poland an outlet for ocean commerce.

The chief difficulty in the way of this proposal is the intensive development of the present corridor by the Poles, who have gone to great lengths to transform the small town of Gdynia into a seaport with modern facilities. Nothing justifies the hope that Poland is ready to abandon her public works or that Germany would pay her to do so.

Nevertheless, both Poles and Germans must in time recognize that only by a co-operative revision of the present international lines can the mistake of the peace conference be corrected. When they get ready to do this, the plan for shifting the corridor to the east may prove to be just what they need.

THE SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS?

What About Prices?

Higher prices are inevitable under recovery plan, whose fate hinges on who profits by them; farmer benefits by crop reduction subsidy, but will lose if goods he buys rise unduly; worker gains by higher hourly pay, but yearly income must go up more than living costs; adequate price control is imperative for NRA's success.

From the Nation.

"CONSIDERATION of price is, I think, the greatest need in the NRA today," wrote William F. Ogburn in last week's Nation. We agree with him, for it is the movement of prices that will settle eventually the success or failure of the entire recovery program.

Prices in general are bound to go up if the recovery plan works at all. Higher prices are what the public bargained for when it accepted President Roosevelt's scheme, although a good many persons seem to have forgotten that fact and to be dismayed when confronted with an actual rise in the cost of living. Stated nakedly, the recovery program is intended to redistribute the national income so that certain classes will have a larger share than now. That means, of course—although this is not generally stressed—that other classes will have relatively less. The idea is more euphemistically expressed in the newspapers as "increasing the buying power of farmers and wage-earners."

It would be too harsh to describe the program as robbing Peter to pay Paul. More correctly, it is a concession of a little more to Paul on the part of Peter in order to enable Peter to retain anything at all. Also, there are two Pauls: Paul I, the farmer, and Paul II, the wage-earner, whose interests are in many respects opposed.

Paul I is to be subsidized by raising the price of farm products through reducing their quantity. This is to be accomplished by payments to keep land out of cultivation, the money for which is coming from taxes—already effective on wheat and cotton—calculated to raise the price of farm products to all consumers, but bearing especially on Peter and Paul II.

Meanwhile, Paul II is to be assisted by shortening industrial working hours and so absorbing some of the unemployed. But the industrial codes are not just a spread-the-work scheme devised merely to extend existing wage payments to more persons. They propose by minimum-wage scales to increase hourly pay, which means higher cost of production and thus increased prices for both Pauls as well as for Peter.

Paul I stands to gain only if the prices of what he sells advance proportionally more than those of what he buys. Paul II will benefit only if the average yearly earnings per worker increase more than the advance in his customary budget.

It should be evident, then, that the movement of prices in the next few months will determine the fate of the recovery program. The Nation is supporting that program, in spite of all its dangers and possibilities of miscarriage, in the hope that the contemplated benefits will go to the two Pauls. If, instead, there is a runaway of prices and the increases to the average American's cost of living which are intended to go to farmers and wage-earners are absorbed by manufacturers, merchants, bankers and a crew of promoters, manipulators and speculators, then the national recovery program will in fact become a rout headed to destruction.

What are the indications so far? In regard to the farmers, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics states that the farmer's dollar last June was 62 per cent of what it was from 1909 to 1914. By July 15, it had moved up to 71 per cent, but Aug. 15 it had dropped to 64 per cent. Farmers in the Middle West have been quoted as complaining that the price of overalls was going up faster than that of wheat, but on Sept. 14 Fred C. Howe, consumers' counsel of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, stated that higher retail prices had been reflected in better payments to farmers:

"Fifteen of the 16 representative foods reported on show higher prices to consumers on Aug. 15 than on Feb. 15. We have analyzed changes in the farm prices of 13, and find that the margin between farm and consumer prices has changed only slightly if the amount of the processing tax on wheat is deducted from the margins on flour products. This tax will eventually be used for the benefit of the wheat grower. This indicates that generally the farmers are getting the benefit of the extra money that consumers are paying out.

"Increase in farmers' income is only half the story. The other half is the increased cost of things the farmer must buy. The latter increased between Feb. 15 and Aug. 15 to an average of 11 per cent above prewar level, against an average increase in farm prices of 23 per cent. While we have reduced the gap between these two prices in the first six months of the recovery program, we are still a long way from our goal of parity in prices for farmers."

In an effort to benefit the farmer and protect the consumer, the A. A. A. is making public the extra cost of various articles legitimately chargeable to the processing tax. It states, for instance, that the tax on a cotton sheet 81 by 99 inches, retailing at an average price of $1.16, is just under 8 cents, or 7 per cent. On work shirts selling on Aug. 30 in 22 cities at an average price of 85 cents, the tax is 3½ cents, or 4 per cent. Recently some evidences of profiteering have appeared. Dr. Howe says:

"Since these retail prices were collected, advertisements in the press and trade letters report much greater increases than had occurred up to Aug. 31. In some cases, these amount to as much as 50 per cent."

In regard to bread, the A. A. A. estimates that on an 8-cent loaf the processing tax amounts to about half a cent. Bakers in Atlanta, Charleston, Mobile, Savannah, Scranton, San Francisco and Seattle have recently been asked to explain why they should charge a cent more for a pound loaf than the average national price.

It is only fair to say that the processing taxes of the A. A. A. are not the only extra costs. There are also, of course, the additional burdens imposed by the codes of the NRA, and the inevitable increase in price due to the action of this country in going off the gold basis. These rises are more intricate and individual than those due to the processing taxes, and as yet the public has received no information in regard to what allowances should be made for them.

The control of prices must be undertaken adequately and promptly by the NRA if the public is to have any confidence in the honesty or effectiveness of the recovery program. The necessity of price control is squarely before the administration.

Electricity at Half the Cost

From the Milwaukee Journal.

ANNOUNCEMENT of the schedule of power rates to be paid in the Muscle Shoals area occasions a good deal of surprise and apprehension. The surprise is from users of electricity in cities served by private companies, who have been paying, even under the most favorable conditions, a good deal more than the Tennessee Valley Authority proposes to charge its customers. The apprehension is from holders of utility securities.

Users would not be surprised if they were familiar with the Ontario experiment. That Province has demonstrated that, with the right kind of financing and the right kind of management, electricity can be furnished to homes at rates about half what the householders of America have been paying. The demonstration was there for all to see. But Americans have been taught by utility propaganda that such an experiment would not work in this country. It is the job of the Tennessee Valley Authority to show that it can, and will, work.

The Authority will furnish 50 kilowatts of electricity to a resident of Tennessee for $1.50. The same amount costs a resident of New York City $3.05. The comparison grows more interesting as it proceeds: 200 kilowatts, $4.50 in Tennessee and $10.55 in New York City; 400 kilowatts, $6.50 in Tennessee, $20.55 in New York City; 600 kilowatts, $7.30 in Tennessee, $30.55 in New York City.

But the comparisons need not be for New York alone. St. Louis, Louisville, Knoxville, Atlanta, all show the same comparative type of high rate that keeps electricity out of the home instead of drawing it in. On the other hand, Tacoma, with its municipally-owned plant, now gives to its inhabitants almost exactly the same rates that the Tennessee Valley Authority proposes.

There will, of course, be the argument of the private companies that public money has gone into the Muscle Shoals project by the millions, while they have to furnish their own capital; that they pay taxes while this Government project does not.

In this case, that argument does not hold. The Authority under the law has to pay a 5 per cent tax to Alabama, and it has figured in enough additional to make up the full average tax that private utilities pay; it has figured in the interest on the money the Government has expended, and has taken account of depreciation, replacement and expansion. In other words, in preparing its yardstick for a comparison of Government with private operation, it has made the basis is of its own accounting comparable to that of private companies.

In fact, the real basis for the Muscle Shoals experiment rests on a good deal deeper foundation than a difference in taxes and the origin of the capital put into the venture. It is a difference between right and wrong financial practices; between sound investment and watered capital; between a policy of expanding consumer needs through cheap rates and limiting consumer consumption through high rates.

What the Tennessee Valley Authority is doing the private companies could have done. They have preferred to go their own way. Too many of them looked up to Insull as the genius of the business. Now they are going to get a yardstick, whether they want it or not. The power program of these United States is going to be reshaped, and some of the wrongs that have been done are going to be righted in the public interest. We cannot go on forever paying tribute to an uneconomic system for the sake of the stock market.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.

PROF. REGGIE TUGWELL, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture and the brainiest member of the Brain Trust, has come back from his tour through the Midwest somewhat discouraged.

There are two reasons for his discouragement. One is hay fever, to which he is addicted. The other is the fact that his pet experiment of boosting agricultural prices by limitation of acreage, has lagged behind industrial price increases.

Tugwell, however, will hardly go to the extent of resigning: First, because the hay fever season is almost over; second, because he hates giving up during the thick of a fight.

Waterway and Railway.

A LOT of wire pulling has gone on inside the Public Works Board. The most skillful wire-pullers are the railroads. And for a very good reason—they have one of their best friends on the board.

For weeks the Mississippi Valley has been howling about the delay in allotting funds for the nine-foot channel on the Mississippi. This channel had been voted by Congress, but was held up by the Public Works Board. Secretary Ickes got the blame.

Actually he was anything but to blame. Sitting on the Public Works Board are nine members, many of them Cabineteers. One Cabineteer is Attorney-General Cummings, who however, is seldom present. He sends a substitute.

While the board looked favorably upon loans for purchase of steel rails and other projects benefiting the railroads, Cummings' substitute consistently argued against the Mississippi nine-foot channel, which would compete with the railroads. The substitute was J. Crawford Biggs of North Carolina, long-time attorney for many Southern railroads. Only recently did the board get the Mississippi channel passed over his opposition.

Sea Scouts.

THE report of the Salvadorean Government that a Japanese ship was seen taking soundings in the Gulf of Fonseca was scouted officially as a "wild yarn," but unofficially it surprised no one on the inside.

Some reports received by the War and Navy Departments from their trained observer around the Pacific sound incredible. Not long ago, for instance, a Japanese naval captain was arrested taking soundings in San Diego Harbor. The story never leaked out, probably will be denied. But it was true.

The ludicrous thing was that the man arrested could have gotten the soundings by consulting various marine maps. They are not secret.

Some months before—near the height of the Manchurian crisis—a Japanese warship was found in distress in Magdelena Bay near Lower California. When an American vessel offered to come to its assistance, the offer was refused.

The Gulf of Fonseca, bordering Honduras, Salvador and Nicaragua—where the last Japanese vessel allegedly was sighted—is leased to the United States as a naval base.

Aluminum Laughs.

THE NRA'S aluminum code hearing was one of the most acrimonious yet held. Arrayed against one another were Andrew W. Mellon's mighty Aluminum Co. of America, author of the code, and a small group of independent producers.

Pompous Winthrop C. Neilson, vice-president of the Aluminum Trust, strove desperately to defend the code. He spoke lovingly of the paternal interest taken by the company in the welfare of its employes.

"We furnish our workers ice water absolutely free of charge and all day long," he related.

The crowded room broke into laughter. Mr. Neilson looked pained. He continued:

"The living houses we furnish our employes are not excelled by any company houses in the country. The sanitation in them is particularly good."

"No, they haven't," admitted Neilson.

George D. Haskell, militant young spokesman of the independent producers, accused the corporation of monopolizing world alumnium supplies. Once when he attempted to buy aluminum, the foreign producers said they would not sell to Americans except at Mellon's price.

Haskell lashed the code mercilessly. Referring to a proposed labor section he said: "There seems to be considerable doubt about the parentage of this provision. Well, it's exactly that kind of a provision, too."

Even Mellon's men joined in the laughter.

Merry-Go-Round.

TWO Cuban exiles are stopping unostentatiously at the Ritz in New York. One is Orestes Ferrara, former Secretary of State, and once one of the most popular Ambassadors Washington has known. . . . The other is Oscar Cintas, his successor in Washington and as unpopular as Ferrara was popular. . . . The recent visit to Washington of several prominent Republican Congressional leaders uncovered the fact that there is a secret plan on foot for an investigation of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration when Congress reconvenes. . . The probe is expected to air the operations of Federal Milk Administrator Clyde King, under heavy fire by milk farmers all over the country. . . . $40,199,041—a little less than half of what the Government must pay cotton growers for slashing acreage—already has been distributed. . . . The old Senate Finance Committee hearing room, the scene for many years of major battles over tax and tariff measures, has been completely remodeled. . . . A half-circle rostrum has been built at the rear, and henceforth committee members will sit there in state while listening to witnesses.

TWO FRENCHMEN TAKE OFF ON ALGERIA-INDIA FLIGHT

Jean Assolant and Rene Lefevre Seeking to Set New Distance Record.

By the Associated Press.

ORAN, Algeria, Oct. 4.—Jean Assolant and Rene Lefevre, French aviators who flew from Mair to Spain in 1929, started at 5:45 a. m. today for India in an attempt to beat the distance flight record established last August by two countrymen, Paul Codos and Maurice Rossi.

Their plane, with a cruising speed of 140 miles an hour compared to the 105 miles averaged by Codos and Rossi, has been rechristened "Canary Bird II" in memory of the craft in which they crossed the Atlantic.

If Assolant and Lefevre can surpass the 5563½ miles Codos and Rossi flew from New York to Rayak, Syria, they will win a prize of about $60,000 offered by Pierce Cot, Air Minister, to the French team which, before Dec. 31, covers the longest distance logged by the International Aeronautic Federation.

Public funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

SEVERAL debutante parties have been arranged and the dates announced. Mrs. Joseph L. Chambers, 4969 Pershing avenue, will be hostess at a dinner dance Friday night, Oct. 27, at the St. Louis Woman's Club in honor of her granddaughter, Miss Delphine Polk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Julius Polk, 28 Westmoreland place. The invitations will be out in a few days.

Miss Judith Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Harris, 6 Beverly place, and Miss Jane Armistead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Armistead, Ladue and Mosley road, will make their formal debuts together, at a dance to be given by their parents Friday night, Oct. 20, at the Bellerive Country Club.

Mrs. Armistead's sister, Mrs. Stuart Kritzky, of Nashville, Tenn., arrived this morning to be her guest for three weeks, and will be entertained informally.

Miss Winifred Duncan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guilford Duncan, 6363 Alexander drive, will give an informal buffet supper Sunday, Nov. 5, in honor of Miss Laura Stephens Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Grey, 9 Lenox place, and Miss Elizabeth Wyman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Wyman, 7160 Washington boulevard. Invitations have been issued for a luncheon to be given by Mrs. Ross A. Woolsey, 6320 Washington avenue, Friday, Oct. 20, for Miss Gray and Miss Marion Elizabeth Caulk, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John R. Caulk. Miss Gray's debut reception which will take place at the home of her parents, Tuesday, Oct. 17.

Miss Bonnie Langenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Langenberg of the St. Louis Country Club grounds, has gone to Louisville, Ky., to visit her grandmother, Mrs. L. C. Hamilton, and her cousin, Miss Virginia Bonnie. She will be away for about 10 days. Mrs. Langenberg and her daughter returned Thursday from New York, where they recently arrived after a visit of 10 months in Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. John Felix Valle, 10 North Kingshighway, have returned after spending a week in New York and a week in Chicago.

An innovation at the Queen's Supper to be held tonight at the Jefferson Hotel following the coronation ceremonies at the Coliseum will be the presence of a group of ushers who have been asked by the Veiled Prophet to assist in entertaining the maids of honor. At the supper they will wear special insignia and will be seated at a table near those occupied by the debutantes and without introduction will ask the young women to dance.

The ushers will be as follows: Edmund Allen, 2010 Longfellow boulevard; Thomas Bond Jr., 6339 Waterman avenue; Arnold Boogher, 6241 Waterman avenue; Willard W. Boyd III, 4470 Westminster place; Alanson C. Brown Jr., Clayton road; William Fordyce Jr., 19 Washington terrace; Lucian Fouke, St. Louis Country Club grounds; Boyd Hill, 375 North Taylor avenue; Delafield Niedringhaus, 4937 Pershing avenue; Kent Ravenscroft, 625 Skinker road; John H. Senseney, 4555 Pershing avenue; Frank R. Sheldon, 14 Kingsbury place; Arthur Shepley Jr., 320 North Union boulevard, W. Dabney Jr., 5163 Westminster place; Dr. Louis Ferdinand of Hotel Jefferson; Clifton H. McMillan of the St. Louis Country Club grounds, and William C. Connett IV.

The four children of Mr. and Mrs. William Carroll Connett, 4422 Lindell boulevard, will be absent from St. Louis for the next year. Their three daughters, Miss Jane Allen, Miss Jessie and Miss Nancy Connett, sailed Sunday on the Caledonia to attend the University of Edinburgh, Scotland. Miss Jane Allen Connett will continue her college work, having attended Bradford Junior College, Bradford, Mass., for two years. She made her debut two seasons ago. Miss Jessie and Miss Nancy were graduated from the Sacred Heart Convent in June. During their stay in Edinburgh they will be guests at the club for foreign students.

Mr. and Mrs. Connett's son, William Carroll Jr., will sail from New York in about a week for a cruise around the world.

Mrs. John M. Drescher, 4 North Kingshighway, and her young son, John, have returned from Ludington, Mich., where they spent the summer at their cottage. Mr. Drescher who joined them late in the season preceded them home.

The Smith College Club of St. Louis will have its first fall meeting Friday at the home of Miss Mary Morse, 5207 Lindell boulevard. The members will be entertained at luncheon at 1 o'clock, and the business meeting will follow. Miss Marjorie Green, Mrs. Truman Walker and Mrs. Henry Reiner will be assisting hostesses.

Miss Margaret Grolton of the American Red Cross will speak on the work of the Citizens' Relief Committee.

Miss Carolyn Livingston Alexander, daughter of Mrs. James E. Alexander of Washington, D. C., and Louis Henderson Skinner, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sloan Skinner of St. Louis, were married yesterday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, in Chevy Chase. The Rev. T. Lawrence Skinner, brother of the bridegroom, came from Davenport, Ia., to officiate at the wedding.

The bride, who selected her birthday anniversary for her wedding day, was given in marriage by her brother, Fendall Alexander. She wore a gown of peau d'ange ivory lace over satin, and of rare old rose point lace which was worn by her maternal great-grandmother. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Thomas Notley Gore was matron of honor and the only attendant for her sister. She wore a frock of yellow chiffon. Her flowers were bronze chrysanthemums.

William Singleton Camp was best man and the ushers were Elmore D. Hotchkiss Jr., George F. Hester and William L. Jeffries Jr. of Richmond, Va., Harry F. Lowman, Charles E. Langley and Charles F. Brookes of Washington, D. C., Nathaniel S. Kenney of Baltimore and William K. Krepps of New Rochelle, N. Y.

A breakfast for the immediate family and the wedding party followed in the home of the bride's mother, when Mrs. Alexander was assisted by Miss Mary Hoge Livingston, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Paul M. Youngblood of Detroit, Mich., sister of the bridegroom. Mrs. Alexander was in a gown of pansy blue lace and Miss Livingston and Mrs. Youngblood were in black velvet.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Skinner will live at 21 East Bradley lane, Chevy Chase, Md.

The bride was born in Washington and attended Holton Arms School and is a direct descendant of John Alexander, younger son of the Earl of Stirling, who owned estates in Virginia and after whose family the city of Alexandria was named. She is directly descended on her maternal side from Robert Livingston, pioneer of the distinguished New York family.

Mr. and Mrs. Eberhard Anheuser of Golfinhurst in the Sunset Hill Country Club grounds, entertained at a dinner party last night at the Jefferson Hotel in honor of Prince Louis Ferdinand, the second son of the former Crown Prince of Germany, who is spending several weeks in St. Louis. There were twelve guests, including a group of the debutantes. After the dinner the party viewed the Veiled Prophet parade.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Dick, 7269 Greenway avenue, had with them for several days last week, Mr. Dick's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dick of Salt Lake City. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Dick stopped in St. Louis on their way from Washington, D. C., where they were the guests of Mrs. Dick's brother, Secretary of War George H. Dern. Mr. Dick has been recently appointed chief engineer of the Federal Barge Lines and in the future will be stationed at New Orleans.

MR. AND MRS. J. C. DONNELL CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

Dinner Given for Former St. Louisans at Home of Son in Webster Groves.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cary Donnell of Kansas City, former St. Louisans, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary last night at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest C. Donnell, 55 Joy avenue, Webster Groves. Relatives attended a dinner party in their honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Donnell were married at Quitman, Nodaway County, Mo., Oct. 3, 1883. Mrs. Donnell had lived in Holt County and her husband was a native of North Carolina. For a time Donnell was Mayor of Maryville, Mo. Afterwards, in St. Louis, he was connected with the old Mercantile Trust Co. He is now secretary of the Continental Electric Co., Kansas City. Mrs. Donnell is active in women's club work. They drove here for the golden wedding celebration.

MRS. ROOSEVELT CITES VALUE OF SUPERVISED PLAYGROUNDS

Says They Build Child Health and Character and Prevent Juvenile Delinquency.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The need for supervised playgrounds to build child health and character and to counteract juvenile delinquency was stressed yesterday by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in a speech at a recreation conference arranged by the City Park Department.

"A great deal has been said about the cost in taxes for recreational facilities for children," said Mrs. Roosevelt. "In a general way I want to suggest to you what has always seemed to me the very best argument for this kind of tax paying.

"When you pay for things that build up the child's health and character, you are paying for constructive things in the future. We all know that a great deal of juvenile delinquency and crime could be prevented if more children were supervised in their play."

LIABLE FOR COPYRIGHT FEES IN TUNING IN ON RADIO

Resorts That Furnish Such Entertainment to Patrons Must Pay, British Judge Rules.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—English hotels, restaurants and similar gathering places are liable for copyright fees if they have a radio entertainment for guests and tune in on copyrighted music, by a decision of the Court of Appeal today, which affects thousands of such places in England.

The action was taken against a brewery firm which controls many places of refreshment. The defendant alleged the copyright owners were entitled only to the original fee paid by the broadcasting corporation. The Court, however, held that tuning in, under such circumstances, constitutes a "separate performance."

ESCAPED CONVICT SOUGHT AFTER OHIO BANK ROBBERY

Conservator of St. Mary's Depository Identifies Picture as That of Fugitive.

ST. MARYS, O., Oct. 4.—One of five men being sought today for the $12,050 robbery of the First National Bank yesterday is believed by W. O. Smith, the bank's conservator, to be Charles Makeley, a former St. Marys resident, who participated in the Michigan City (Ind.) prison break last week.

Shortly after the men escaped in an automobile from the scene of the robbery, Smith examined a photograph of Makeley and declared the convict was one of the bank robbers. Makeley was one of 10 men who escaped from the Indiana prison.

Three armed men entered the bank shortly before closing time, while another stood guard at the door and the fifth waited outside in an automobile. The three herded Smith, Assistant Cashier Catherine G. Bashore, Teller C. Clausing and six customers to a directors' room and then the robber identified as Makeley ordered Smith to accompany him to the time vault. The robbers scooped up the money, placed their prisoners within the vault and partly closed the turning in an alarm.

CLEARED OF CHARGE HE GOT FEE TO INFLUENCE BEER BILL

By the Associated Press.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 4.—Failing to find evidence to substantiate charges Jesse R. Salmon, veteran Republican leader in Essex County, received $25,000 from brewery interests to influence beer legislation, a legislative committee closed its investigation today with the summation: "It is true that political influence was sought, but there is no proof that it was bought."

The Joint Judiciary Committee found that Thomas F. Bryce, vice-president and general manager of the Krueger Brewing Co. of Newark, "conceived the best interests of his brewery" would be served by prohibition of sales on Sundays and over bars, and sought to "accomplish those objectives."

Bryce, the committee said, first sought the "political intercession" of Frank Hague, Democratic State leader, and when Hague "did not actively interest himself," arranged a private meeting on April 3 with Salmon, David Baird and Assemblyman F. Stanley Bleakly of Camden and "succeeded in interesting them in his project."

TWO AMERICANS SENTENCED IN FRANCE FOR SWINDLE

Men Convicted of Defrauding Dutch Industrialist Get Year in Prison.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—Two Americans convicted of swindling Sigmond Van den Reis, Amsterdam industrialist, were sentenced today to one year in prison and fined 1000 francs (about $165) each.

They were Frank Eaton, whose aliases police listed as Stewart Donnelly and Brown Harris, and Arthur Johnson. The men were arrested at Cannes in April after detectives intercepted letters addressed to Milwaukee containing two £1000 notes identified as belonging to Van den Reis. Authorities said all the money had been returned except one £1000 note, which they now believe has been found in Antwerp.

GIVES $68,533 JUDGMENT TO CAROLINE PEPER HEIRS

A decree was signed by Circuit Judge Calhoun yesterday awarding a judgment of $68,535 against Oreon E. and Raymond G. Scott, realty dealers, in favor of the heirs of the late Mrs. Caroline J. Peper. It is based on a referee's report in litigation over part of the site of the new Federal Building at Twelfth boulevard and Market street. The judgment is on an accounting for rents and other profits alleged to have been received by the Scotts from the property for a period of about eight years until it was purchased by the Government in 1930.

Oreon Scott said today that an appeal to the Supreme Court would be taken.

WAGNER OUTLINES HIS PLAN FOR REGIONAL LABOR BOARDS

Mediation Bodies Will Be Established In 15 Cities, Including St. Louis.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, outlined at a conference with Grover Whalen, local NRA Administrator, yesterday, the national plan for dealing with labor disputes.

There will be, he said, regional mediation boards in 15 cities of the country, with a member of each board to represent the employer, another to represent the employe, and an impartial chairman.

The key cities in this regional plan, he said, will be New York, Buffalo, Atlanta, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, New Orleans, Boston, Denver, Pittsburgh and Minneapolis.

"This is not compulsory arbitration," Senator Wagner said. "There has never been an agency to which employer and employe might go to settle their difficulties.

"If the boards can establish a reputation for integrity and impartiality they will prove a tremendous force for industrial peace. No abrogation is intended of the right of the employe to strike, but it is intended to make the strike only the last resort of the employe. Under the regional administration strikes should be far less frequent, and far less difficult to settle."

TAXICAB DRIVER ARRESTED FOR KANSAS CITY HOLDUP

Says He Is From East St. Louis; Man of Same Name Reported Missing by Partner.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 4.—A man who said he was Everett Kirk, East St. Louis, Ill., taxicab driver, was arrested here yesterday in connection with a $30 restaurant holdup. A companion in the robbery escaped.

Kirk, 1602A Missouri avenue, East St. Louis, co-proprietor of the National Cab Co., was reported missing Monday by his partner in the business, who said Kirk disappeared with a cab Sept. 26. Police have not been requested to seek his return.

JOBLESS' LEADER ARRESTED

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 4.—Karl Lockner of Chicago, leader of unemployment demonstrations, was arrested by State highway police at the State House yesterday and a delegation of 20 persons was ejected.

Lockner had sent word that he would appear before the House of Representatives during the afternoon to demand relief legislation. Both houses had adjourned earlier. He was held in the city jail while State police investigated.

BLANKET VAGRANCY TRUE BILL DECLARED UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Court at Los Angeles Says Indictment Must Name or Describe the Accused.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4.—The drive of Los Angeles city and county authorities to rid this area of gangsters and other undesirable persons unable to show themselves engaged in legitimate occupations received a setback yesterday when the District Court of Appeals held unconstitutional a blanket indictment charging some 50 John Does with vagrancy.

The Appellate Court's ruling was announced on the release from jail of Louis Schaefer, who was held in lieu of $50,000 bond. Several cases in Superior Court and another in Appellate Court have waited on the outcome of Schaefer's appeal. Harry Voller of Chicago, also held in default of $50,000 bail, applied last week to the Appellate Court for his release or a reduction in bond.

"The constitutional rights of persons are such that no man may be legally arrested upon a general warrant which neither names nor in any way describes a person to be seized," said the decision. "By the common law, a warrant for the arrest of a person charged with crime must truly name him or describe him sufficiently to identify him."

GIVES $35,000 FOR 'SHARE IN KING GEORGE'S ESTATE'

Woman Says Swindler Told Her She Was Marshal Field's Daughter.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4.—Felony charges were filed yesterday by a District Attorney's deputy against Mrs. Mollie Purdy and her husband, Frank, on complaint of Mrs. Harriett K. Wright, who said she had given the Purdys nearly $35,000 over a period of three years on their representation they were to share in the wealth of Marshal Field and the King of England.

The Purdys are being held by Washington authorities on charges of grand theft, Mrs. Wright's attorney, F. H. Boland, San Francisco, said.

George Johnston, District Attorney's deputy, said Mrs. Wright told him she gave the Purdys $35,000 on Mrs. Purdy's representation she was the natural daughter of the late Chicago merchant. Mrs. Wright said Mrs. Purdy also told her that her mother was distantly related to British royalty.

To Teach Ping-Pong to Stutterers.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 4.—Ping-pong was added to the University of Iowa curriculum yesterday. Prof. Lee Travis, director of speech pathology, introduced the game in his speech clinic as a part of a program to cure stuttering.

order yesterday restraining use of the NRA Blue Eagle by a barber who cut prices under the scale provision in a code agreement. The temporary order was obtained by 17 Sarasota barbers who charged the alleged offender, L. L. Cochrane, with continuing to display the Blue Eagle after reducing his prices.

Attorneys for Cochrane probably will appeal. They contend the State court has no jurisdiction and that the price-fixing agreement is unconstitutional.

SLIGHT ADVANCE IN DOLLAR

Closing London Quotation Is 4.76⅝ to the Pound.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Both the American dollar and gold currencies moved against the pound sterling today. The dollar rate improved from the opening $4.78½ to close at $4.76⅜. Its closing rate yesterday was $4.78¾.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—After reaching 16.52 francs, the United States dollar closed today at 16.50 francs (6.06 cents to the franc) on a quiet market. It closed yesterday at 16.42 francs (6.09 cents).

Carthage (Mo.) Woman Kills Self.

By the Associated Press.

CARTHAGE, Mo., Oct. 4.—Mrs. Julia Pearman, 41 years old, shot and killed herself yesterday in the basement of her home in the same manner that a sister, Mrs. D. R. Fenner, ended her life in Tulsa, Ok., four years ago. Friends said Mrs. Pearman, who formerly resided in Tulsa, had suffered a nervous breakdown. Her divorce suit against Paul Pearman was scheduled to be heard late this week.

Up in the Air.

Royal Democracy.

First of the World Series.

18 Play, 50,000 Howl.

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1933.)

RUSSIA'S Government balloon, built to explore the upper air, rose 11½ miles above the earth, a new record. Upper atmospheric regions may be important, some day, when we begin regulating climate and distributing heat on this planet, seriously, perhaps 100,000 years hence.

We know as little about the upper air now as deep sea fish know about surface waters, and as the fish die, if brought to the surface, so we should die, if suddenly transporte to the upper layers of our air ocean. The atmosphere ocean in which we deep sea two-legged fish live at the bottom is about 500 miles deep, so that 11½ miles is not far to go. But we shall go the whole distance, some day and perhaps on beyond the other planets. "It has not yet been shown what we shall be."

Puzzle this out, please. There are millions hungry, other millions half naked all over the world, and our Government spends hundreds of millions, cutting down production of feed and cotton. Why? Because we do not know how to distribute. An explanation of that may be asked on the Judgment Day.

Our Government has just finished buying 6,000,000 pigs, all weighing less than 100 pounds each. Light pigs were bought, that they might not have a chance to gain weight, thus increasing the food supply and making pork cheaper.

Nothing as convincing as a picture, nothing so easily understood. You see modern Japan at a glance, in a photograph of the Mikado's two little daughters, one 4, the other 2½ years old, dressed in beautiful, flowery gowns, walking, quite independently, through the Tokio railroad station, returning from vacation. No soldiers accompany them, only nurses, no fuss is made and the tiny creatures walk with the dignity of full grown women.

Simeon Kaspe, in the hands of Manchurian bandits, writes, begging that money be sent to buy his release, and in his letter, half of one of ears is inclosed to impress on his father the demand for £25,000. The son writes, "My fingers will be cut off tomorrow and I shall be killed on Sunday unless the money is sent."

Do not exclaim "horrible Mongolian cruelty," because these ear-cutting bandits are not Mongolians, but "White Russians," patriots that denounced Soviet Russia for getting rid of the Czar so cruelly.

Europe will enjoy a suit brought to dismiss from office Mr. Hyman Shorenstein, Commissioner of Records in Brooklyn, a city of more than 2,000,000 inhabitants, on the ground that Shorenstein can neither read nor write. His friend, the Registrar, Aaron L. Jacoby, who appointed him, does not deny the charge, and Justice Furman seems to find merit in the argument that it matters little, since, as he himself puts it, "most work in an office today is done on a typewriter, anyway." That might dispose of the Honorable Recorder of Deeds inability to write, but what about the alleged inability to read?

Baseball is an exciting game, for those who sit, and yell, and at least they fill their lungs with fresh air. But 50,000 Americans watching 18 Americans hit a ball, run after it or throw, make you wish there were some typically American game in which the 50,000 worked while 18 looked on.

However, it has been so since the Roman days, when crowds watched and yelled, turned thumbs down or up, while gladiators fought animals or each other. Also, it says "they also serve that only stand and wait."

Baseball makes millions happy and excited. Happiness and excitement are good for human beings. While more than 50,000 sit watching the first contest in the world's series, millions throughout the country listen and squirm at the radio, responding to each play. In fact, in a large automobile parked outside the ball grounds, you may see gentlemen reclining at ease, listening as the game comes to them over their automobile radio,

SPECTACLES AND SPECTATORS AT THE 1933 V. P. PARADE

View on Washington avenue during the progress of the 20 floats.

Little ones and big ones, there was no age limit on Young America on the sidewalks.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

THIS is rather a trivial matter, but I want to do it correctly, and hope you will help me.

My daughter, 17 years old, is going to a boarding school this fall, and I should like to have you tell me the really necessary clothes that she should have for the school year. I would appreciate it very much if you would give me some suggestions. ANXIOUS MOTHER.

Generally the catalogues of the girls' boarding schools give, pretty well in detail, the essential foundation necessary at each particular school. I could help you much better, if I knew the location of the school; whether in a village or in a city and just how much the social side of her school is stressed. If your catalogue does not state the necessary articles of apparel she will require, I would have no hesitancy about writing the school and asking for a general outline of clothes worn there.

I might suggest, though, that outside of her linens which some schools require, and the main needs for the first part of the term, I would not provide the wardrobe too much in detail; especially if the girl is to come home for her Christmas holidays. Styles are likely to change a little and the girl will be sure to discover that she is simply crazy for something that is new and intriguing; I would save back just a little for this.

If your daughter wears any of the regulation sizes, you can always get her size, in the shops and send things to her. Naturally you can get her underwear, a few street dresses, but more especially sports clothes and the shoes she will need; a pair for sports, a good walking shoe with built-up heels, a pair of pumps, patent or kid, and probably a pair of dance sandals or slippers, to take with her. A dozen handkerchiefs, one felt hat, a beret for sports and perhaps a pretty beret for dress.

These are only very general ideas. If you wish me really to plan her school wardrobe; especially if you want to know the probable extras, after learning the essentials from the school, write me how much you can spend, where the school is and how old your daughter is, of course sending self-addressed and stamped envelope, as it will be too long for the column.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM an unemployed man 21 years old who is interested in good books. There is no local library, and I am unable to buy books because of financial difficulties.

I would like to read autobiographies, biographies, books on psychology and philosophy. Fiction by such writers as Balzac, De Maupassant, Boccaccio, Tolstoy, Chekov, Sinclair Lewis, Upton Sinclair, H. L. Mencken, Theodore Dreiser, etc.

Possibly some kind reader of your column has books that he no longer has any use for which he might send me. Any book sent will be sincerely appreciated.

JOHN M. B.

In case any of these things are offered, send me your address; I have your name. But, do you happen to know about the State Lending Library?

Write to the State Librarian, Jefferson City, Mo. Or, if you live elsewhere than Missouri, write to the State Librarian in the capital of your state.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

MY problem is this:

I went on a vacation of four days, because my husband thought I needed it. While I was gone he went out every night to dance. It is very seldom he takes me to these places. He says he did it because he wanted to and that he didn't see any wrong in it.

But I think it was strange; the minute my back was turned, he went to places a married man doesn't go by himself. I think he should have had some friends in to play cards or to do the things we generally do together. When I am home, we do not seem to be able to afford to go to dances except once in a while. If it had happened just one evening, I don't think I would have been so hurt; but he acted as if he had to crowd as much in as possible.

We are both young and ought to enjoy these things together. Once in a while he goes out alone, which is all right with me, if he will take care of the baby while I go occasionally. But that doesn't seem to work, as I really never get my turn.

A. H.

Your husband didn't say to you, when you left, "Now, go only such and such a place and do only certain things for your pleasure while you are away," did he? He wanted you to have a nice vacation, and I dare say he needed one as much as you. If he had called in the friends you have and had gone over the same old round of pleasure and had only the same diversions you always take—would it have been a change or a holiday? Probably he needed just the dash of gayety he took, and regarded it as just a little fling, temporarily, to pep him up and really rest him—any real change is rest. I wouldn't feel hurt nor would I say anything more about the manner in which he took a little "vacation."

If, sometime, you feel like going out to a dance, tell him so, and I think he will take you. But, also, be good pals, let him go once in a while; then demand the "fifty-fifty" arrangement about the baby. Just make your plans to go—and go.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

A SHORT time ago, perhaps a month ago I wrote you and asked you what you thought of a girl who professed herself to be a friend of mine and then turned around and gyped me out of my boy friend, and then after she got him away from me merely "Gold Dug" him. To date I have not seen your answer and am wondering if you have mislaid my answer or why it has not appeared. Answer soon. FAN.

And I hesitated to answer, because I thought it might be too rude, and not proper for such a column as this. Write me privately and I will take a chance of sending the answer through the mail.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a girl 25 years old. It seems I am capable of doing my work, which is an office job, if I am left alone. As soon as I am watched by the boss, or anyone else, I am so nervous I cannot write a line. And the more I think of getting nervous, the worse I get.

There are many things I could do, which would better my position, but I am always afraid of being talked about. It just seems that I haven't the nerve to go forward, and I know that there isn't anything I couldn't learn if I tried.

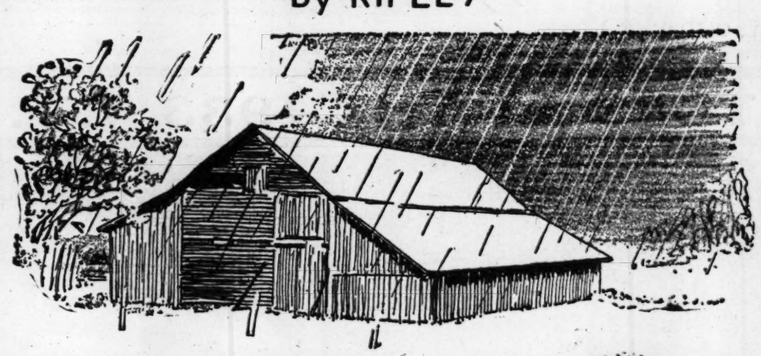

I am always afraid to talk back, for fear of hurting someone's feelings. Anything you may suggest I will certainly follow. Is there a place, besides the various high schools, where one might learn cooking? Is there a school where one can learn to run a vertical mellie press? ROSE MARIE

Perhaps it would help you to know what a modern and brilliant writer, Andre Maurois, has to say about shyness, self-consciousness, the inferiority complex—call it what you will. You will find this in the "Current Digest" for August, reprinted from "The Modern Thinker."

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

A HUMAN ICE PAIL

Herr Reinach, a petty official in the Finance Department of the Vienna Magistrature (City Hall), on a certain "blue" Monday morning found his office superior suffering from a headache and swathed in ice bandages. Having belittled the quantity of ice in the application, and having boasted of his own prowess in this respect, he good-naturedly agreed to make good his boast. A cake of ice weighing about 10 kilos (22 pounds) was sent for, which Herr Reinach proceeded to balance on his brow for about an hour until it melted. While evincing great discomfort during the gruelling test, the Human Ice Pail did not seem to have been greatly harmed by it.

PRECIOUS WHEAT

The Alaska wheat sold for $5 per head consisted of multiple heads and they were purchased in South Carolina in 1840 by wheatgrowers, who thought that the multiple heads would insure a high yield. The authority for this statement is the Department of Agriculture in Washington.

From small country towns and villages come the players that cause all the yelling and excitement. Big New York City provides few good baseball players, not enough fresh air, sunlight, too much automobile gas, perhaps.

You have read Shakespeare's description of human speed. Puck says: "I go, I go; look how I go, swifter than arrow from the Tartar's bow." You actually see it here at the ball grounds, when Ott hits a home run, and is on his way to "first" at terrific speed, before the crack of the ball reaches your ear.

High in the air, a big dirigible travels slowly, and occasionally an airplane flies over, to remind you that there are important things in the world, in addition to baseball. Here, among 50,000 howlers, is no gloom, no depression, no sorrow, except when a "Giant" fumbles the ball, rolling along the ground, and his "error" allows a "Senator" to get to first base.

Babe Ruth is in the grand stand, writing about the game, or spouting his philosophical thoughts into the ear of a "ghost-writer."

It is a beautiful day, bright sunlight, air cool, crowd enormous, profits great. Ring Lardner would have liked to see this great "world serious," as he called it. Nobody could write about baseball or baseball players as he could.

A Hand With Plenty of Bidding and Plenty of Play

THE following hand was played in a big tournament last year, and I made note of it as being not only one of the most fortunate hands for me, but also as illustrating the worth of the old-time motto, "Nil Desperandum," in close hands. Do not surrender—keep trying, especially if you have a long suit to work with.

	♠8-6-2 ♥Q-7-2 ♦A-9-6-5 ♣K-Q-5
♠K-9-5 ♥6 ♦K-J-10-7-2 ♣J-10-6-2	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠J ♥A-J-10-9-8-4 ♦Q-8-4 ♣A-8-3
	♠A-Q-10-7-4-3 ♥K-5-3 ♦3 ♣9-7-4

Both sides were vulnerable. I was the Dealer in the South position; and East opened with a heart after three passes.

I overcalled with one spade. It is true that this is the kind of hand with which I generally prefer to double, intending to bid my suit later. However, in selecting between an overcall and a double one must take the suit rankings into account. Had I doubled, I felt sure my partner would bid a minor suit, probably diamonds, so that I would have to bid my spades at the two-level. By overcalling, I could bid them at the one-level. West bid two diamonds, North passed, East rebid his hearts and I went to two spades. West and North passed, but East now bid three diamonds, showing his partner that they had some kind of a fit for a trump suit. I passed, as did West; but my partner now knew that I held at most one diamond, and that I had unusual length in spades. He rightly bid three spades; he felt we might conceivably have a game, and that he must at any rate defend the part score, it being a match-point tournament, with 50 points bonus for part scores. East passed; so did I, having bid defensively throughout and received no early support from my partner. West doubled, and all passed.

The Play.

West opened his singleton heart; East won and returned the heart, which was ruffed. West now played the jack of clubs; I covered it in Dummy, East won and led a third heart. West ruffed and led a diamond. Dummy's ace won it. I had now lost four tricks, and I realized that my only hope was to squeeze West, whose hand I now had counted beyond any doubt. To do this, I must make him responsible for protecting both clubs and diamonds; that is to say, I must extract the diamonds from East's hand, otherwise East could guard diamonds and leave the clubs to West. I therefore led a small diamond and trumped it. Next, I led out the ace of spades, dropping the king and jack, and entered dummy with the 8 of spades. I ruffed another diamond, taking out East's queen, and led out the rest of the trumps. When I led the last one at trick eleven, I had left in my hand the 9 and 7 of clubs; West had the king of diamonds and the 10 and 6 of clubs; Dummy had the 9 of diamonds and the king and 5 of clubs. If West let go the diamond, my 9 would become good, and I would throw the small club from Dummy. If he let go a club, Dummy would let go the diamond, and I would win the last two tricks with the king and 9 of clubs. As you see, it would not have changed things if West had led the deuce of clubs instead of the jack. As long as East held no club higher than my 9 (except, of course, his ace), the squeeze was inescapable.

A Different Defense.

The enemy can beat me if West does not immediately lead hearts, and East holds onto the ace over Dummy's queen. In that event, West will only make one trump trick—but the Dummy will not have sufficient entries to make the squeeze effective. There will be no trump entry to Dummy; East's third diamond could not be taken out.

I Do Not Give This Hand as a Problem Hand.

The point is not whether or how or why East and West should prevent me from making three spades doubled. It is that reasonable bidding is at times richly rewarded by the cards if you let them work for you in their own natural way—and use a nice, long suit for some other purpose than trying to count "probable tricks" in it.

Tomorrow—Right Rebids.

Spiced Pears.

Six pounds pears, five cups brown sugar, two cups cider vinegar, one-four cup broken stick cinnamon and whole cloves mixed. Pare pears, place in a crock alternately with layers of sugar. Pour vinegar over the pears and let stand over night. Drain off liquid and add spices to it, tied in a spice bag. Bring to a boil, and after five minutes of boiling add pears and simmer until tender. Pack in sterilized jars with hot boiling syrup to cover. Seal while hot.

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.:

THAT was a most interesting story about M. Houston, the only baseball expert in New York to pick the Giants and Washington team to win the pennants, only to lose his job. . . . What actually happened was that Houston took the Richmond Times-Dispatch job because the wages were so much better. . . . They urge you to rectify the records, if you please. . . Agnes Ayres wishes you would do something about the talk that she is plotting marriage, which she isn't. Says the rumor may spoil her chances, etc. . . . Here's the lowdown on why Baby LeRoy, the movie mimic, is so easy to direct in Hollywood. His nurse, whom he adores, stands next to the camera, and she does the things they want the baby to do. . . . He always apes her antics—and there you are. . . . United Artists would like having you at a birthday party tomorrow night—it's for M. Mouse. . . . Incidentally, the pictoral maps made up by the bus firms indicate "Hollywood" by a photo of Mickey, which should melt some of the heads out there.

Berle is leaving that ciggie program and Moran and Mack probably will replace him. . . . Of the new shows "Double Door" is the only sell out. . . . The Joe Cook show, however, is doing big business. . . . Lennie Hayton has a neat way of describing Cab Calloway—Rhythm and Weep. . . . Do you know where I can find Bert Grant? He wrote "Knock the L Out of Kelly" and other old time hits. A friend has a radio job for him.

While at the hairdressers last week, Maurice Chevalier came in to visit his former hairdresser (he has one!) whose name is Ferdinand. Maurice came to have his hair cut. And were the ladies there in a dither? I think they drove him a little mad. One almost wept until she got a lock of his hair—which is when I gave up and decided to become a nun. . . . I hear that the Ritz here is spending plenty to make their bar the smartest in town—a la the Ritz Bar in Paris.

• • •

People who claim to know him well tell me that A. Capone abhors women who smoke or drink. . . . Fox Films, it appears, are hiring showmen who know their theater to make their flickers. . . . George White they have signed already—and Jed Harris will be next. Herman Shumlin, producer of "Last Mile" and other worthy things, probably will follow. . . . I like the attitude of Otis Skinner, who has been a star so long. The Players' Club shortly will send him on tour with "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and want him to star. Instead, Mr. Skinner insisted that Queenie Smith co-star with him—she will do "Topsy." . . . Nothing small-time about him, what?

Elinson left these: Gen'l Johnson says the fight against Depression is a war. . . . Izzy says he gets it—we're all no-dough boys. And that he is the kid with the crumb. . . . Also that the real reason why the Stock Exchange didn't move to Jersey is that they couldn't find a building high enough for brokers to jump out of. . . . And that, sir, is all that happened on this torrid and stifling afternoon. You don't know of an Eskimo who needs a girl like me, do you—I'm not kidding!—Your Girl Friday.

THE GREATER WORD

A LITTLE boy was doing his home work one evening long ago. Suddenly he asked his father which, to his mind, was the hardest word in the language. "The word No," his father replied. "Not in spelling, as I take it you mean; but it is the hardest word to use."

The boy was Edward Bok, who became one of the greatest editors of his age. As an editor he learned how often the little adverb is necessary, and how difficult it is, sometimes, to use it. Once he asked himself a like question, "What is the greatest word in the language?" And he wrote an article to answer it.

It is not Love, he argues. It is not Brotherhood. It is not Friendship. No, it is a word that embodies spirit and meaning of all three of these words. The greatest word is—Service! Not self-service, for, like lip-service, that is empty of profit or meaning or joy.

The greatest thing on earth is to serve others, he said. Do you desire distinction? You will not get it by serving yourself. Do you covet honor? You will get it only as a servant of mankind. Jesus said, "He that is greatest among you, let him be the servant of all!"

Love is still the greatest word in the language. Not love that is soft amiability, but love that is creative passion. Love in thought is truth; love in expression is beauty; love in action is goodness, service, joy. The greatest of all words are: God is Love. They sum up the meaning, the mystery and the music of life!

Ten articles, specially selected by Doctor Newton as being the most outstanding so far published in this series, have been reprinted in an attractive booklet.

This booklet will be sent without cost to interested readers. Requests should be addressed to Dr. Joseph Fort Newton, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Who Is a "Lady"?

Dear Mrs. Post:

IS the word "lady" more correct than "woman" when telling some one that "there is a (blank) calling on the telephone?" The word doesn't seem to have any significance any longer if I am to judge by the many females who are called "lady" and who don't know any more about following "the code of a lady (or gentleman)" than I know about building skyscrapers, when my business is to design draperies for their many windows. Is any woman a "lady" nowadays?

Answer: The term, which once denoted a person of breeding and cultivation, long ago deteriorated into meaning nothing more than a female of respectable appearance. Consequently, those who have clearest right to the title speak of themselves and their friends as women. One should, however, always say "a lady on the telephone." You would also say, "I am making curtains for a lady in Chicago."

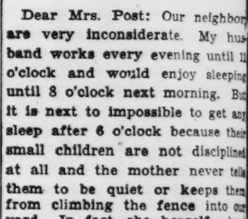

Dear Mrs. Post: Our neighbors are very inconsiderate. My husband works every evening until 12 o'clock and would enjoy sleeping until 8 o'clock next morning. But it is next to impossible to get any sleep after 6 o'clock because their small children are not disciplined at all and the mother never tells them to be quiet or keeps them from climbing the fence into our yard. In fact, she herself slams doors and yells. Isn't there anything we can do to mend their habits and yet keep the neighborhood in an amiable state? We can't move, so don't advise that.

Answer: When neighbors are inconsiderate nothing can be done except to call on the Board of Health (or whatever local official deals with such matters). I have a friend who owns a New York apartment, the sale of which in this day is impossible. Overhead live two boys whose only diversions seem to be jumping contests and chopstick piano duets. The misery of my friend, who is an invalid, can hardly be exaggerated. In this case each note of protest brings a note of apology from the mother or the father, and then the noise goes on unabated. Perhaps a visit from a representative of the Board of Health might be effective—depending of course upon the efficiency of this particular representative.

Dear Mrs. Post: Our neighbors are very inconsiderate. My husband works every evening until 11 o'clock and would enjoy sleeping until 8 o'clock next morning. But it is next to impossible to get any sleep after 6 o'clock because their small children are not disciplined at all and the mother never tells them to be quiet or keeps them from climbing the fence into our yard. In fact, she herself slams doors and yells. Isn't there anything we can do to mend their habits and yet keep the neighborhood in an amiable state? We can't move, so don't advise that.

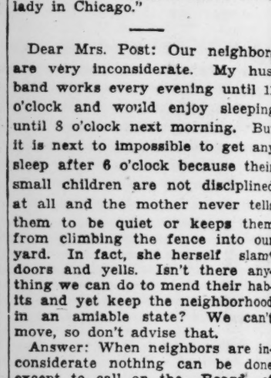

Answer: When neighbors are inconsiderate nothing can be done except to call on the Board of Health (or whatever local official deals with such matters). I have a friend who owns a New York apartment, the sale of which in this day is impossible. Overhead live two boys whose only diversions seem to be jumping contests and chopstick piano duets. The misery of my friend, who is an invalid, can hardly be exaggerated. In this case each note of protest brings a note of apology from the mother or the father, and then the noise goes on unabated. Perhaps a visit from a representative of the Board of Health might be effective—depending of course upon the efficiency of this particular representative.

LISTEN, WORLD!

by Elsie Robinson

Salute "The Unknown God!"

With the years, Saint Paul had become a wise old man.

Long ago, in his hot and ignorant youth, he had been ruthless, trampling on the minds and hearts of other men, in his arrogant determination to shape them to his own way of thinking. But there had come that great day on the road to Damascus—that day when the Truth had cut into him, like a blazing sword, and he had seen himself for the stupid, brutal creature that he was.

ELSIE ROBINSON

Since then, he had been kind. It had been hard at first. He was of a stiff-necked breed. In spite of himself, the old hankering for power would come back—that swift contempt for the other fellow's viewpoint. But always, now, there was the memory of that lovely vision of Christ's gentleness.

So, passionately, Paul, who had been Saul, tried to be gentle, too; tried to understand—to put himself in the other fellow's mind and soul.

The day came when that tolerance was to save his life, and to open hostile hearts. It was in Athens, a perilous place for a Christian, for the Greeks were no followers of Christ. Proudest of the proud, they worshiped a whole heaven of gods—Zeus and Hera, Ares, Athene, Swift Hermes, lovely Aphrodite. Everywhere there were temples and shrines, hundreds of them.

And now Paul stood above those shrines in the midst of Mars Hill, facing the challenging eyes of the Athenians, wondering how he could enter into their contemptuous spirits. Once he would have tried to force an entrance by his own challenging contempt. But now?——

Suddenly, out of the new and gentler wisdom, came the inspiration. Now he knew! Raising his head, he spoke that message of love which lay within his heart. But this time he did not try to force his God on them. Instead, he spoke to the God in them!

"Ye men of Athens," he began, "as I passed by and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inscription—'TO THE UNKNOWN GOD.'"

They were listening. It was all true. They had, indeed, such an altar. For, in spite of those scores of deities, those proud, wise Greeks were still bewildered at heart, wondering, as men have always wondered, if life were really worth while. And so they had built another shrine to that hunger within themselves—to that dream of some better, finer God, who would give them power and peace where their heathen gods had failed. A shrine to the "Unknown God!"

And now Paul, bringing the story of Christ, cried to that hunger for a nameless god which lay—which still lies—in the heart of every man. They were strangers to him, and of a faith he despised. But he did not attack them, or try to shame them. Instead, he did reverence to the good that was in them.

And because he saluted the good in them—because he believed in them—the Athenians believed in Paul, accepted him, respected his message.

You, too, will speak on many a Mars Hill. Often you will want to give your message to other men, and will wonder how you can win your way past their challenging eyes and hostile hearts.

Many a time in the past you've tried and failed—failed even with those you loved best. You've coaxed and cajoled, threatened and stormed. They wouldn't listen. And with each word they grew more stubborn and resentful. Yet you knew you were right. But how could you make them see it?

BY RECOGNIZING THAT THEY, TOO, WERE RIGHT.

IF YOU WISH TO GIVE YOUR GOOD TO ANOTHER MAN, RESPECT, FIRST, THE GOOD IN HIM. SALUTE THAT UNKNOWN GOD, AROUND WHICH HE BUILDS HIS SECRET DREAMS.

And that goes for the most abandoned creature on earth, as well as for the noblest. For each man carries a god in him, no matter how low he may have sunk in the muddle of life.

Salute his God, and he will salute yours. Have faith in his essential decency, and he will have faith in yours!

REGALITY in the FALL MODE

An Article by a St. Louis Girl Who Knows Clothes.

Jane Katherine Caradine

Miss Jane Katherine Caradine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Caradine. She was a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet Ball last year, when she made her debut.

If you are a person who has always walked with an air of shyness about you, banish it. Step forth with a feeling of superiority for the new modes give you a regality that presupposes the poise of an actress. The materials offered for your selection this year are rich in both texture and color. The lines of the garments are both simple and beautiful.

The pebbly pink satin with its long clinging lines will give you an idea of what I mean. The soft rich material hugs the figure until just below the knees where we find a full circular flare which gives a graceful line to the skirt. If you wish to add even more glamour to the dress, jauntily wrap the Kolinsky fur cape around your shoulders. You may be sure you are attaining the last degree of smartness. Snugly fitting over the shoulders, it gives that broad look that fashion is talking about.

Speaking of shoulders, another perfect example is the other dress pictured. The costume velvet is in deep cherry red, simply cut with the entire interest in the shoulders. The gown is cut in a deep U in the back from where it falls in staight lines to the floor. The shoulders are covered by stiff cape-like sleeves which add chic to the costume.

The velvet gown is suitable for the theater, the small dinner, and the cocktail party. The other model is more suitable for the large dinner dance or the ball. Its entire lines and idea are formal. Both dresses are as practical as they are beautiful and offer a sufficient variety of style for most evening social events.

News for STAMP Collectors

Sierra Leone Commemoratives

SIERRA LEONE has just issued a series of commemoratives consisting of 13 denominations in honor of William Wilberforce and the abolition of slavery. Throughout the lifetime of William Wilberforce, he fought for the abolition of slavery in this colony and only when near death was his long struggle successful.

The denominations and designs are as follows: ½d., colony arms emblazoned on a shield, 1d., freed slave on beach breaking his shackles, 1½d., map of Sierra Leone with inset of continent of Africa, 2d., Fort Thornton (Governor's residence) showing also law courts and Tower Hill Barracks, 3d., fruit girl carrying basket of fruit on head, 4d., two African nurses attending sick, 5d., native sailing boat crossing harbor, 6d., fishermen shooting fish with arrows, 1s., secretariat buildings, 2s., Bunce Island, 5s., elephant, 10s., portrait of King George, 20s., old time view of Freetown harbor.

The stamps will be printed on white paper, with the 1d., 5d., 6d., 2s., 5s., 10s. and 12s. values in two colors. This series of stamps will be on sale for only 12 months, and during this same period of time the current issue of stamps will be withdrawn from sale.

Surprise for Reunion.

The complete set of regular postage and postage due stamps which have been expected for some time from Reunion prove to be extremely well printed. In the regular postage series there are 22 denominations and in the postage due series there are 10 denominations.

A new "Stamp Atlas and Dictionary" has just been issued by Rand McNally & Co. It has an introduction by the well-known Ralph A. Kimble. It is of practical use to almost any collector.

The mail service of the Colombian Government has been turned over to the Colombian German Air Transport Co., known as the SCADTA. This company will have the exclusive rights for the carrying of all national mails until 1942. The SCADTA will establish a central postoffice and special postoffices in all the capitals of the states.

Only a little over 10,500 pieces of mail were carried by Balbo from Italy and of these 7500 were left in Holland and Ireland.

New Issues.

BRAZIL—Another value in the current type of postage due stamp has been issued on paper watermarked, rectangular inscription "Brazil Correio" inclosed by five stars in a circle. It is 20r. black.

FRANCE—The current 50c red Peace type stamp has been overprinted "F. M." in large black block letters. It is for military use.

MEXICO—The semipostal stamp of 1925, rouletted 14½ and the current 20c, brown-olive, also rouletted, have been overprinted in two lines in black letters "SERVICIO OFICIAL." The value of the semipostal stamp of 1925 is 1c brown and it is on paper watermarked "CORREOS MEXICO."

PERU—Due to financial difficulties the set announced some time ago will either be shelved or else printed locally. The English firm which was supposed to do the work declined.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS—It has also been announced that in addition to the set of pictorial postage stamps with historical designs a set of airmail and official stamps will also be issued.

MOZAMBIQUE—Five new denominations have appeared in the Lusiadas type issued for this colony. The numerals are in black but otherwise are as follows: 45c light blue, 1.40e dark blue, 5e yellow-green, 10e bistre, and 20e orange.

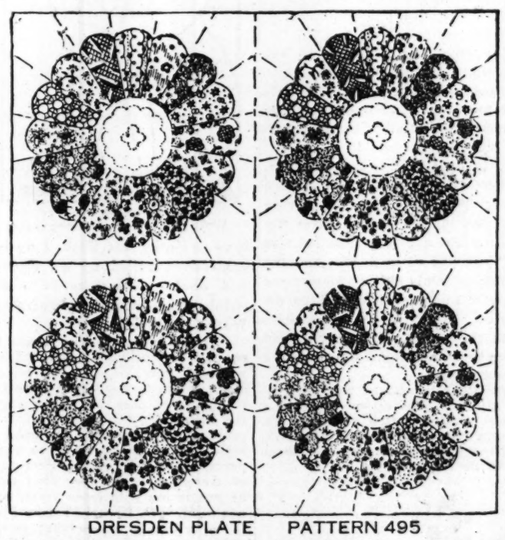

SALVADORE—A set of five regular postage stamps and a set of five airmail stamps will be issued in honor of Christopher Columbus.

SWITZERLAND—On Dec. 1 the annual Charity series will be issued. The values, colors and designs are as follows: 5c plus 5c green, Waadlanderin, 10c plus 5c violet, Women of Bern, 20c plus 5c red, Woman of Tessin, 30c plus 5c blue, Portrait of P. Gr. Girad, who was a well-known figure in Swiss church circles.

URUGUAY—Four more denominations have been issued in the small Artigas type. They are 12c dark blue, 17c purple, 36c olive-green, and 50c dark brown. We expect to have news of the new issue shortly.

It is wise to rub the backs of valuable old paintings with oil of cedar to protect them from injury by insects.

Dresden Plate Scrap Quilt

DRESDEN PLATE PATTERN 495

THE Dresden Plate has long been a favorite scrap quilt. Every quiltmaker is fascinated by the quaint designs of the cotton prints that go into her quilts. She finds it especially interesting then to combine a variety of such scraps in one block and this pattern offers her an opportunity to do this most effectively. The scraps are all made of the same pattern piece and the block is further enhanced by a quilting motif which comes with the pattern but can be omitted without affecting the beauty of the block.

Pattern 495 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, quilting motif, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

It will take less time to whip cream if it is whipped slowly for the first few minutes and then beaten rapidly.

New Way to Hold Loose FALSE TEETH Firmly in Place

Do false teeth annoy and bother by dropping and slipping when you eat, talk or laugh? Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This new, tasteless powder holds teeth firm and comfortable. No gummy, pasty taste. Makes breath pleasant. Get FASTEETH today at Walgreen or any other drug store.

SEEN in THE STORES

By SYLVIA

One of those evening dresses that is guaranteed to make a belle out of the worst wallflower owes part of its success to its glittering fabric and part to its fur shoulders. The fabric is white satin brocaded in gold, while the shoulders are wrapped in white fox fur. These luxurious shoulder pieces extend to the waistline both front and back.

• • •

Another proof that this is a season of elegance is found in the formal daytime suits. Black velvet is the most important material and combines lavishly with fox or wolf. A suit that typifies the trend not only has a collar of black wolf, but fur elaboration at the bottom of the jacket. The jacket, by the way, indorses the longer length that extends below the knees.

• • •

When you see bright colored wool jersey trimming rabbit's hair wool frocks you can count upon distinction. One sports shops features the idea with draped necklines of the jersey. Red jersey, for example, is swathed about the neck of a dark gray frock with the carelessness that might be used with so much old-fashioned red flannel.

Although summer has passed, that doesn't mean that daisies aren't blooming. You see them used as the decorative motif on an occasional unusual dinner dress. The black maline sleeves of a black crepe frock display an array of embroidered white daisies, while a navy blue satin frock has appliqued daisies of white crepe running round a yoke.

• • •

Not all of the swagger suits have long or knee-length jackets. Some of them endorse the hip-length coat, much to the approval of the woman who is not more than average height and who feels like a box car in a long, loose-swinging coat. Typical of the trend toward these shorter sports jackets is a rabbit's hair suit of mouse gray that provides a one-piece dress rather than a separate skirt. The jacket is a youthful, double-breasted model with a cunning Eton collar.

Some prefer to match their gloves to their hat and some prefer to match them to a suit or dress. Endorsers of the first named school are concentrating upon antelope and satin. Those who think it smart to have gloves made of the same material as a dress prefer the casual type of clothes made of such sports fabrics as rabbit's hair and corduroy. Glove and accessory shops are featuring clever new mittens in autumn shades of these two fabrics.

• • •

Another ensemble idea which promises to revolutionize our winter fashions is the hat and cape combination. Several millinery shops are sponsoring the vogue of little velvet hats with capelets to match. As the weather gets colder fur fabrics and genuine furs are expected to be used. Most of the shops are making these sets to order so that any whim can be satisfied.

• • •

When it comes to festive evening costumes, have you thought how much you can accomplish by the simple little trick of attaching a garland of flowers to the hem of your skirt? Sounds a bit gay, but the trimming departments will show you the sort of flowers that carry this out to perfection. Tiny silk flowers that are sold by the yard may be used for this novel arrangement.

• • •

If you are one of those women who get a lot of satisfaction out of working out your own costume themes, then this is the season to let your imagination run riot. Start out with informal daytime clothes and work out a stunning costume consisting of a separate skirt and blouse with a contrasting jacket. You can get one of those cravat silk shirtwaists, for example, a tweed skirt and a velveteen jacket, or reverse the order of things by selecting a plain colored blouse, a corduroy skirt, hat and gloves and a patterned jacket. Any number of color alliances can be undertaken.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2.

GREAT news for the kiddies. "The Wizard of Oz," Frank Baum's famous fantasy, has been purchased by Sam Goldwyn for a musical extravaganza to be produced in color. There's no stopping Warners these days. Play after play is being grabbed by them and when Jack Warner isn't buying them Hal Wallis is on the telephone putting in his bid. "Heat Lightning," playing on the Broadway stage, is a coming Warner picture. And that reminds me that the chances are 10 to 1 that Joan Blondell will emote opposite Paul Muni in "Hi Nelly."

It may not be Arizona or Mexico, but my guess is that it will be somewhere in or near California. I mean the marriage of Estelle Taylor to Roland Brown. This is a romance that is serious enough to have all Hollywood rumoring wedding bells. The two of them, Miss Taylor and Brown, seldom miss a night at the Colony Club and seven nights a week in one person's company is devotion, if you know what I mean.

A brief month's rest is all the holiday Marion Davies gets after "Going Hollywood" is edited and ready for the market. Then she puts herself into the spirit of "Operator 13," Robert Chambers' novel which ran serially in the Cosmopolitan. Unless there is a drastic change in plans which no one can foresee at this moment, "Operator 13" is the next Davies picture. "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" has been postponed in its favor.

For Thursday, Oct. 5.

BE willing and able to handle delays and disappointments during business hours. Cautious if or with a woman. Some will not believe these remarks till later, after their little bubbles have collapsed. Be different; be good.

Saturn in the Third House.

Sons and daughters of Dec. 1 to 24, inclusive, have a little more than a year ahead (till February, 1935) of Saturn's third house ray. Primarily, this is an influence under which money and health are the outstanding matters and demand first attention. Don't let the former, or worry about it, spoil the latter. Be solid and substantial in your frame of mind, taking no long shots. In your daily life do all you can to be of personal service to others, whether individually or collectively, through your own exceptional abilities (according to what you have most keenly developed). Also a good time in which to pursue scientific research, digging deeply into the logic of your work or other surrounding circumstances. Avoid exposure to cold or congestion, and don't overdo.

Your Year Ahead.

The year ahead for natives of this birthday suggests very strongly the advisability of creating opportunities for making new friends; those whom you meet this year can become allies of much mutual benefit. Till December go slow in affectional matters and with children; May 22-Sept. 1, next year, control hidden emotions. Danger: March 18 to 29, and July 26 to Aug. 2, 1934.

Tomorrow.

Put the emotions on ice and deal wisely with the opposing sex.

HALITOSINE PUTS HALITOSIS OUT OF BUSINESS

Bad breath hasn't a chance against Halitosine. When this safe, effective antiseptic goes into your mouth, it doesn't merely mask bad breath, but actually kills offensive odors. Even the odors of onions, cigarettes, liquor and beer breath disappear instantly when you rinse your mouth with this famous formula that has been proved best for combatting halitosis.

And the best part of it is—you can afford to use Halitosine generously, for that giant pint bottle—a full 16 ounces—costs you only 50c instead of $1.00; and you get a seven-ounce bottle of Halitosine for 25c instead of half a dollar. That's more than twice as much for your money.

And there's a further economy in the many ways in which Halitosine benefits you. It's just as effective against perspiration and body odors as against bad breath. It's a delightful after-shaving tonic and facial astringent. It invigorates the scalp and is excellent for overcoming and preventing dandruff. It is perfectly safe. Get a bottle of Halitosine at your favorite drug counter and try it yourself. You'll be delighted.

BLONDE TROUBLE

A New Serial Story

By ROB EDEN

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE.

NOT a soul in the lounge. Even the covered sun deck beyond was deserted. The Minerva was like a ghost ship, moving without passengers or crew, ploughing its way swiftly over the waters.

The Lady of Liberty was receding in the distance when Connie dashed back from the empty deck to the library and started madly ringing the bell, her anger mounting as it remained unanswered.

A trick of Mr. Ritchie's. She saw through it now. A little scheme of his to take her away so that Ned wouldn't be able to see her. If he had told her, confided in her, she wouldn't have minded.

She didn't like it, and Mr. Ritchie might as well know she didn't like it. The fear came over her that he might not be on board. That she was alone with the officers. With the men and they were taking her somewhere she didn't know.

For the tenth time she pushed the bell on the desk. Wasn't it working? It had been before. The steward had come almost immediately after her first ring. Perhaps he was under orders not to come . . . not to tell her what was going on.

When the door finally opened and the blond steward who had answered her first ring came in, she was almost weeping with despair. The sight of him, standing before her silently, brought back her rage and gave her courage.

"Take me to Mr. Ritchie at once!" she demanded.

"He'll be here in a moment, miss. He just told me. Is that all?"

* * *

NERVOUS relief that Mr. Ritchie was on board and she could tell him what she thought of his plot, mingled with nervous anxiety as to where the Minerva was bound, and how long the yacht was going to be on the water.

"No, that isn't all. Why wasn't I told that the boat was leaving the dock?"

"Mr. Ritchie's orders, miss." The steward had a hard time to keep from smiling but he did. He was thinking that it had taken Miss Paige a long time to find out the Minerva had left the dock. He was thinking too, that she couldn't know much about boats.

"Mr. Ritchie's orders, too, that the drapes on the portholes in this room were tacked down so I couldn't see the boat leaving the dock?"

"Yes, miss."

"Where are we going?"

"I don't know, miss, but probably Mr. Ritchie can tell you when he comes in."

Tell her! He'd have to tell her, and he'd have to apologize. Falling into a trap like this. . . staying in the library when she wanted to be on deck, just because the silly steward had told her those were Mr. Ritchie's orders! Dumbly having no suspicion why the drapes were tacked down so carefully. It had been planned only too well.

"Is Mrs. Ritchie on board?" she asked, still furious with herself at her innocence.

"Mr. Ritchie will tell you everything, miss. If that's all, I'll go now." So after an impatient nod from Connie, Harris left, concealing his smile until he was in the corridor.

Connie paced the small room angrily, bumping into the couch, into the desk as she went back and forth. Mr. Ritchie didn't trust her. That was it. He thought she wasn't playing square, and she was, as square as she knew how.

If he had come to her decently and suggested a trip on the Minerva to put his mind at ease, she would have gone gladly to please him. Trips on yachts like the Minerva didn't come her way every day. But this subterfuge, this shanghaiing, she didn't like.

Well, Mr. Ritchie would have to turn the Minerva right back to the dock, she decided. Nothing he could say or do was going to change her mind. It was settled and it was going to stay that way.

MR. RITCHIE had been able to get away with a good deal in the past, but he wasn't going to get away with this! This was too much!

The door was opening slowly, and Connie stopped her frantic walking, and waited, her right toe tapping the rug. But instead of Grover Ritchie, his son came into the library.

"Ned!"

"Nice to see me again, isn't it?"

"I sent for your father." Ned on board, too. She couldn't understand his presence. Surely Mr. Ritchie wouldn't permit her and Ned on the same boat. Unless Ned had double-crossed Mr. Ritchie . . . Unless he didn't know his son was on the Minerva.

"And I came!"

"And you came," she repeated after him, dully. "You came . . ."

"Ned, I must see your father, immediately. Won't you go and tell him I must? He's played a rotten trick on me, got me on board thinking I was only to have a talk with him, and while I was waiting for him, the boat started. He did it on purpose, of course . . . and I must see him. The boat must be turned back and I must get off!"

Ned threw back his head and laughed as if he were enjoying the situation immensely.

Connie was indignant.

"There's nothing to laugh about. I'm furious! And I've every right to be! I must get back to New York!"

BEGIN HERE TODAY:

Rebelling against a humdrum life, CONNIE PAIGE bleaches her hair a golden blond, and beckons adventure. When GROVER RITCHIE proposes that she carry out his plan to cure his son, NED, of an infatuation for a dancer, Connie accepts eagerly.

Believing that his father frowns upon any attention to his new secretary, Ned immediately falls in love with Connie. She is dismayed by his seriousness, and is relieved when Mr. Ritchie pronounces the boy cured and sends her back to New York with the promised bonus. But Ned finds out her address. To escape his persistent attentions Connie moves into another flat and exercises every precaution to avoid meeting him near the apartment building.

One morning she receives a telegram from Mr. Ritchie, asking that she come to the Minerva to see him before he starts on a short sailing trip. On board the yacht Connie is told to wait in the library because Mr. Ritchie is busy. The movement of the boat alarms her, but the steward tells her the engines are warming up. Finally Connie goes to the upper deck and discovers that they have left the dock. She is furious.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

Still Ned continued to laugh, and Connie to storm.

"Well, if you won't find him for me, I shall!" she cried at last.

He caught her arm as she was going out the door.

"Forgive me, darling, for laughing, but I couldn't help it. You're so raging angry, and after all, poor Dad isn't on board, and he doesn't know anything about this, and he'd be so surprised if he knew that he'd have four or five strokes in succession. Understand now?"

"Your father isn't on board?"

"No, sweet, and he doesn't know about this. I planned it all myself. Clever, don't you think, but I couldn't see you any other way. He has you frightened to death.

"I know that's why you haven't answered my phone calls, my letters and my telegrams. So I thought I'd get you away by myself, where he wouldn't be near, so you wouldn't have to think about him.

"I did. Sent you that telegram this morning. I felt in my bones you'd come. The old man has a way with him when it comes to giving orders, and I worded it just like he would word a command to the executive offices. Nice piece of work, don't you think?" Ned was grinning.

"You sent that telegram?"

"Yes, and I sent the car over. It wasn't one of ours. It was a hired car. I planned it last night, tacked down the drapes on the portholes here myself so you wouldn't be able to see the ship moving from the dock."

"Ned! you didn't!"

"Cross my heart. I did. And you fell right into my plans so gloriously that that's why I was laughing just now. Couldn't help it. The scheme worked like a time clock. Thought you'd never tumble and when you did, you tumbled exactly as I though you would. Thought Dad had kidnaped you so you couldn't see me any more."

"You'll have to turn back, Ned. I must get back to New York." This was different—being on the Minerva with Ned, instead of his father. His presence changed her plans entirely.

"Wouldn't you like to cruise around for awhile?" he asked eagerly.

"No. I must get home." Her predicament required diplomacy, and she was on the verge of tears.

"Well, you're going to have a long ride, Connie. Longer than you think. The boat's mine, you know, and I can do what I please with it. I've already given Capt. Sully orders to cruise around."

CONNIE successfully fought back her tears. She could see that she had to humor Ned. Nothing could be gained by demanding to be returned to New York harbor. He was as stubborn as his father.

"An hour, then"— She tried to smile, but the smile was a failure.

"Longer than an hour, Connie. I'm going to keep you on the Minerva until you agree to marry me, whether it takes two hours or two years. I have you now where Dad can't influence you, and I'm going to keep you with me. You're not going to get out of my sight until you promise to marry me. And there's going to be no changing of my mind."

It was almost as if Grover Ritchie were standing talking to her, a younger, more forceful Grover Ritchie. The voice was the same, the dogged chin the same. The girl considered a dozen retorts, and used none of them.

When she spoke, she spoke softly with a curl on her lips that might be a smile.

"Foolish. . . . I haven't any clothes with me . . . . nothing." She was in a bad hole, and only her wits could get her out. For Ned meant what he said. There wasn't any doubt in her mind about that.

"I thought of that, and I've brought you some things you'll need. Fourteen size, aren't you? You'll find a little wardrobe in your stateroom. Want to go down and see it?"

Connie, her mind whirling and whirling trying to grip some solid, solid thing, murmured that she would rather see the boat first. . . .

SMART ATTIRE for AFTERNOON

Smartly gowned for an afternoon affair is DOROTHY TREE, motion picture player. She is wearing a brown crepe dress with a sable scarf, a wide-brimmed brown velvet hat, brown suede gloves and a brown beaded bag. A study in brown. Note the nonchalant manner in which the scarf slips over one elbow.

HEALTH

Tendon Pains

BY the term tendon we usually designate those bands or cords of fibrous tissue by means of which muscles are connected to bones. Tendons are subject to rheumatic affections and the condition is known as tendinitis.

In rheumatic affections of the joints, all the elements that go into the formation of the joint may become involved.

At times, however, one of these elements may be involved more acutely than are the others, and in an appreciable percentage of cases of single or multiple joint involvement, the symptoms of which the patient complains are not due to involvement of the bone, but joint cartilage or the joint capsule, but rather to the involvement of the tendons in the region.

Thus, rheumatic fever may in some cases run its course with symptoms from tendon attachments only.

Not an uncommon history in this type of condition is that of a patient having been ill two or three weeks previously with an attack of tonsilitis, which was then followed by the development of pains and tenderness in the joints.

On physical examination we find that the tenderness and pain on movement is distinctly localized in the region where a number of tendon and muscle attachments are close to the joint.

The common places in such an involvement are the back of the heel, where the large Achilles tendon is attached, and the shoulder joint, where the deltoid muscle is to be found.

While tendinitis may be due to conditions other than rheumatic fever, it is wise to suspect rheumatic fever until it is completely ruled out. For rheumatic fever is a serious condition which may involve the heart, producing serious and permanent damage.

Rheumatic fever should be suspected particularly if, in addition to joint or tendon pain, the patient also suffers from fever.

A light bluing in the rinse water after laundering white silk underwear will keep it a snowy white and never give it a chance to yellow.

UNVARNISHED FACTS DEPARTMENT

(Hickman County, Ky., Gazette)

The editor is reluctant in approaching the subject of the unfortunate occurrence of last Friday morning. The only reason it is mentioned at all is because public opinion demands it.

It is only fair to say that an article appearing in last week's paper provoked Mr. Humphreys into making his attack upon the editor. The article in question was not intended as an insult, and the writer certainly did not foresee the manner in which it would be accepted. It was in line of business with the writer, and never should have been the subject or cause of a street brawl.

Fortunately no one was seriously injured. The editor received a slight scratch on the nose and Mr. Humphreys received a bruised eye.

To say the least, the encounter is to be regretted by all.

FRISBY WALLOPS NAIL ON THE HEAD

WASHINGTON— Congressman Horace Frisby has hitched up his suspenders, rolled up his sleeves and doubled his fists in a determined effort to help Secretary Wallace reduce crops.

"If we can cut the crops to practically nothing," says Frisby, with a snigger, "it will raise prices. Then the farmer will pay more for commodities than they are worth and everything will be hotsie totsie, economically speaking. I have a little plan which I propose to whisper into the ear of the Secretary of Agriculture the very first time he greets me with open arms, and not until. The Greater Frisby Plan is to suddenly renew that grand old practice of permitting Congressmen to send out what seems to be free seeds. But instead of seeds, the envelopes will merely contain sawdust and ground glass!"

School Plans

"I CAN'T devote all my time to this," said Wily Nilly, "but I will be the principal of the school, which will prevent many arguments. Rip, the Dog, will be the head master. Mr. Quacko will be the swimming instructor. Top Notch will teach those who are to become roosters the fine points that make for rooster perfection."

Top Notch stood straighter than ever. "Christopher will give oral speed tests, and will be in charge of examinations.

"Now you must all leave me so I can attend to fixing up this place while the rest of you can go around and tell all the animals in the neighborhood that school will be held on my porch tomorrow."

They were off at once, each going in a different direction.

"Cock-a-doodle-do," crowed Top Notch as he went to the nearest barnyard. "Send your chicken children to school tomorrow. Let them have the right start in life by studying under the famous Professor Top Notch." All the others spoke to the parents they went to see in much the same way.

"Oh dear," sighed Willy Nilly. "I have no more backbone than the inside of a marshmallow. I'll have to get things ready for the school.

"They'll need smooth stones for slates and sharp pebbles for pencils with which to scratch their home work. They'll need books and school bags and I'll have to get out one of my old tables for the teacher and a chair and a bell.

"Oh, there is so much to do!"

The plans for the school were under way.

Tomorrow—"First School Day."

PARENTS

Confidential Talks With Mothers and Fathers.

By Mrs. Brooke P. Church

Ghosts From the Past

A GOOD amateur musician on being asked why he had not made music his profession replied: "My father would not let me."

Questioned as to the reason for his father's objection, he went on to say that his father had had the same ambition in youth, and been prevented from fulfilling it by his father.

"I suppose," he added, "Dad took it out on me."

It seems incredible that a man, thwarted in the attainment of his dearest wish, should visit on his son the accumulated resentment of years. But it does happen.

Another case is of a man who was notoriously lazy and careless in his boyhood. His father stormed and raged to no purpose. The boy stood low in his studies, and was slow and unreliable in all that he undertook, until he started study for the profession which he loved. Today he has forgotten his childhood and the stormy scenes from which he emerged with an increasing load of pent-up rancor. He is giving his son the same treatment which he received, and probably the son in turn will visit it on his.

In some cases the man has learned in later life that his father was right and that he is better off for having been turned into different channels from those he chose. But too often this is not the case, and all that he is doing is to vent on the object of his love and pride the suppressed resentments of half a lifetime.

It might be well if such a parent could stop occasionally and search his past painstakingly and honestly to be sure that he is moved in his treatment of his child by real and present motives, and not by malevolent spirits from the past.

Spice Pudding.

Two cups flour.
One teaspoon soda.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon baking powder.
Two teaspoons cinnamon.
One teaspoon cloves.
Two-thirds cup dark brown sugar.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-half cup raisins.
Two eggs.
Two-thirds cup sour milk.
Four tablespoons fat, melted.

Mix ingredients and beat well. Pour into shallow pan and bake 20 minutes in moderate oven. Serve fresh, with hard sauce of one-third cup butter, two tablespoons hot cream, one teaspoon vanilla, one and one-half cup confectioner's sugar.

Mix ingredients and beat well. Chill and serve on pudding.

Enamel or Agate

Never boil a lobster in an aluminum utensil as it will discolor it dreadfully. Four tablespoons of oxalic acid crystals in a gallon of water placed in the kettle and brought to a five-minute boil will remove the stains if you should happen to get your pan in this discolored condition.

When They Were Young

No. 14 in a Series of Early Portraits of St. Louisans

By CAROL BATES

LITTLE HENRY KIEL was so mischievous that his family sent him to school when he was four years old—to have peace at home part of the day.

The first day he went to school, running between two boys who were tossing a ball back and forth on the playground, he was hit in the eye with a baseball. He "put up a great holler." The only thing that consoled him was a pickle produced by his resourceful sister, two years older than he. He had been thinking a great deal about the pickles which he knew were in their lunch.

Henry's school career was tro[u]blous. He was not a "teacher's pet!" Usually he had to stay in after school for some prank. As he remembers it, he was always there after everyone else had gone.

There were lots of boys and [d]ogs in the neighborhood where Henry lived. He and his friends played a great deal in the cemetery which used to be just west of the site of the present armory.

He was a disturbing element among the girls. When he joined a group of them, the party broke up. "Here comes Henry Kiel," they would say when they saw him coming, "Let's go!"

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

1. —High school and college faculties and deans have long wrestled with this problem and so far as I can learn the concensus of opinion at present seems to be that if private, personal counsel and appeal fails then some form of public punishment is the only course left. Since fear of the opinion of our fellow men is what keeps many of us out of jail, public punishment, and even the fear of it, proves to be in many cases a complete remedy.

2. —I think so. In his novel, "One More River," John Galsworthy shows they sense the danger, but do not fully foresee the consequences. The very danger, the hazard, the "stolen sweets," is chiefly what gives the temptation its allurement. But if they could or would foresee the ultimate end of their folly they would cease to skirt the edge of the precipice over which they will almost certainly be plunged.

3. —Most people imagine the "fourth dimension" is something that scientists can somehow see stretching away at right angles to ordinary length, breadth and thickness, but, as a matter of fact, the fourth dimension is merely time. As explained in that fine text book, "Matter and Energy," by Gerald Wendt and Oscar F. Smith, when an object moves it changes its position in space and also in time. It makes a difference whether it moves a long distance in a short time or a short distance in a long time. Plainly then to describe an object in motion you must include this fourth dimension, namely time, which can be calculated both forward and backward the same as length, breadth and thickness. You should read and study until you feel this truth as well as see it.

Spiced Crabapples.

Three pounds crabapples, one pint cider vinegar, one cup sugar, one teaspoon whole cloves, one and one-half teaspoons whole allspice, one teaspoon ginger. Wash and remove stems from crabapples. Steam until soft. Tie spices in a bag, add vinegar, sugar and apples. Bring slowly to boiling point and simmer for 20 minutes. More sugar may be added to suit taste.

Careless Habits.

Don't drift into careless habits at the table. Every now and then listen and see if you are eating silently, chewing with your lips closed and not by any chance smacking those same lips. Beware of large mouthfuls. They make nice eating very difficult.

Queen's Cookies

One-half cup butter
One cup sugar
Two eggs
Three tablespoons cream
One teaspoon vanilla
One-eighth teaspoon salt
Three and one-half cups flour
One teaspoon baking powder

Cream the butter and sugar. Add rest of ingredients. Chill dough. Break off bits of dough and flatten down three inches apart on greased baking sheets and bake 12 minutes in moderate oven.

Cauliflower.

Cauliflower is such a pleasing winter vegetable that a word as to its preparation seems in order. When boiling it, always turn the head downward so the scum will not settle in the eatable parts. A cup of grated cheese added to the usual white sauce gives much more flavor to the dish. Leftover cauliflower may be placed in a baking dish, the leftover sauce poured over it, the top sprinkled with breadcrumbs and baked in the oven until nicely browned.

In New Radio Role

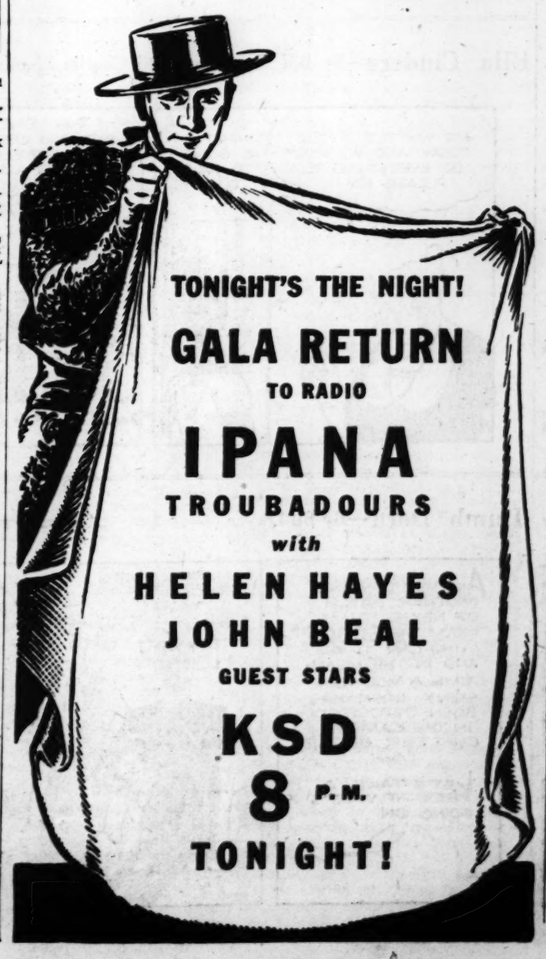

Tonight ALBERT SPALDING, America's greatest violinist, steps up to the microphone in a new role.

Instead of the usual 'classic' concert music—Mr. Spalding is going to play the melodies all America loves. Tunes that have made millions smile, and sing, and shed an occasional tear.

Hear these melodies, and the supporting program—Don Voorhees and his orchestra; Conrad Thibault, baritone; and chorus of eight vocalists.

This new program, sponsored by the makers of Fletcher's Castoria, will be broadcast every Wednesday, KMOX, 7:30 to 8 P. M.

DON'T BE FAT!
Eat Sensibly... Drink Welch's!

New Beauty, Health and Energy, the Welch Way

Excess fat comes from eating foods too rich in fat-producing elements. But in order to reduce healthfully and at the same time maintain your energy, it is not enough to substitute low-calory foods. Scientists have now discovered that you must also supply the body with a certain amount of easily-burnable sugar—so that the body can burn up its fat.

That's why Welch's Grape Juice—Certified-Pure, Pasteurized—belongs on every reducing diet. Welch's satisfies that craving for sweets and rich, fattening foods ... yet actually helps you lose weight! Because the pure grape-sugar in Welch's Grape Juice is predigested and non-fattening. It burns up fat! As you follow the Welch Way, week after week, it not only gives you slender lines, it restores a lovely natural color to your cheeks. You feel "made over" ... full of new vitality.

Welch's on Every Reducing Diet

Start right in today. Along with your reducing diet, drink a glass of Welch's with and between meals, and before retiring. Meanwhile, write for free booklet, "Keeping Your Weight Down."

Welch's is not a diluted beverage. The exclusive Welch process retains in the bottled juice the healthful properties of ripe grapes so essential to the system. Only Welch's is Certified-Pure and Pasteurized ... aged three months to permit the crude tartaric acid crystals to settle out of the juice. It contains no adulterants, no synthetic flavors, no artificial coloring, no preservatives, no added water. And it sells today at the lowest price in 35 years.

Send for Free Booklets

Write today for "Keeping Your Weight Down" ... how to reduce healthfully, delightfully.

PARENTS: Ask for free booklet, "Red-Blooded Children" ... how Welch's helps restore rosy cheeks and buoyant energy to run-down children. The Welch Grape Juice Co., Dept. 1343, Westfield, N. Y.

Digging In for the Winter

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

THE REFORESTERS have got their winter uniforms so they must be in earnest about that thing.

The boys will wear regular army clothing and we hope they solve the puzzle of O. D. underwear. We never knew whether to wash it or polish it.

It looks like the tree students are in an old-fashioned Michigan winter. How about rushing through a bill to let 'em go to Florida and plant palms?

We thought it was an outdoor picnic until the Government bought all the lumber south of timber line for barracks.

Boys, when you are up on the Oregon or Maine line in January there is no marching song like, "My Old Kentucky Home."

We have had many invitations to join the boys. And just to show we are the hardy, everblooming, outdoor type we are going up when they are spraying the caterpillars.
